PAYMENTS FORCED BY LAW, NOT GIFTS FROM KING GOVT.

Strictly dishonorable is Premier Mackenzie King's defence of his soul revealing five-cent speech. It strictly follows the lines laid down by the brainy practitioners at his party. And it dishonorably attempts to deceive the people of Ontario about the financial relations between the Dominion and the Province since the King Government came into office.

The attempt was begun in the House of Commons with a trick question asked by the Chief Liberal Whip for Ontario and the prepared answer was framed not to disclose the truth but to disguise it. Then the party hacks and the small-fry have been endeavoring to cover up Mr. King's monstrous five-cent speech with a glorification of Mr. King's splendid generosity towards Ontario. The Prime Minister, was, of course, intended to be the beneficiary of this wide-spread plot of deception. Not until Mr. King spoke at Peterboro was it conceived that any Prime Minister of Canada would stoop so far as publicly to degrade his high office by association with a low plot.

Premier King speaks of the millions Ontario has received from Ottawa since he came into power. The inference intended is that the money was an expression of his good-will towards a province which compels him to go to Saskatchewan to find a seat in Parliament. The extent of Mr. King's goodwill towards Ontario is shown in the latest annual statement of the Public Accounts of this Province. The King Government was compelled to pay this Province $2,642,611 by the very terms of the agreement between the provinces when they created the Dominion of Canada by joining together in a solemn bond and covenant. Unless the King Government tore up that bond and disrupted the Dominion they could not escape paying that $2,642,611.

It was a debt, not a gift. To represent the payment of a debt as a gift is a sorry job which Premier King might prudently have left to his lieutenants or his lackeys. But, at Peterboro, he showed that even prudence cannot be numbered among his virtues.

The total payment to Ontario as recorded in the Public Accounts of Ontario was $2,736,607 for the year 1929. That leaves less than $100,000 of "generosity" towards Ontario, which was not forced upon Mr. King by the constitution of this country. And of that less than $100,000, every cent passes through the hands of the Provincial Government simply because it is easier and cheaper to use the established Provincial facilities rather than to set up an expensive Federal organization to spend less than $100,000 in this province.

These are the facts and Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King knows that they are the facts. But his defence at Peterboro of his five-cent piece was a craftily concocted attempt to gull the electors of Ontario into regarding him as having something more than five-cents worth of fondness for this province.

King lieutenants, King organs, the general riff-raff of politics may think it clever to bamboozle the public for the benefit of their party. But when the Prime Minister of Canada openly takes the billiard-ball attitude towards morality of "Forward-Looking Liberalism"?

The defence of the five-cent piece is worse than the five-cent speech itself. The offence might be regarded as a bold confession of partisan bigotry. The defence, however, combines a disgraceful pose with a dishonest sham. The appearance of such shameless effrontery of an Ontario platform is a revelation of the lengths to which Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King will go in his hunger for power, at any price. He has been acclaimed as a clever campaigner. But Premier King is stupendously wrong in the under-valuation which he places upon the demand of the people of Ontario for straightforwardness in the discussion of their public affairs.

PALE FACES JADED NERVES

Due To Weak, Watery Blood.

Anaemia — impoverished blood — comes so stealthily that it is often well advanced before recognized. Fatigue and discomfort the earliest manifestations of the trouble are seldom taken seriously. Soon the face becomes pale; the nerves jaded; the heart palpitates violently after the slightest exertion; the appetite becomes fickle and before you realize it you are in a sad plight.

At such time, by enriching and purifying the blood Dr. Williams Pink Pills will build up the nerve cells and correct the run-down condition. Concerning them Miss Margaret Torrey, Toronto, Ont., says:— "I suffered a complete breakdown. My heart would palpitate on the least exertion. Nothing I ate agreed with me. I started taking Dr. Williams Pink Pills and by the time I had taken several boxes I was ready for anything; I had gained in weight and every distressing symptom had left me."

You can get these Pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

No child should be allowed to suffer an hour from worms when prompt relief can be got in a simple but strong remedy—Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator.

WHY MEN ARE UNEMPLOYED

Since 1985 the King Government has killed the export butter trade of the Canadian dairy farmer to the extent of 24,000,000 pounds a year and has robbed the Canadian dairy farmer of his domestic market to the extent of 35,000,000 pounds a year. It is estimated that no less than 50,000,000 pounds of butter will enter Canada during 1930. The bi-products of this 74,000,000 pounds of butter— the extent of the injury done to the butter trade each year by the King Government—would enable 160,000 litters of ten pigs each to be fed upon the skim milk and buttermilk. This great hog army of 1,600,000 pigs would require feeding upon the lower grades of wheat during the six weeks of their finishing for the packers. Thus the grain growers would benefit. There hogs would produce over 200,000,000 pounds of bacon trade which has been lost to Canada during the regime of the King Government.

THE RECORD OF MR. KING

The most desclaring indictment of a decade of Mr. Mackenzie King does not come from the mouth of Mr. Bennett. It comes from some official figures of the Government's own Bureau of Statistics. What are they? In 1921 the population of Canada, according to the Dominion Census, was 8,788,000. Since the census of 1921, there have been 2,172,627 births, 939,856 deaths, making a natural increase of 1,233,756. In addition, the number of immigrants reaching Canada since 1921 totalled 1,130,659. The total population of Canada at the present time, therefore, should be 11,152,455. But it is not that. It is placed by the Government's Bureau of Statistics at 9,786,900. We have not even held our natural increase. During ten years of Mackenzie King we have lost 1,355,655 persons to the United States, to Great Britain, to other lands. Lost more than one-tenth of our entire population. Lost them because we could not give them work. Couldn't give them a livelihood. That is the complete, the unswerving story of the record of Mr. King.

A farmer's daughter started to practice singing. One day her father came in unexpectedly.

"What's tha' extraordinary noise?" he enquired.

"That Dear," replied the wife proudly, "is Jane cultivating her voice."

"Cultivating? Hah!" ejaculated the farmer. "That ain't cultivating—that's horrowing!"

NEW AGENT TO DETECT CANCER

A new agent developed for use in determining the presence of cancer, has been announced by Donald C. A. Butts, director of the Emery laboratory of the Medical College and Hospital.

In making the announcement, Dr. Butts was careful to stress the fact that the new material designed as "E-47" is not in any sense a "cure" for cancer, but is for use in determining whether cancer is present and if so, in what locality of the body.

The identity of the compound is being withheld to allow a rigid scientific investigation.

Gum-Dipped Cords Stand the Acid Test

Even though Firestone cords are of superior strength and elasticity before they are built into Firestone Tires, they go through the Gum-Dipping process for added strength and endurance.

Gum-Dipping—exclusive to Firestone Tires—saturates and insulates every fibre of every cord in the tire. This prevents the cords from chafing against each other and eliminates internal friction and heat—the greatest enemy to tire life.

Thus Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires have double reasons for their toughness, ruggedness and unequalled mileage—by actual test they hold all world's records for mileage and endurance! Specify Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires on your car. See your nearest Firestone Dealer today.

ZAM-BUK
30 Years Unequalled For SKIN TROUBLES

Bottomless Underground Lake.

A sight-seeing train, 1,400 feet that no plumb lines dropped from a raft have touched the bottom, is being explored in the heart of Inglesborough Mountain, in the Pennines, a few miles from Ingleton, Yorkshire, England. A rough boat has been carried into the caverns piece by piece, and it is feared that shortly the public will be able to make the journey.

The lake is in a canyon which is a continuation of the White Scar cavern system, and is about 300 yards long and in places about twenty feet wide. The water is crystal clear, but looks black on account of the tremendous depth, and the roof is of solid limestone in which are occasional natural funnels, or "chimneys." The lake is 500 feet beneath the top of the mountain and more than a mile from the hillside entrance to the caverns.

Fish Leather Shoes.

Women may soon be wearing shoes made from the skins of cod and other fish, if experiments conducted by the Scottish Fishery Board meet with success. Two men have shown that it is possible to transform fish skins into excellent leather by the application of a solution of alum. At present the process of manufacture is rather costly, but it is hoped that, by using some of the cheaper by - products of seaweed as a substitute for alum, the process may become cheap enough to make fish-skin leather practicable.

Ireland's Record Road.

During the past five years twenty-seven miles of concrete road have been laid in County Antrim.

The program which has been followed has been the reconstruction of about five miles per annum of the worst sections of the heaviest trafficked road. During 1929 several of these sections have been linked up, making one section seventeen miles long. This will be the longest stretch of continuous concrete road in the British Isles.

You are missing these advantages which a track-type "Caterpillar" gives:

...its loads go on from thorough, timely tillage.
...shorter hours with more accomplished.
...less soil blow.
...more acres plowed, tilled, harvested per day.
...independence of weather—"Caterpillars" ride safely, soft or slippery roads.
...you attend all crops when work is needed.
...hard to high markets, however bad the roads.

"Caterpillar" track-type tractors have stopped lost motion on the farm, thus insuring extra profits.

Every careful and observant mother knows when her child suffers from worms. She also knows that if some remedy be not speedily applied, much harm will result to the infant. An excellent preparation for this purpose is Miller's Worm Powders. TELLS OF PROBLEMS IN SOUTH AFRICA

Some idea of the tremendous task which faces the British Administrator and officials in part of Great Britain's vast African Empire was given in an address in Ottawa by Grigadier-General H. St. J. Winterbotham, C.M.G., D.S.O. General Winterbotham is a distinguished British engineering officer, who for many years has been employed in military survey work. During the past eighteen months he had been visiting the various Crown colonies by direction of the Colonial Office to co-ordinating and supervising their program of surveys. He is on his way to England, having landed a short time ago at Vancouver, from the East.

Brilliant word pictures on the life and temperament of the many native tribes in the various great colonies and protectorates, many stories dealing with the official life in the outposts, and shrewd observations on the best way to handle racial problems, featured the general's address.

General Winterbotham played an active and valuable part in the work of the survey services during the Great War.

Mussolini to Be Discussed at the Chautauqua Here

Tom Skeyhill Noted Australian Will Give Brilliant Address on "Il Duce"

Tom Skeyhill, noted Australian poet, playwright, biographer and lecturer, whom the London Times describes as "one of the greatest of living orators," has been secured to come here and give his masterful lecture "With Mussolini and the Blackshirts" at the coming Canadian Chautauqua.

Tom Skeyhill knows Mussolini—the true facts of this handsome black-shirted premier's meteoric rise to power. Skeyhill knows the Fascisti. He has lived with them, attended their secret meetings, marched in their torchlight processions, he understands their movement and their soaring ambitions.

TOM SKEYHILL

Mr. Skeyhill is an impartial observer. He is neither for nor against the ideals which Mussolini is striving to put into effect. He merely sifts the evidence and leave judgment to his audience.

Tom Skeyhill himself is a colorful and arresting personality. He has fought and adventured over half a globe. Blinded in the memorable first landing of the Anzacs at Gallipoli, he became famous as "the blind soldier poet" of Australia, and in America for his services in raising over one hundred and thirty millions of dollars for war funds. He has the unique distinction of having raised twenty-three millions of dollars in twenty-three minutes at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York City.

Later, his sight almost miraculously restored, he began a life of study, travel and adventure. He has been in the thick of three wars and three revolutions. He ran the lines into Soviet Russia and was there during the Red Revolution. He marched with Mussolini and the Blackshirts into Rome, through the gate that Julius Caesar entered two thousand years ago. He was in Warsaw in the heart of the Russo-Polish mix-up, and he was out in the Near East when Smyrna was burnt and the Turks defeated the Greeks.

Mr. Skeyhill is a powerful and dramatic orator with a gift for painting word-pictures that hold his audience enthralled.

OBITUARY

MISS MARGARET HARRISON

The town was greatly shocked on Thursday to hear of the sudden death of Miss Margaret Harrison, of Water Street. Miss Harrison had been in her usual health. She had gone about her work and exhibited no indication of anything of a serious character wrong with her health. She had been out visiting, and neighbors saw her in the garden gathering vegetables for the evening meal. An hour later when her sister Miss Etta Harrison returned from her duties in the West Ward School, she found Margaret on the couch unconscious. The doctor was at once summoned and pronounced it a cerebral hemmorrhage. Within a very few minutes Miss Harrison had passed away.

The funeral was held from her late home on Sunday. The large number of floral tributes and the very large number which had gathered to pay their last tribute of respect, was a fine testimony to the high esteem in which the deceased was held by all classes in the community.

Miss Harrison was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Harrison. She is survived by a number of relatives, but most of all by her sister, Miss Harrison, who teaches in the West Ward School, and who, along with the deceased, occupied the old homestead.

Father: I hear you are always at the bottom of the class. Can't you get another place?

Son: No, all the others are taken.

Temperance Orator: Some advocate moderation— others demand prohibition. What, I ask you, really is the great drink question?

A Voice: What'll you have?

AN EXCLUSIVE CLUB

Members of Pioneers' Club Are All Ex-Convicts.

There are all sorts of clubs in London which call themselves "exclusive," but there is one which really is exclusive. Its membership is at present limited to thirty; it is called the Pioneers' Club, is run by a woman, and its members are all ex-convicts.

Its membership committee is composed of one-time first offenders, who "blackball" any person seeking admittance who is not one of themselves, and any member who has not the greatest appreciation and admiration for the club founder, Miss Marjorie Evan-Thomas.

Miss Evan-Thomas, one of the jolliest and most charming people one could wish to meet, founded the club nine years ago as the result of a chance meeting with a burglar. Speaking of this burglar, Miss Evan-Thomas claims him to be one of the most attractive men, both in appearance and manners, she has ever met.

"Before the war," she says, "he was just a kid, without any definite training, moral or otherwise, and had drifted into burglary in much the same light-hearted way that another boy would have drifted into running errands. Then came the war. He joined up at once, got his chance, and made good. Demobilized, he came home with a splendid army record, lots of ambition, and plenty of grit. But—he had been in prison. He had been a burglar. It was impossible for him to find a job.

"I liked him and helped him, and between us we thought out the idea for the Pioneers' Club.

"At first it was all done by correspondence, with occasional meetings in the Crypt of St. Martin's Church in Trafalgar Square, or at All Hallows in Mark Lane. Last year we found this house at 285 Old street, and I took it for the club premises."

It is not very large, but scrupulously clean. One could eat one's meals off the floor-boards. It has a billiard-room, a small library, and several tables fitted up for ping-pong, table croquet, and other social amenities, including plenty of packs of cards and ash trays.

Social evenings and dances are held once a week. To these members may bring their wives, sweethearts, mothers, aunts. During the rest of the week the club is reserved for men. All the arrangements and work of the house and club rooms are undertaken by the members, and attended to by them daily.

New members may only be "put up" by old members, and there is a period of four months' probation before any new member is elected. They have to promise to be honest and loyal, to play the game, look to the future, forget the past, and make good. A defaulting member may only re-join the club once. Should he err a second time his name is scratched off the books, and in the event of dishonesty he is expelled for life.

Over-a Hundred Years Old.

A 100-year-old apple tree, remarkable for its symmetry, and which last season produced twenty-two bushels of Calkin Pippin apples, attracts much attention in the orchard of Downey Morton at Lakeville, King's county, Nova Scotia. Mr. Morton picked apples from this same tree fifty years ago, at which time it was a full grown tree. It is well over a hundred years old, he says.

Dolls In United States.

The doll population of the United States is growing enormously. Toy manufacturers in that country are now making about $15,000,000 worth of dolls, doll parts and doll clothes annually, Department of Commerce figures show.

Students from Abroad.

According to latest available statistis, there are more than 12,000 students from abroad in preparatory schools, high schools and colleges in the United States.

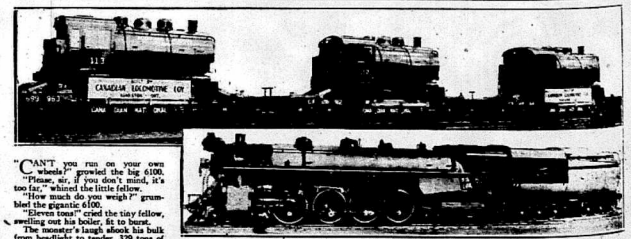
"Thanks for the Buggy Ride," Said the Little Locomotive



"CAN'T you run on your own wheels?" growled the big 6100.

"Please, sir, if you don't mind, it's too far," whined the little fellow.

"How much do you weigh?" grumbled the gigantic 6100.

"Eleven tons!" cried the tiny fellow, swelling out his boiler, fit to burst.

The monster's laugh shook his bulk from headlight to tender, 329 tons of laughter. It was only the conceit of the youngster that prevented him from diving under the giant's trucks and scuttling to a safer place.

But the monster was good-natured. "Where are you going?" he asked.

"To Beaubrook."

"All right, climb on," rumbled 6100.

"Come on, boys!" shouted the little fellow, scrambling up on the flat car. "Here, what's all this?" thundered the big one.

"Please, there are only fourteen of us," said the youngster in a wheedling tone.

"No, you don't," snorted 6100. "I'll take three or four of you at a time, but I've got other work to do, and I'll be hanged if I'll be nursemaid to a litter of locomotive pups."

So this is how the fourteen locomotives came to get a ride on a railroad train. Built at the Canadian Locomotive Works at Kingston, Ont., they were shipped over the Canadian National Railways to Beaubrook Que. There they will be used in road excavation and general construction work on the Beaubrook Light, Heat and Power Company's new coast. They are all-burners, small but sturdy and wonderfully active.

WEDDING BELLS

BAUDER — PARROTT

A quiet but pretty wedding took place on Saturday morning June 14th at 9:00 o'clock at the United Church parsonage, Odessa by the Rev. G. McQuade when Helen Kathleen, eldest daughter of Mrs. Milton Parrott, Wilton, became the bride of Wilmur Bauder, Kingston, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Bauder, Harrowsmith. The bride looked charming in a fawn suit with a blouse of egg shell crepe, trimmed with point lace, with hat, shoes, stockings and gloves to match and a grey clutch.

Immediately after the ceremony the newly married couple left amid showers of confetti and good wishes for Ontario and other points West. On their return they will reside in Kingston, where the groom has a fine position.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear Mother, Mrs. Wilson Hyland, who departed this life on June 26th, 1929.

This day brings back sad memories
Of one who's gone to rest;
And those who think of her today,
Are those who love her best.
Swift and sudden was the parting;
Taken home without a sigh;
We could not think her life was ended,
For she never said good-bye.
She did not fail to do her best.
Her heart was true and tender;
She worked hard for those she left.
Trial is something to remember.

ON AN INDIAN ISLE

The Only White Man on a Red Indian Reserve Describes His Life.

I have been working amongst Indians in the Northwest of Canada for some time now, and at present am engaged among a tribe which is "reserved" on Dolphin Island, forty-five miles from the north coast of British Columbia.

It is lonely, for I am the only "white" on the island, I get my mail sparsmodically, sometimes once a month, sometimes less frequently.

I do the work of Indian teacher in the native school, all alone, with upwards of 100 children ranging from six years old to fifteen. Further than that, I act as doctor, advising about ailments, administering simple medicines, and giving comfort where I can and the best way I can.

My other duties are manifold, as I help with all kinds of correspondence, burial of the dead, and so on.

These Indians are known as Kitkatlas, and have been very warlike in days gone by. At present most of them live in "shacks," a few in substantial wooden houses, and "the Chief" in the best house of all.

The condition of the poorer Indians is deplorable; though others who have made money working in tanneries on the British Columbia coast even possess pianos.

As a rule, the men are strong and energetic. They live principally on seaweed, smoked fish, shellfish, and cured venison. The former is gathered and dried from the shores, while the seas abound in salmon, halibut, and dogfish, which are taught, cleaned, and smoked, then packed in tubs and used as required.

Many kinds of shellfish are to be had just for picking them off the rocks.

Deer abound in many of the large wooded islands, and the men go off for days and weeks together, fishing and hunting. They bring their spoils home, and the women do the cleaning, smoking, and storing.

The women are big and, in most cases, clumsily fat. This is a result of the oily food they eat, and of lack of exercise—they seldom go far from their shacks. They have large families, but the mortality among children is great.

The dead of the island are taken on boats and buried on another island about two miles away. Those accompanying the corpse sit round while the grave—"hole," they call it —is dug. The body, which has been placed in a coffin—"box" in the Indian language—is placed in the hole and covered up. There is much weeping and wailing and playing of "music."

This burial island is composed of millions of cockle shells and presents a wonderful appearance.

The present chief is a big man, very kind and friendly, and has the confidence of his people. He is chairman of the "council" which governs the reserve.

This council meets once a month, from the middle of October to March, when the Indians are "at home." Then they begin to go off again. The council appoints its own constable, firemen, and so on.

We have a primitive fire-engine, dating back to 1875, which was belated cheaply second-hand.

The constable has to remain in the settlement all the year. He collects the nominal dog taxe, looks after property, and so on. He is proud of his position, and never forgets to tell any visitor who lands on the island that he is the constable.

My Indian friends are very superstitious, and any ailment frightens them. It is quite usual for them to knock me up in the middle of the night to administer toothache mixture.

There is always plenty to do, and the work is interesting. But it is lonely with no other white to converse with. Still, I try to shake off the feeling when it gets too acute by reading newspapers and periodicals, and so maintaining touch with the things of home.

Less Power—More Speed.

The latest decision of the British Admiralty, who propose to build destroyers based upon the hull design of Sir Henry Seagrave's speed boat, Miss England, is a convincing reply to those cynics who always attempt to depreciate speed efforts on land and water as being useless, writes "Looked On" in the London Daily Chronicle. The extreme importance of having a correctly-shaped hull is illustrated by the fact that although her American rival had engines developing just double the power, Miss England, at 92 miles per hour, proved slightly the faster craft. The fastest British destroyer has recorded a speed of 44 m.p.h., but naval experts are of the opinion that the new type of destroyer will exceed the mile-a-minute mark.

Electric Eye for Schools.

An interesting little device has been made by the General Electric Company for preventing school pupils from working in a bad light, says an article in Tit-Bits.

The electric lamps in the schoolroom are worked by a switch, and can, of course, be turned on in the ordinary way. But the switch is also connected with a photo-electric cell, and when the light falls below a certain strength the cell operates and turns on the lights.

If the weather gets cloudy and the light dim, or when twilight approaches, the ever-watchful photo-electric cell automatically lights up the school-rooms.

4,000-Year-Old Toy.

A child's toy believed to be over 4,000 years old has been found during excavations on an encampment at Tonbridge, England, built during the Iron Age.

The toy is a miniature weapon, made of flint, and the discoverer is convinced that it was used either for playing at soldiers or for teaching self-defence.

TORONTO YOUTH FIGURES IN SENSATIONAL HOLD-UP

Clinton Duke, a young Canadian who is said to have been tried and acquitted on a charge of bank robbery in Toronto last year—though we do not at the moment recall the name of the incident—is about to be tried for a sensational hold-up in Buffalo. It appears that this native son has more than a local or even a national reputation. He has been a distinguished figure in the Buffalo underworld where he is known as the Red Duke. This title may have been conferred on him because of his distinguished manners and aristocratic appearance. Or it may have some reference to a kind of ferocity somewhat less admirable which has revealed itself in some of his adventures. The crime for which Duke and three of his associates are to be tried was one of the most sensational in Buffalo history. It was the holding up of a dinner party and the collection of about a quarter of a million dollars worth of jewelry and cash from the guests including a pearl necklace valued at $200,000. This necklace is still missing and the men under arrest will give no information concerning it. The theory is that Duke took it to New York after the robbery and either sold it to a "fence" or has it planted where it can be recovered later on maybe when the defence lawyers need more money.

Hold-Ups Interrupt Dinner

The dinner party was given by Mr. and Mrs. John L. Carson at their home in Snyder, a Buffalo suburb, to celebrate the approaching marriage of a couple of friends. The diners numbered nine men and nine women. They were seated at the table when suddenly at front and rear doorways appeared five men with handkerchiefs tied over their faces, and revolvers in their hands. Their command "Stick 'em up !" was given by the leader. But the astonished guests did not immediately understand that they were about to be robbed. They thought it was a joke. One of the women sought to snatch the handkerchief from the face of one of the robbers and was knocked down. A man springing to his feet from the bandit hit him on the head with a revolver and he fell unconscious. Mrs. Carson, disregarding the threats of the desperadoes, rushed from the room upstairs to where her infant son was sleeping. A robber rushed after her, but found her on the floor in a faint and did her no harm. The business of robbing the guests proceeded swiftly.

Hint in Society News

The men were forced to empty their pockets. The rings were stripped from the fingers of the women and other ornaments from their necks and arms. The fur coats in the hall were gathered up, and then as the bandits prepared to depart, the guests were forced to lie down on the floor. Next door a maid glanced out of the window and noted that something was wrong. She telephoned to the police, who arrived only a few minutes after the desperadoes had got away. It was then that they turned to their astonishment that the necklace worn by Mrs. Raymond Allan Van Cliet was worth $200,000. The police puzzled over this fact for a time. The number of people who knew Mrs. Van Cliet had such a valuable necklace must be few, and fewer still would know that she would wear it at the small Carson dinner. Later on it was revealed that the robbers were as much surprised at the value of their loot as the police. The only explanation they had about their victims was contained in a short newspaper item announcing that the dinner would be held. They took a chance that there would be some jewelry and cash available and had their reward.

Habitual Criminals

It is presumed that the arrest of the robbers was the result of information that welled up out of the underworld from some stool-pigeon. The prisoners, with the exception of Duke, were youths who had grown up in Buffalo, but their names—Eddie Przybyl, Theodore Rogacki and William Seiner—indicate a European derivation. A fifth man, also named Przybyl, has made his escape. From his free spending habits he was known as the "millionaire kid." All have criminal records and have been making their living by thefts burglaries and hold-ups. The hold-up of the Carsons' dinner party was undertaken to supply them with money for gambling funds having run low at the moment. They are known to be desperate men who would not hesitate to shoot either while committing a crime or resisting arrest and one of the features of the case which puzzles the Buffalo police are congratulating themselves is that they were taken without bloodshed.

Victim of Neat Trick

This was brought about by as neat a trick as we have heard of in making an arrest. Duke and a handsome girl who was his companion took a room in a highgrade apartment hotel a few days after the crime and before the police had received the information they required. One morning a few days later their telephone began to behave in a most exasperating and disgraceful manner. The bell would ring and when the receiver was taken down the call would be broken. This happened several times, much to the annoyance of the other hotel-keeping tenants of the room. Finally a bell-boy came to the door and said that the telephone girl must be out of order, but a very insistent call had just come in for Duke or someone else to come down the hall to another room and answer it ? Unsuspecting Duke left his room, but as he turned the corner in the corridor he was met by the chief of police with a revolver in his hand and the grim command, "Stick 'em up !" The telephone trick had been resorted to so that Duke might leave the room without a revolver in his hand or on his person. He was given no chance to "shoot it out" as he assuredly would have done if his suspicions had been aroused.

The Camden and Sheffield Convention was held at the Camden VIII Church on Thursday, June 12th.

The morning session began at 9:30 with Rev. MacKenzie in charge. Various committees were appointed and the work got under way. Mr. Jackson gave a brief resume of the religious situation in the district. The Secretary and Treasurers reported. The various superintendents then reported for the work over which they had charge. These reports showed a continued interest in each phase of the religious work of the Church School. A discussion of matters arising out of the reports was led by Rev. Houlding, the O.R.E.C. representative.

The Resolutions Committee passed resolutions favoring a young people's rally in September. A standard Teachers' School in the fall at Enterprise. Resolutions of appreciation were passed to the retiring president, to Mr. Houlding, and to the resident minister and officials of Camden VIII Church.

At 2:10 the question drawer was conducted by Mr. Holding. Each person handing in a problem, all of which were duly answered.

Donkey's Wonderful Foot.

The foot of an ass is one of the most ingenious and unexampled pieces of mechanism in animal structure. The hoof contains a series of vertical and thin laminae of horn, amounting to about five hundred, and forming a complete lining to it. In this are fitted as many laminae belonging to the coffin-bone, while both sets are elastic and adherent. The edge of a quire of paper inserted leaf by leaf into another will convey a sufficient idea of the arrangement. Thus the weight of the animal is supported by as many elastic springs as there are laminae in all the feet, amounting to about 4,000, distributed in the most secure manner, since every spring is acted upon in an oblique direction.

Clever Museum Staff.

The British Museum boasts among its large staff almost every type of artist and craftsman, and I was greatly interested, says a correspondent to the London Daily Chronicle, in its private "house-show" held recently. This took place in the newly-decorated North Library, and consisted of oil and water-color paintings, etchings and other works of art, all executed by members of the staff. Perhaps the most interesting, because the most unusual, were the various curios of all ages, that had been restored by the Museum laboratories. The delicate work involved in the reforation of these objects, many of them minute, is obviously the result of patient and enlightened ingenuity.

Clock Plays Tunes.

Mr. John Kingston Spratt, of Wootton Rivers, Wiltshire, England, has constructed a village church clock from old steel spindles, iron bars, parts of agricultural machines, bicycles, and fire-irons supplied to him by the people belonging to the parish. He has also constructed a grandfather clock which plays 140 tunes on its chimes.

"COUNTRY HICK AND TOWN GENTLEMEN"

I remember when I was a boy in the city, I used to see the farmer come to the door with his eggs and butter, which he sold at what now seems ridiculously low prices. I used to stand and look with wonder at the bewhiskered man with his old basket. Sometimes I used to go out to the old waggon or buggy that was drawn up at the curb. The party of the second part, who was holding the horse, was usually, so it seems in my memory now, a woman in black clothes which seemed to belong to another generation, and her hat was a thing of wonder.

At the school where I attended, there was usually a few who came in from the country to take work there. In our fun loving mood, we used to deride the boys' home-made baggy pants, and the girls' rather heavy-looking dresses. So I developed a certain superiority complex, a certain impression of the folk of the country. That impression I discovered as I grew up, was one which was more or less generally held by those with whom I came into contact in a business way.

Mistaken Ideas

But what is the truth of the situation. Whether my early impressions were based on fact or whether they were a sort of carry over from the exaggeration with which youth naturally invests that which looks different from the ordinary, I cannot tell. But this much I do know. In the light of what I have since learned, I have had very seriously to revise my judgment on the matter, and hence this article to ease my own conscience and as well to right an injustice to all those of whom I had wrong thoughts.

As I look out on life now, with mature judgment and from an unbiased point of view, I realize the statement that the farmers are the back-bone of the country is true in a deeper sense than most people realize. We have all heard, of course, about the boys who have struggled up through the farming life to become the leaders in the life of the cities and the towns and the nation. It isn't necessary for me to reiterate that as the facts are all too well-known to anyone who desires to look into the matter. The scraggly beard, the baggy pants of the youth, the heavy cloth dresses, and the one horse buggy have given place to modern manners of appearance and transportation. This, of course, is patent to the most casual observer, and is perhaps the least important of the changes that I have noted.

But the thing that has not received the proper emphasis and which is perhaps neglected in the thinking and consideration of most people is the superiority of the intellectual and cultural interests of the folk in the rural parts of Ontario today, to the sort of superficial life that is lived by most of the dwellers in the towns and villages, especially as to the manner in which they spend their leisure.

Check And Double Check

Let anyone who desires to check up on this conclusion take a trip out into the country some fine afternoon and attend a meeting of one of the women's organizations. What will you find? Meetings run according to the best manner of Bourinea's Roll Call which will be answered by each present by means of a recipe, an economy hint, a labor saving devise or a passage from a favourite poet. Then real life problems will be discussed; and the keenness of debate and the fine intellectual contributions born out of long reading and wide experience of life in serious thinking stamps these meetings at once as, in many ways, the finest example of Canadian womanhood. And while the ladies in the own are vieing with one another to see who shall serve the most unusual lunch, look the prettiest or carry off the bridge prize for offence, those in the country are studying the real problems of life at close range.

This is true, as well, of the men of farms. I am told that one of the problems that the men of the towns of Ontario have is to get enough time to play golf. And in order to get the money and time to do so, they play the stock market and thus become easy game for the city sharks.

The farmer has to know within a day or two when to sell at advantage. He has to be a keen business man, a mechanic, a student of world markets and of political movements. He must know, as well, the chemical constituency of the soils and the fertilizers he deals with. Terms like overhead, distribution, upkeep, depreciation, which many others use in a big way—like Andy, the big business man—are matters of real concern and study by the men on the farms of Ontario.

Oh! Oh!

Sometimes I hear people say that the country and the town ought to get closer together. Usually, the ones who say that, say it with a sort of patronizing air. In the hope that perhaps the town would be able to bestow some of its superior benefits on the benighted ruralites.

I am convinced it will be a red day for Canada when the rural parts of the country ape the manners and habits of the town and city dwellers. The farmer is still the backbone of the nation.

FORMER NAPANEE BOY ACCEPTS CALL

Rev. Aylesworth B. Bell, a Napanee boy, formerly minister of South Congregational Church, Rochester, N.Y., and who resigned a year ago to take over the managership of station WH. E.C. at Rochester, has accepted a call to the Brookfield Congregational Church of Chicago, Ill. Mr. Bell holds the honor of being the most popular announcer at a Rochester station, having been voted such in a contest conducted last winter by a Rochester paper.

The Brookfield Church is located in one of Chicago's fast developing suburbs on the West side and plans are in progress for a new church, work for which Mr. Bell is fitted, having seen three new churches erected during his ministry to the Middle West.

Mr. Bell takes up his new work July 1st, and will be ably assisted by Mrs. Bell, who has organized and built the Winton Congregational Church on Rochester's south side. Mrs. Bell will continue the work in the Winton Church until September 1st, when she and the family—Taylor, who will enter Northwestern University at Evanston, Ill., this fall and Alethea, will join Mr. Bell in their Chicago church.

PETS' PARADE

All who are entering animals in the Pets' Parade on July 1st, must be ready to leave the Town Hall at 1:00 o'clock sharp, preceded by the town band. Be sure to have your animal nice looking and decorated if possible, and well secured by a leash or in a box.

In a reorganization meeting last Thursday, due to the departure of Mr. Shoemaker, the following are the officers for the remainder of 1930:—

Hon.-President—Mayor Simpson.
President—G. F. Smith.
Vice-President—J. D. Mayhew.
Secretary-Treasurer—W. G. Higgs.
Directors—W. S. Herrington, K.C.; Miss Etta Harrison, Rev. A. J. Wilson, E. J. Roy, T. B. Wallace.
Inspector at Camden East — Alex Dickson.
Veterinary—Dr. H. W. Smith.

It is with the sincerest regret that we mention the passing of the late Miss Margaret Harrison. She, along with her sister, were the two whose efforts finally brought about the formation of the Napanee Humane Society in 1926.

Once more this Society requests the support of the town and district on our Tag Day, on July 1st, to enable us to properly look after cruelty to animals and thus "speak for those who cannot speak for themselves." The taggers are asked to assemble at Mr. Mayhew's store at 8:45 on this morning.

Napanee Celebrates Dominion Day. $1100 for 4 Horse Races Double Header Baseball: C. N.R. Belleville and Sydenham; Napanee and Tamworth.

LIBERAL LADIES' MEETING

The women voters of the Liberal Party of Lennox, are forming an Association on Thursday, June 26th, at 3:00 p.m. at the Liberal Committee Rooms on Dundas Street, Napanee. Several ladies from Prince Edward will be present and address the meeting in connection with the Prince Edward riding. Every woman voter of the party is invited to be present. 26a

COLLISION ON DUNDAS STREET

Last evening a Buick car, driven by Bertha Doering, of 41 Laurel St. Buffalo, was coming down Dundas when, near Cowling's corner, another car, driven by James McGuire of Kingston Highways, No. 2, was making the turn into the curb. Instead of allowing up to permit the local car to complete the turn the Buffalo car tried to get around it, the result was a collision in which both cars were badly damaged. In order to avoid a charge of reckless driving, the Buffalo car settled the matter out of court.

CITIZENS' BAND NOTICE

A Committee of Citizens has undertaken to conduct a canvass to raise money to equip the Band with uniforms. As this is a matter to which the Band, with community spirit, should be interested, the Committee asks that everyone be prepared to make a substantial contribution when the Canvasser calls.

The canvass will be conducted in the next few days:—

BAD ACCIDENT AVERTED

What might have had very serious results happened on Sunday afternoon, when a car driven by Mr. Harold Winton was struck by one driven by J. B. Jarvis, of Toronto, on the highway, just west of Robin Hill. Mr. Jarvis' car, which belongs to Kingston, had been driving through Riverbank Park, and when it got to the first grass of the diamond and outfield. They must have averaged two errors apiece.

Les. Richardson of Gibbards umpired a very creditable game, neither his calls on balls, cutting the corners of the plate. On Wednesday 25th, the two Adolphustown teams play at the Leaf field, these teams having each been defeated by Odessa.

FREE SHOTS ON Local Sport

Due to the wet weather, the Bibard baseball team did not have a week-end all last week, but succeeded in downing Purest Mills, 9-2.

* * *

Lonard Hudgins was on the mound for the visitors and heaved a fine game.

* * *

The locals had little trouble beating the visitors but found Hudgins harder to hit than the twirler Garry Provins had in the box last week.

* * *

If the local fans want to see a game that should provide a few thrillers one way and another, they should go to Adolphustown this afternoon.

* * *

The Maple Leafs are going to play on the main front, opposite side of the Bay and a sweet contest it ought to be.

* * *

Les. Richardson is going out to handle the game and to see that the rules are followed as nearly as possible.

* * *

The rain last week put a stop to local tennis activities and only the fastest dirt courts were in use.

* * *

However the warm weather over the week end did some good work and last night everybody was hard at it again.

* * *

A lot of people don't know it but Art Kimmerly has one of the fastest sea-fleas on this end of Lake Ontario.

* * *

It is one of the Peterboro Canoe Company's Boyd Martin Bullets, the type that was so successful last year.

* * *

He is going to enter it in the races at Wellington on the 1st of July where she will be up against some of the best outfits on the lake.

* * *

There is also to be a horseshoe heaving tournament which some of the local experts should enter.

BASEBALL

ODESSA 10, MAPLE LEAFS 2.

Odessa, playing almost errorless ball behind Ikey Kilgannon's usual good pitching, took their fourth straight game in as many starts from the Adolphustown 'Maple Leafs 10-3 in a county league game at Odessa on Saturday. Starting their scoring in the fourth on Scott's long double to deep centre with two on, followed by Roy Powley's single through short, Odessa scored enough runs then to save the game. Daverne for the Leafs, though accorded poor support, weakened after the third and in the fifth was replaced by George Dickson, who got along O.K. until O'Neil crashed into him while Dickson was fielding a pop fly on first. Dickson was hurt only temporarily. Toe Leafs started their scoring in the lucky seventh with two and took another in the eighth. R. Powley, Odessa's little right-fielder, played well, as did Charles Caigns, who hit a homer over left-field fence, with 2 on in the fifth. The Leafs only got five hits to their opponents ten, but these were bunched to produce three runs. R. J. Allison caught a good game but hit poorly. The whole infield of the victors fielded very weakly, but Odessa may have been due to the fez grass of the diamond and outfield. They must have averaged two error's apiece.

Les. Richardson of Gibbards umpired a very creditable game, neither his calls on balls, cutting the corners of the plate. On Wednesday 25th, the two Adolphustown teams play at the Leaf field, these teams having each been defeated by Odessa.

Canada sent last year $26,000,000 of Natural Resources to the U.S.A., to be manufactured. With proper protection they could have been manufactured in Canada, providing work for thousands of citizens.

New Zealand shipped to Canada last year, 24,000,000 pounds of butter. This butter is laid down in Canada at 29½c per pound. The farmers have stood this competition under a duty of 1c per pound for the last four years.

Furniture to the value of $3,228,217 was imported into Canada in 1929. This would have kept the Gibbard Furniture Co. humming for five years.

FATAL ACCIDENT ON SELBY ROAD

Double Tragedy Marks Sunday Afternoon Motor Trip

On Sunday afternoon a group of young men got into a car owned by George Sherman, and went off to Beaver Lake for the afternoon. There were seven of them in the Ford tourer, George Sherman, Cyrus Middleton, Gordon Moore, Ernest and Don Conger, Harold Rennie and Angus Smith.

After spending the afternoon at the lake, they were returning by way of Rchlin and the Selby Road. Cyrus Middleton was driving, and when just a short way north of Selby, the car left the road. While there is as yet no definite decision as to what caused the accident, it is supposed that the brakes were applied quickly and that they locked, causing the car to spin around on the road several times. When the car was found it was facing in the opposite direction to that in which it had been travelling.

It struck the edge of the ditch and came to an abrupt stop. One of the boys, Ernest Conger, was killed outright. His brother, Donald, was seriously injured. He was rushed to the Kingston Hospital but died as the car passed Bath Corners. His wife, lying, has been pronounced by a broken rib.

Cyrus Middleton also was seriously injured and for a time it was thought that he could not recover. But at the last report, he is doing nicely. The rest of the boys were badly shaken up but will recover.

The double tragedy in which the two brothers lost their lives, has cast a gloom over the community and the sympathy of all goes out to the bereaved parents.

Fertilizers

Well-rotted stable manure is undoubtedly the best all round garden fertilizer, except possibly, with some vegetables, like potatoes which seem less susceptible to scab if commercial fertilizer is used. To get round the difficulty of course, the stable manure should be applied the year before the potatoes are planted. Good manure, however, is getting scarcer, and it is almost impossible to obtain it in the larger towns and cities. Commercial fertilizers offer a good substitute, and to hasten many of our leafy vegetables along some of these chemical manures are almost indispensable. For the average garden, a good compound or "mixed" commercial fertilizer is advised. All of these are sold with the formulae attached and one should insist on at least four per cent. nitrogen eight per cent phosphorous, and from four to eight per cent of potash. Technically, this is known as a 4-8-4 to a 4-8-8. The effect of nitrogen on the growth of a plant is more quickly marked than that of either of the other two elements, states the regular Vegetable Gardening Bulletin issued by the Ontario Agricultural College. Nitrogen has a direct influence on the development of the leafy parts of the plant and imparts a deep green color to the leaves. It is, therefore, very valuable for those leafy types of vegetables and also as a tonic in transplanting all vegetables. With late-maturing sorts, such as tomatoes and corn, nitrogen should be applied in the early stages only. Phosphorous fertilizers are usually found to be valuable for growing vegetables on practically all soils. This element hastens maturity, increases root development and builds up resistance to disease. Potash, the third element in commercial fertilizer, is essential to starch formation, and green plants and root crops particularly need it. On sandy and muck soils especially, potash is advised, as these are usually deficient in this valuable element.

Keep Well Thinned

Too much emphasis cannot be laid on thinning as all vegetables and flowers require space for full development. In flowers, the general rule is to allow at least half as much space each way as the plant is high. In other words, a common or dahlia which reaches four or five feet in height, requires at least two feet each way for development. Even those vegetables like lettuce, beets and carrots, which are used when very small require a little distance between plants. Otherwise, they are inclined to be weak and spindly, and in the case of the larger growing plants a prey to the first strong wind or heavy rain. Corn should be thinned to about three or four plants to a hill and the hills require at least eighteen inches each way. If grown in drills, allow about ten inches between plants. Beans must have three or four inches. Beets and carrots should be given about an inch each way to start with, and later on remove every other plant for the first harvest, and keep this up until the row is used.

Re-Planting

It is very important to save a little seed of each variety from the first plantings, because one is almost sure to find some misses caused by washing, drought, or too vigorous cultivation. These blind spots should be filled in. There is still plenty of time to plant most of the common types of vegetables with the possible exception of leaf lettuce, spinach, onions from seed and radishes. In the flower garden, there will also be many gaps to fill in in the perennial bed, where there have been Winter casualties, with quick growing annuals. Now is the ideal time to get perennial seeds started for next year.

Cut Lawn Less Frequently

During the cool weather when the lawn is growing rapidly, one should trim with a sharp lawn-mower every four or five days, according to Professor A. H. Tomlinson, of the Ontario Agricultural College. Where this practice is followed, the clippings should be left on the grass as they form valuable fertilizer and are not too long to smother the lawn. Later on, however, as the hot weather develops, the grass will not grow as quickly and it should not be cut so close nor so often. Once a week, or even every ten days will be sufficient. "It is most unwise to cut the grass too close at this time as burning is sure to take place" warns Professor Tomlinson. If a hose is available, this is the proper time to use it, and one is strongly advised to soak the lawn at long intervals rather than daily sprinkling. A good watering from time to time will prevent the development of unsightly patches.

APRICOT GRADES

The 1929 grades for apricots have been defined by the Dominion Fruit Branch as follows:—

No. 1 shall consist of apricots of one variety, which are firm, mature, not less than medium size, free from gum and skin breaks and free from damage caused by disease, insects, bruising, mechanical or other means; no culls.

No.2 shall consist of apricots which are firm, free from leaves or other foreign matter, and free from serious damage caused by disease, insects, mechanical or other means; no culls. In order to allow for variation incident to proper grading and handling in each of the above grades, ten per centum by count or weight of any lot may be below the requirements of the grade but not to exceed one-half of this tolerance shall be permitted for any one defect.

FASCINATING LINKS IN CANADIAN HISTORY

We have become so accustomed to a reliable and systematic mail service that even the slightest lapse is considered by most people almost a deadly insult. Very few of us stop to consider the numerous officials concerned or the tremendous detail necessary to this regular and efficient service. The post office as a matter of history, is an interesting and intriguing study.

At the Dominion Archives there is a document which is very illuminating and instructive. It is a way bill of the courier carrying mail from Halifax to Quebec in the winter of 1811. It is addressed to "the several couriers on the route" and reads: "You are hereby ordered to use the utmost diligence in your respective stages to convey in safety and in the greatest possible speed the mail herewith delivered to you. You are to show this way bill to the postmasters on your route who are required to note the day of the month and the exact time of the day of your arrival at their offices respectively together with the time when the mail is given by them to set in motion with the name of the courier into whose charge it is given. And the courier will himself set down the time of his arrival here and his departure from any of the places named in this bill at which there is no postmaster. And wherever any unavoidable detention may have happened it must be noted in proper column and certified by next postmaster or by a magistrate or by some person residing where delay happened. And hereof you are not to fail. By order of the deputy postmaster general John How Pitt."

In the space below columns are ruled off for the entering of the date, time station, distance from the last station, name of the postmaster and the courier in charge and also a wide column for remarks, explanation for the delay along the road which seem to have occurred right from the start. The first entry was made at six o'clock p.m. on December 2nd, 1811, from Halifax, where John Howe was postmaster and D. Hamilton was the courier. Crambe Hill was reached early the next morning after a short stop at Windsor. Horton, Rye Field, Aylesford, Annapolis, Wilmot, Digby, Digby, St. John, Long Reach, Grimmcross Island, Fredericton, Nikwiki. Opposite all these names were entries telling of storms and bad roads and similar accidents. At one of them tells of entering at the mouth of the Madawaska River with the mail arrived at seven o'clock in the evening of December 8th the courier, according to an explanation written in French, having walked ten miles further on.

THE TREE CULTURE IN PALESTINE

Free Donation Has Been Established By the Keren Kayemeth.

In order to restore to Palestine its traditional wooded glory, a special tree donation has been established by the Keren Kayemeth (Jewish National Fund), the Zionist land purchasing agency.

Palestine, formerly covered with extensive and beautiful woods, now lies bare. Neither the Arabs nor the Turks had any national reforestation policy. Trees were ruthlessly cut down. The war gave the finishing touch. The Ottoman military leaders needed sleepers for the strategic railways, and they took the timber where they could get it. To-day the mountains of Judea show the tourist their bare and reddish ridges which have a wild beauty of their own but at the same time conjure up a vision of desolation and of desert wastes.

According to the latest reports, the Keren Yayemeth has planted about 400 acres with 712,002 trees. The varieties chiefly favored are the Jerusalem pine and the eucalyptus, the latter being usually planted on swampy ground because its deep roots drain the water from the soil.

Jews of all nationalities and prominent personalities by having trees planted in their names. In the vicinity of Nazareth, English Jews are planting the Balfour forest; 300,000 trees on an area of some 130 acres, in commemoration of Lord Balfour, who as Minister of Foreign Affairs during the war, issued the declaration of the Cabinet in favor of Zionism.

The German Jews will plant an Einstein forest, probably on the Yarkon, north of Jaffa, near the Jewish town of Tel Aviv.

ONTARIO SALT MINE.

Brine Is Pumped From a Depth of More Than 1,200 Feet.

On the shores of Lake Huron, close to Goderich, Ont., is to be found a salt mine which has a long record of production: From a depth of more than 1,200 feet brine has been pumped from a pool at the rate of fifty gallons a minute for fifty-seven years.

It is believed that the salt beds were formed ages ago beneath two thick layers of limestone, and that the water from the Great Lakes seeped and leached, thus creating a seemingly inexhaustible pool. The pool, it is estimated, is seventy-five feet deep, with the brine water at the top, which makes necessary the pumping of the thicker brine from the bottom of the shaft.

By a rather primitive process the brine is evaporated in the salt. The fluid is pumped into a large, shallow vat beneath which several furnaces are kept in constant burning. The salt left after the water has been evaporated is periodically scraped off and being free from it purities, is ready for sale as coarse salt.

"WATTLE" DAY.

Celebrated First British Settlement In Australia.

All good Australians recently celebrated "Wattle Day" the 117th anniversary of the first British settlement in Australia.

Until then it has been Australia's floral emblem for exactly thirty-nine years, for it was not until January 26th, 1890, that the original Wattle Blossom League was founded at Adelaide. Its members pledged themselves to wear the flower on each anniversary of that day thereafter.

Officially, however, it has been recognized only since just before the war, when the flower was given a place in the Commonwealth coat of arms, and Wattle Day was proclaimed a national holiday.

The celebrations in London usually include a luncheon given by the High Commissioner at Australia House, Strand, followed by a reception. There are also special services at one or more of the churches, and, of late years, the broadcasting of a special Australian program.

Legend of Roslyn Chapel.

Roslyn Chapel, where the unfortunate heir of the Earl of Roslyn was recently buried, is one of those places, says "Looker On" in the London Daily Chronicle, with an apprentice's pillar." That is the little chancel at Roslyn is certainly a beautiful example, which almost justifies the story of the master builder.

The legend there—as in some other places—is that the first mason found himself at a loss for a design, and hastened to Rome to study examples there. Meanwhile, the industrious apprentice got on with the work, and when his master arrived home the pillar was finished. So fine was the sculpture that the mason, mad with envy, killed his pupil. The chapel was begun in the fifteenth century, but only the chancel was completed.

Records on Rails.

The amazing total of 385,902 miles in just over six years has been achieved by the L.N.E.R. "Silver Jubilee" express. This is an average of nearly 1,200 miles a week, including the time spent in overhauls. One of this engine's journeys is the gruelling non - stop "Flying Scotsman" run between London and Edinburgh.

The record for continuous running is held by the "Gladiateur," another "Pacific" locomotive. This engine operated an average of 393¾ miles daily for fifty-five consecutive days, hauling the down "Flying Scotsman" on alternate days. The weight of the train was frequently over 500 tons, but good time was kept throughout.

Introducing Speckled Trout.

Successful introduction of eastern speckled trout into the former barren waters of the Medicine - Maligne lake system in the famous Jasper National Park in Alberta has been one of the recent interesting and important activities of the Biological Control Division of the Department of Marine and Fisheries.

MAKING SLOW PROGRESS.

Maoris Being Encouraged to Persevere In Farming Efforts.

A report just presented to Parliament shows that some progress is being made in the long and difficult business of turning the Maori into a successful farmer. The Maori communal system of land tenure, and the effects of the contact of the race with white civilization, makes this a slow process. The natives still own 4,000,000 acres of land in the North Island, a great deal of which is not utilized.

Large areas have been bought by the Crown from the Maoris, and in too many cases the former owners have nothing to show for what they received. It has been part of the life work of Sir Apirana Ngata to teach his people to copy the virtues of the white man, and under his inspiration Maoris on the east coast have become successful farmers.

The report of the Native Department shows that in other parts the cause is progressing. It says that a splendid illustration of the fruits of Maori perseverance under proper guidance is to be found in a Maori-owned dairy factory that last year produced 285 tons of high-grade butter. In several districts many Maoris are supplying factories.

"Some people," says the report, "are apt to consider the Maori as one who is not accustomed to work, but returns recently published by the Government statistician show that out of a population of 54,000 Maoris, including women and children, over 22,000 of these were engaged in various laboring pursuits, at least half being in the primary industries. The Maori land boards are doing what they can to give incentive to agricultural development, and it will be noted from the returns that the advances to Maoris have increased by £80,000, while certain areas of land have been acquired by the boards for native farming purposes."

SELLS OLD HOME.

Old 17th-Century Sporting House to Become a Theatre.

The National Sporting Club of England, which for so many years has been the supreme authority in all matters relating to boxing, is now without a home, and is staging its contests at the Stadium Club, in Holborn. The "N. S. C." has sold the fine old seventeenth-century house in King street, Covent Garden, which has been the headquarters of the manly art, and is searching for new premises. Since the National Sporting Club entered on the tenancy of 43 King street, few alterations have been made—except in that part of the building where boxing contests are held — and the exterior of the house remains as it appeared in sixteenth century prints.

The house was built about 1627, and its most famous occupant was the Earl of Oxford, who is said to have held there the first Cabinet meeting ever convened. In the eighteenth century the house became an hotel. Supper rooms and a music hall followed, and the music hall developed into a place where prize-fights were held.

A notable feature of the house is a fine staircase of carved oak made from the timber of a man-of-war of Nelson's day. There is a magnificent carved by Grinling Gibbons in one of the spacious first floor rooms, and the top part of the house—in which are the servants' sleeping quarters—presents a curious example of a reformers' display in the "Old Look" production of a street in "Old London." Over the doors of the rooms are painted such names as "Ice Cabin," "Sandpit the Grocer," and so on, and the "Pig and Whistle" inn, a past house and stables with an antler's bell outside, also figures in the unusual decorative scheme of wall painting. For site is to be taken up by a theatre building.

Canada's "Fourth."

Oddly enough Independence Day in the United States is also the anniversary of the introduction of ocean steamer service to the world and the re-founding of the greatest merchant marine in all history—the British Merchant Marine.

On July 4th, 1840, Sir Samuel Cunard, then a progressive shipping merchant of Halifax, Nova Scotia, (born there in 1787 of humble United Empire Loyalist parentage) established the world by steaming out of Liverpool, England, bound for America in his famous little old "Britannia," the first steamer to make a regular trans-Atlantic service. This sturdy little "side-wheeler" not only became the foundation for the million tons of shipping operated to-day by the Cunard Line, and the forerunner of the world's fastest liner of to-day, the Cunarder "Mauretania," but also added another chapter to Canada's pioneer role in the history of transportation.

A City of Churches.

The city of Norwich, where the conservative Union recently held its annual conference, has long been a stronghold of Nonconformity, and Queen Elizabeth, when entering Bishop Parker to take action for suppressing "the profane and mainfold sins on Scripture," among private citizens, advised him to "begin at Norwich."

Whether adhering to the Established Church or dissenting forefront, Norwich folk would seem to have been—and perhaps still are—interested in public worship to an exceptional degree, for the city boasts more churches than almost any other in the kingdom, some of them of remarkable beauty.

Hollek 500 Buffalo.

The surplus of the Government buffalo herd in Buffalo National Park at Wainwright, Alta., were reduced by 500 animals recently. The meat, hides, and heads were sold.

Muskrats for Breeding.

Canada is now shipping muskrats for breeding purposes to France, Great Britain, Germany, and Czechoslovakia.

CANADA-ARGENTINA

DOMINION WILL HAVE LARGEST PAVILION AT FAIR.

British Empire Trade Exhibition Is the First "All-British" Show Ever Staged In a Foreign Country—Part.

Canada's participation in the British Empire Trade Fair at Buenos Aires, Argentina, in the Spring of 1931, will be of a dignified nature, as befitting the largest and oldest Dominion in the British Commonwealth of Nations, and is calculated to further cement the commercial and national friendship which exists between Canada and the Republic of Argentina. The Canadian pavilion is to be the largest individual pavilion in the fair grounds and will have a frontage of over 210 feet in one of the choicest locations of the world-famous Palermo Park where the exhibition is to be staged. The Canadian pavilion is to be placed at the Canada Creek broad approach, flanked by grass slopes, trees and flower beds. On either side of the approach are buildings which are being refaced to give the appearance of an old English village of the Tudor type. With this setting the Canadian building, however, will stand out in relief in a more modern architectural design with a striking facade of a dignified appearance, and housing, what is planned to be, one of the most striking exhibits of Canadian commercial and industrial aggressiveness, says an article in Power Age.

Palermo Park, which is in the heart of the city of Buenos Aires, is the home of the Argentine Rural Society which annually stages its stock and agriculturni shows, considered to be the biggest and most important of their kind in the world. The permanent show buildings are being adapted for the British Empire Trade Fair and the pavilion secured by Canada is being remodelled. When remodelled, the pavilion will be a striking monument of Canadian dignity and aggressiveness.

The British Empire Trade Exhibition is the first "All-British" show ever staged in a foreign country and promises to be the biggest and most comprehensive exhibition ever held on the South American continent. The staging of the fair, which is intended to be solely representative of the British Empire and its manufactures, synchronizes with a determined effort on the part of British and Canadian manufacturers to further develop trade with South America. Buenos Aires, which is the most important city in South America, having a population of approximately two and a half millions and controlling approximately eighty per cent. of the total purchasing power of the whole continent of South America, is the logical location for such an exhibition. Buenos Aires is generally known as the "Show Window of South America," and competes favorably in splendor with Paris, Vienna and other European cities of note. Canada is committed to an aggressive and expanding trade policy in relation to the South American markets. The inauguration last year of the Canadian National Steamship services from Canadian Atlantic ports to Buenos Aires and other South American ports was one of the main steps in carrying out this policy, by making available to Canadian manufacturers a direct shipping service to the best advantage to a large proportion of the South American markets. Furthermore, through the establishment of additional trade commissioners' offices, the possibilities of South American markets are being more extensively examined by a staff of experts, who are recording, for the benefit of Canadian exporters the most advantageous methods of securing a fair share of the trade of these countries. In Buenos Aires, Major E. L. McColl has been instrumental in greatly increasing Canada's trade prestige and has been taking an active part in promoting the British Empire Trade Fair. Major McColl visited Canada recently and interviewed hundreds of manufacturers on the possibilities of enlarging their trade connections with Argentina, Chile and Uruguay.

Under A. S. Blackney, Canadian Trade Commissioner at Rio de Janeiro, the further possibilities of the Brazilian market for Canadian goods are being carefully investigated. In the past few months additional offices have been opened at Lima, Peru, under G. R. Stevens, whose territory is the Republic of Bolivia, and Ecuador, and at Panama City, Panama, under J. A. Strong, whose territory takes in Venezuela and Colombia.

Canadian exports to South American countries in the fiscal year ended March, 1929, totalled $22,680,000 as compared with $27,400,000 in the preceding year. Imports from these countries totalled $26,500,000 in the past fiscal year.

Canada's Record.

Although Canada possesses only about one-half of one per cent. of the world's population, says the weekly report of Stobie-Furlong-Matthews, Minneapolis, the Dominion produces about 9 per cent. of the world's wheat; over 10 per cent. of the world's oats; nearly 10 per cent. of the world's gold and silver; 15 per cent. of the world's nickel; over 90 per cent. of the world's asbestos. Canada has 16 per cent. of the world's known coal resources and a large part of its asbestos and nickel. It ranks third in the production of eighth in cheese production and fifth in that of butter. The quality of its wheat is famous.

Whale Oil.

Some 16,000 barrels of whale oil were produced during the whaling season at the two British Columbia plants of the Consolidated Whaling Company, Ltd., the result of operations of a fleet of six hunting vessels and a 2,650-ton tender. Among the 384 whales taken were a record number of sperms.

KING PLAYING WITH THE FUTURE OF CANADA

As the hustings campaign develops throughout the country in the political craftiness of Mackenzie King in holding the Liberal Party in power since 1921 is coming under close scrutiny.

The cause made the Liberal speakers that he was elected leader in 1919 and has carried the party successfully in three elections, and that he is being stressed as a basis of confidence in his leadership in the present campaign.

The facts, however as now being assembled, are that the success has been founded on two things. They are: his willingness to isolate the Province of Quebec from the rest of Canada on grounds of race and prejudice and his readiness to compromise his party creed in order to gain the voting support of unattached members of parliament and hold the balance of power.

The first point which is being stressed while perhaps of the lesser national importance, is that: Mr. King has never secured a majority of the votes of the Canadian electorate. Even at the Liberal landslide of 1911, the Liberal party took 61 out of 65 seats from that province, the only four seats to go to the Opposition being overwhelmingly English-speaking. The same result followed in 1926.

Prejudice of race and patronage by King Government adherents have accomplished that result, according to early campaign speeches, not by party orators, but by unattached individuals who have thrown themselves into the campaign, protesting that such conduct, together with the loudly proclaimed doctrine of the bonds of Canada to the Empire by Liberal Leaders, constitutes a very distinct menace to the future of Canada as a unit within the Empire.

This achievement, they contend, is Mr. King's major contribution either as a leader or as a statesman to public life.

DUNNING BUDGET— DEFICIT BUDGET

Proof that the Dunning budget was created only to please as many people as possible before the election, and not for practical purposes, is at last available to the Canadian public in the figures of customs collections for July 1930, just released by the Department of National Revenues.

These figures show that while in May 1929 the Customs revenues amounted to $18,032,420, during May of this year when most of the new tariff schedules were applied, the revenues dropped to $12,373,410.

These figures show a drop of over 25 per cent in Canada's collection of taxes. They indicate that there will be a tremendous deficit in revenues this year to the Liberal Government if it is in power after the election. They show to what extent Mackenzie King and Dunning were prepared to sacrifice the credit of Canada in order to make the tariff schedules should gain them votes.

It is significant that when the Mackenzie King administration brought the budget before the House of Commons in May last there was no mention made of what either expenditures or revenues would be. It is significant in that it means that Canadian King realized that it failed to provide the cost of government, and that he endeavoured to conceal this from the people.

It is equally full of meaning that Mackenzie King in his Brantford speech devoted most of his time to an apologetic defence of the hurriedly adopted measures with which he hopes to reach the vote of the public.

He spent little time in outlining a programme for the country's future and produced nothing which even approached the vivid programme set out by Hon. R. B. Bennett in his speech at Winnipeg.

A comparison of the two speeches shows that the Premier is continually on the defensive while the Conservative leader is actively attacking him on every point of policy or lack of policy which works to the detriment of Canada.

These facts are becoming apparent to all Canadians, and for that reason Conservatives have the utmost faith in their success at the polls.

WHIPPING CREAM — AND THE HOUSEWIFE

There is one failure that no housewife will take the blame for, and that is her inability to whip cream successfully. In her opinion, it is always the fault of the cream. And the dairy industry could save itself a lot of grief by spreading more information about whipping cream.

The type of whipper is a factor of great importance. An egg beater is not a cream whipper. A turbine type of whipper has been found the most satisfactory. In the turbine type the blades revolve at the bottom of the bowl.

Cream should be whipped rapidly. Two or three minutes should be a good average time. Whipping should be stopped at the right time. Over-whipping is the first stage of churning. With a little too much whipping, the whipped cream will be mixed with a large amount of milk draining from it. It is not necessary to whip cream just before using it, as it will keep if stored in a cold place.

One of the most important factors of all is temperature. The temperature of the cream at whipping time should be forty degrees, if possible; certainly not above fifty.

But the average housewife knows none of these things, because she has not been told, and when the cream does not rise as it should, she blames the Milk Man.

A school teacher was very much annoyed by the continued mischievousness of one of her boys.

At last she exclaimed in exasperation, "I wish I could be your mother for about a week!"

"Very well, I will speak to father about it," responded the lad, coolly.

LENNOX W. I. ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Lennox District Women's Institute was held in the United Church, Odessa, on Tuesday, June 17th. Mrs. F. Ham presided. After the opening exercises a warm welcome was extended to those gathered there, by Mrs. J. A. Young, the president of the Conway Women's Institute. Mrs. Cummings replied in fitting terms. Mrs. Ham then reported on her annual visits to the different branches that in one and all she had been well received and was pleased to note the progress that was being made.

After a brief period of community singing Mrs. A. D. Young presented the financial statement, which showed all obligations met and a small balance in the bank to the credit of the Institute. After the reading of the minutes Mrs. Powell of Napanee gave two of her ever popular recitations. Reports were then given Mrs. a MacGee, of Addiphinston gave the report of the committee on historial research. Mrs. W. Kellar, Ernestown, reported on agriculture and Mrs. Alderson, of Napanee reported on home economics and Mrs. Stevenson, Bath, reported on community activities. All these reports covered the work of the year as well as made some very helpful suggestions.

Miss Babcock gave a short address on immigration in which she pleaded for a better and more sympathetic understanding of the newcomer in the community. In this connection she paid a tribute to the work done by Mrs. Parks of Napanee in the Travellers Aid Society.

Miss McMillan, of Violet, in the absence of Mrs. E. Wright, gave the report on the health activities of the organization. Mrs. N. Smith reported for relief. This concluded the morning session and the meeting adjourned to the basement of the church when lunch was served.

Afternoon Session

The afternoon session opened with solos by Mrs. Swales, of Strathcona, entitled "Home and Country."

Mrs. J. B. Miller, honorary president then addressed the meeting. At this the annual election of officers took place with the following result:

Honorary Presidents—Mrs. J. B. Miller, Mrs. F. Hamm.

President—Mrs. Ernest Wright, Violet. Mrs. Wright will be assisted in the discharge of the following executive: First vice-president, Mrs. S. Loynes, Napanee; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Reid, Bobcaygeon; Addiphinstown; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. A. P. Young, Bath; federated member, Mrs. F. Hamm, Bath; district delegate, Mrs. W. Fretts, Napanee.

Two resolutions were then presented and passed as follows:—

(1) Presented by Mrs. W. Fretts: "Whereas, the Women's Institute organization is interested in national life whose motto is for "Home and Country" and whereas the Womens Institute contributed to the welfare of our soldiers when overseas. Be it resolved that we feel we should show our respect for those who fell in our defence by taking part in the annual decoration of the graveyards in our county town. And that we ask each branch not only to contribute to a fund for this purpose, but to have each branch represented."

Mrs. Fretts, Mrs. Powell and Mrs. A. P. Young were selected as a committee to take steps for necessary action, and each branch promised the contribution required (1.00).

(2) Presented by Mrs. F. Hamm: "Resolved, that the Ernestown Branch and Lennox District implore the Government to establish full account of the country districts of Ontario, so that rural men, women and children may have clinics for free health examination and advice."

A musical number was then given by Mrs. R. Humphrey and Mrs. B. Humphrey, of Adolphustown.

Mrs. A. E. Huffman, of Moscow Federated Provincial Board, representative then gave a very interesting address in which he solicited a greater interest on the part of the women in the Royal Winter Fair and the Canadian National Exposition. Mrs. Loynes of her work on publicity, and seeing adjourned after accepting invitation of Violet to meet there year.

OBITUARY.

JAMES ALBERT AMEY

Much regret was expressed by the many friends and neighbours of the late Major Amey when it was known he had passed away June 11th. Although in poor health for some time, the end came very suddenly and peacefully. Major Amey attended the Military School in Kingston about the year 1863, and graduated with first class certificate. Soon after he was appointed lieutenant in the 49th B. Battalion with Lieut.-Col Fowler, of Amherst Island. After serving as lieutenant he was promoted to Captain with Lieut.-Col. Fairfield of Bath. When Lieut.-Col. Fairfield resigned, Major Amey's Company with several other companies of the 46th Battalion, joined with the 47th, making a company with the Hon. George N. Kirkpatrick serving with Lieut. - Colonels Hunter, Cox and Mather after taking a military course in Toronto.

He stood ready, with his Company, to serve in the Riel Rebellion in 1870 and again in 1885. A gentleman of fine physique, a most popular ambassador officer, and attended many camps in Kingston, as well as three in Cobourg, and one each in Odessa, Gananoque, sending his resignation he was presented with a long service and good conduct medal, of which he was very proud. In politics he was a Conservative and a life-long attendant of the United Church. Reverend G. MacKenzie, of Yarker and Rev. R. W. Spencer, of Camden East, conducted the service at the house. Mr. F. F. Bell, of Desmond, sang a beautiful solo and his favorite hymn: "Nearer My God to Thee," and "Abide With Me" were also sung.

The funeral, which was very largely attended, was under the Masonic Order of which he was a respected member. The flowers were lovely.

He is survived by one brother, a son, John Amey and family of Buffalo, N.Y. and his wife, formerly Miss Lucy Wheeler to whom he was married twenty-five years ago, and who has been most attentive and helpful. Much sympathy is extended to the family.

LENNOX WOMEN'S LIBERAL MEETING

The women of the Liberal Party of the Lennox Division of Prince Edward-Lennox, held a very enthusiastic meeting on Thursday afternoon, June 25th, in the ladies' committee rooms, over the men's Liberal committee rooms. Mrs. W. G. Fretts acted as chairman. Mrs. Van Blaricom, of Picton, was called upon to outline the work which the ladies should do in helping with the campaign. Election of officers was proceeded with, resulting as follows:—Hon. President, Mrs. J. H. Madden and Mrs. G. W. Gilchard; President, Mrs. Alma Thompson; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. W. G. Fretts; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. W. D. Roblin; Secretary, Mrs. James Clark, Treasurer, Mrs. C. W. Bowen.

Standing committee to be appointed at next call of the ladies.

Mr. W. H. Benson, the Liberal Candidate for Prince-Edward Lennox was introduced and addressed the meeting.

Short remarks were given by Mrs. N. B. Miller, of Napanee and Mrs. Wood of Picton, after which Mrs. VanBlaricom gave a very interesting address.

Daughter of British Premier Christens New Canadian Ship

IN 1867 — the year when the separate parts of Canada were united into one Dominion — the United States bought Alaska from Russia for a bit over seven million dollars. The purchase, considered by many an extravagant one, came to be known as "Seward's Folly," after the secretary of State who was its chief advocate.

Now in 1930, 63 years later, the daughter of a British prime minister, at Birkenhead, England, christens a Canadian ship to carry tourist visitors to the land once known as the barren home of the lonely fur trade but recognized to-day as one of the most picturesque and inspiring of holiday grounds.

The top picture shows Isbel MacDonald, daughter of Britain's first labor prime minister, launching the CNS "Prince Henry," constructed by the Canadian National Steamships to supplement its Pacific Coast service of the CNS Prince George and Prince Rupert from Vancouver and Prince Rupert, B.C., through the popular Inside Passage, to Alaskan ports. Additional steamships for this run have been made necessary by the steady growth in the number of American travellers each year.

Two other vessels, the Prince Robert and the Prince David, will be completed in the next few months and will be put on the run between Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle. All the ships will sail from England to their home port, Vancouver, through the Panama Canal. The Prince Henry will make its first sailing to the north on July 3, calling at Prince Rupert and Skagway.

Have You Heard These?

Mr. Cecil Hunt has collected another entertaining book full of "Fresh Hostlers." It is a mine of laughs in a line or two, taken from the seriously intended answers of school-children. Here are just a few of them:

People go about Venice in gorgon-oodles.

A polygon is a man who has many wives.

A brunette is a young bear.

Ambiguity means having two wives living at the same time.

All brutes are imperfect animals; man alone is a perfect brute.

Matrimony is a place where souls suffer for a time on account of their sins.

The Pope issued a Bull decomposing Elizabeth.

The Normans introduced a Frugal System.

A figure of speech is a way of talking or writing by which you say what you don't mean and yet mean what you say.

Notice Five Before It—There are many who have been afflicted with sorrow and have driven them away with Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. A similarly troubled mind is no time to apply—but this splendid remedy as there is nothing like it to be had. It is cheap but its power is in no way expressed by its low price.

"Hours before I get home from work," said a man in court "I have a feeling that tells me whether my wife is going to ask for me." The qualm before the storm.

A pleasant Medicine for children is Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator, and it is excellent for driving worms from the system.

A young woman entered a crowded tramcar during a rush hour. Immediately a Jew rose to surrender his seat to her. Before she could take it, however, a young man jumped himself into it.

The Jew looked at him in disgusted silence.

"What's the matter?" demanded the irate man. "What are you glaring at me for? You look as if you could eat me."

The Jew shook his head and calmly answered, "I am a Jew."

Keep Douglas' Egyptian Liniment handy. A sure, speedy, remedy for burns scalds, felons, blood poisoning, soft corns, warts, scald feet. Invaluable for inflammation and muscular rheumatism.

One small boy said to another: "Why don't you ever go to our church?"

"We belong to a different abomination," said the other.

Persian Balm creates lovely complexions. Velvety smooth. Cools and refreshes the skin. Makes it delightfully soft-textured. Alluringly fragrant. Delightful to use. Swiftly absorbed by the tissues, imparting the elusive charm so distinctive of the dainty woman. Persian Balm protects the delicate skin. Preserves and enhances the loveliest complexion. Every discriminating woman should use this silvery lotion. It is unrivalled as a flawless aid to beauty.

Mother: Why did you strike your little sister?

Young Bobby: Well, we were playing Adam and Eve, and instead of tempting me with the apple, she ate it herself.

"The man who gives in when he knows he is right is weak," says a novelist. Or, of course married!

HARD ON BABY HOT JULY DAYS

July—the month of oppressive heat; red-hot days and sweltering nights; is extremely hard on little ones. Diarrhoea, dysentry colic and cholera infantum carry off thousands of precious little lives every summer. The mother must be on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they come on suddenly to fight them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during the hot summer as is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the bowels and stomach and an occasional dose given to the well child will prevent summer complaint, or if the trouble does come suddenly will banish it. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Brockville, Ontario.

New Nova Scotian Hotel, Halifax

THE Nova Scotian Hotel of the Canadian National Railways at Halifax, which will shortly be opened will give the Canadian National Railways an up-to-date hotel adjoining their terminal station and will provide a needed facility for the travelling public. The hotel has 160 bedrooms, each with bath, besides the necessary complement of public rooms. A feature of the new hotel is the large garage which has been provided in the basement of the hotel, where tourists may store their cars while remaining in the city or while visiting other parts of the province by train. The hotel connects with the new modern terminal and from its roof gardens furnishes remarkable scenic views both to the harbor and the landward side. Constructed of Nova Scotia brick and stone, in the Georgian style of architecture, the Nova Scotian has many pleasing features about it. One of these, the radio broadcasting studio on the eighth floor, will give to Halifax a radio voice in the national broadcasts of the Canadian National System. Visitors to Canada, entering the Dominion through the Halifax gateway will receive a splendid first impression of the country when they step from the train into this magnificent building which is connected with the station, permitting the passenger to reach his hotel room without having to step outside into the open air from the time of leaving the train.

Astonishing Guns Shoot Food to Eat

Wheat and rice grains given their most nutritious form

HERE are wheat and rice grains shot from guns! To give them a new deliciousness . . . a more perfect digestibility.

First the choice, plump grains are sealed in guns. Then revolved in fiery ovens. Then fired. This causes 125 million explosions in every grain. It blasts open every tiny food cell. Thus every particle of the grain is made completely digestible as though it had been cooked for hours. And so Puffed Wheat and Puffed Rice attain the utmost nourishment of hot cooked cereals.

And what new flavoriness . . . what delicious, crisp crunchiness . . . this wonderful invention brings to wheat and rice. The grains are puffed to 8 times normal size. They taste like sweet new nutmeats. They entice as grain foods never have before.

Serve Puffed Wheat and Puffed Rice every day in every way you can. Your family deserves this finer kind of nourishment. Your grocer has Puffed Wheat and Puffed Rice. The Quaker Oats Company.

"TAKE-ALL" TAKES ALL

Of all the fungous diseases affecting wheat "Take-All", or foot-rot, is the most destructive, observes the Dominion Botanist of the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa. The actual loss caused by it is far greater than by any other single disease, rust included, or perhaps a combination of all known fungous diseases affecting wheat. A peculiar thing about this disease is that it appears only once in a series of years. Fortunately for Canada the exercise of proper care and the wholehearted support of Western farmers have kept the disease from becoming seriously established in Canada.

A REAL NERVE TONIC

Is a Bountiful Supply of Rich, Health-Giving Blood.

Sufferers from nervous debility find themselves tired, low-spirited and unable to keep their minds on anything. They are totally unfit to perform their everyday duties.

Doctoring the nerves with sedatives is a terrible mistake. The only real nerve tonic is a good supply of rich, red blood. To secure this rich, red blood Dr. Williams Pink Pills should be taken. Enriching and purifying the blood is their whole mission. Concerning them Mrs. Albert Bentley, Bancroft, Ont., writes: "Two years ago I was a complete wreck; in bed for seven months; extremely nervous, had no color. Nothing I tried seemed to help me till I began Dr. Williams Pink Pills. My condition at once improved, and today I am well and able for anything without fatigue or trouble."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

PAPER MULCH PAYS

Considerable benefit was secured from paper mulch, observes W. R. Leslie Superintendent of the Morden, Manitoba, Experimental Station of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. He adds "the work is still in a preliminary stage and no definite conclusions can be drawn as yet but it would appear that much paper may stimulate growth to a very considerable degree during dry seasons. In its use much work is entailed and it will probably find favour among market gardeners specializing in hot weather crops and among home gardeners who take prolonged vacations during the growing season. Much paped simplifies the weed problem."

A BETTER SERVICE

The Poultry Division of the Live Stock Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture have established a market report service to publish semi-monthly reports of conditions in the leading foreign egg markets. The egg market report service also includes a survey of the poultry situation throughout the United States in the United Kingdom and other foreign markets. As developments of interests arise.

EDISON DRINKS MILK TO MAINTAIN HEALTH

A recently published newspaper interview with Mr. Edison contains the statement that he is living on a diet of milk and fruit. Of him with the following statement: "When I was a baby I was fed exclusively on milk and distilled water. I have gone back to milk since." An article in one of the leading magazines based upon interviews with Mr. and Mrs. Edison gives the following about Mr. Edison's diet:

"In January of last year," he is quoted as saying, "I am going to go on a fruit diet and nothing else. He went on a milk diet and stayed on it. Two glasses of milk and two hours. He can't remember the chances with his health. He has had too much to do.

THE PRIVATE AIR-GARAGE.

To Be a Common Feature of English Country Homes.

In a few years the private air-garage will be a common feature of the English country house. There are some 700 owners-pilots of light planes, and many of them are contemplating building hangars, says a correspondent of Toronto Saturday Night. A comparatively small hangar is needed for this type of machine, as the wings can be made to fold back along the body. Hotels and golf clubs are also being approached to provide landing space and hangars for their clients and members, while the Automobile Association is busily organizing facilities for the motorist-airplane owner.

The Duchess of Bedford, who recently made air history by flying to India and back in a week, has built an air garage for her Moth airplane at her new country home at Stedham, near Midhurst, Sussex. "Wispers" is the picturesque name of the beautiful old half-timbered house which the duchess is having modernized. A large field beside the house has been laid out as a landing ground, while a hangar and huge petrol tank to hold several hundred gallons of fuel have been built. Frequently the villagers see the duchess's tiny airplane drop out of the blue, plane gracefully down to make a neat landing, and taxi up to its garage. Out jumps the duchess with agility which is amazing for a woman of sixty-three. She strolls across to the house to see the progress the workmen are making while her Moth is being refuelled, and then dies off to be back in London for lunch.

"In these days a landing field and a hangar are as necessary to a country house as an ordinary motor garage," declares the duchess. "That is why, when I took over my new house, I insisted on having a landing ground. I have had it made large enough to house a larger machine which I may buy in the future."

This is the second landing owned by the duchess, for she frequently alights at Woburn Abbey, her Bedfordshire seat, where she can taxi her machine up to the front door of the house.

EMPIRE DAY.

Was Virtually Established In 1903 by the Late Lord Meath.

Lord Meath, who died in London recently, will always be chiefly remembered as the founder of the Empire Day movement, in Great Britain at any rate. It was in 1890 that the idea first occurred to him, says the Toronto Saturday Night. His attention was arrested by public ignorance of Imperial affairs, and he at once set to work to put this right. Lord Meath used to claim that Empire Day was virtually established in 1893, when he gave £50 to the London School Board for the purchase of Union Jacks to back up the teaching of Empire history. May 24 was fixed upon as Empire Day because it was the birthday of Queen Victoria, and this helped to recommend the movement to the Dominions.

The celebration of Empire Day took root in Canada about 1897, after agitation by Mrs. Fessenden, of Hamilton, Ont., who had independently conceived the same idea, and by the time that Australia gave official attention to it in 1905 nearly all the overseas Dominions had taken it up. Official recognition of Empire Day in Great Britain was withheld until Imperial relationships were more deeply stirred by the war.

It was a proud day for Lord Meath when in 1916 the Marquess of Crewe announced in the House of Lords that the King had officially sanctioned the observance of Empire Day by the display of the Union Jack to be flown on all public buildings within the United Kingdom on May 24. It is estimated that Empire Day is now formally celebrated in at least 75,000 of the Empire's schools.

Bested Bernard Shaw.

The latest story about George Bernard Shaw concerns the secretary of a women's labor organization, who, while asking him if he would be kind enough to present to the members a copy of his book on Socialism, Mr. Shaw scribbled at the foot of her letter a note to the effect that if the members couldn't find between them the money to buy his book he was hanged if he'd give it to them.

The indignant secretary threw the letter into her wastepaper basket. Then, a little later, she had a brain wave. She retrieved the crumpled missive, smoothed out the creases, wrote a post iron, and took it to a well-known London dealer, who bought a book three months later the then met, and she asked him how much he had saved. "About thirty shillings," said he. "Well," she replied, with a blush, "I reckon that's near enough."

Ontario's Hydro.

More than 1,100 miles of new hydro power lines in rural Ontario have been constructed during 1929, in addition to the 4,000 miles already in operation. The new lines, the Hydro Commission announces, will serve 6,700 consumers.

Horses In Australia.

There are now over 2,250,000 horses in Australia.

"I have been visiting England for twenty years," said the American, "but have never found the smart business men we have in New York."

The Englishman was nettled. "No," he replied, "you will find that sort in prison here."

UNIVERSAL METAL.

Strength, New Alloy, Hard as Steel, Resists Light In Weight.

A metal harder than a steel knife blade, stronger than the steel wires used for fine piano soundings, as priceless as gold or platinum, and as light as aluminum not only would be a great boon to modern industrial civilization, but is very likely to be supplied, according to Dr. Zay Jeffries, president of the American Society for Steel Treatment.

Even now, metallurgists can obtain almost any single property that they want by selecting some metal, says Popular Science Monthly. Chromium and the new alloy called carbolloy are very hard. Vanadium steel and other iron alloys are strong and tough. Tungsten and osmium are exceedingly heavy. Aluminum, magnesium and the still newer beryllium are very light. Nickel, tantalum and other metals are good resisters of corrosion. What Dr. Jeffries hopes for is to find one metal with all these characteristics or with most of them.

Probably the future universal metal, competent for nearly all metallic uses, will be an alloy. The properties of the pure metallic elements are apt to be unchangeable. Mixtures and alloys mean possibilities of useful alteration. In the aluminum alloy, duralumin, the metal now so largely used for aircraft, small additions of copper and other metals make the luminum, which in its pure state is quite soft, as hard and strong as many kind of steel. Meanwhile, the lightness of the aluminum is retained.

FISHY FACTS.

Oyster Produces About 400,000 Eggs Annually.

The tree-climbing crab is to be found in the West Indies. Being particularly fond of cocoanuts, he climbs the trees in search of them, and also tears off with his great pincer claws.

Oysters are very nervous creatures; a sudden thunder-clap will kill many hundreds of them. It has been calculated that an oyster produces about 400,000 eggs annually, of which only about 400 reach maturity.

Limpets do not manufacture a kind of "glue" by which they stick; they adhere simply by the power of suction. A limpet measuring two inches, or even less, can withstand a pull of more than 56 pounds.

The herring spawns altogether some 30,000 eggs on an average, but barely one in 2,000 of these lives to any size.

The sturgeon lays seven million eggs during its lifetime.

The most speedy fish is the tarpon, which is able to move at the rate of 80 m.p.h. Sharks can manage 50 m.p.h. when the occasion demands it, while the humble trout ambles along at the rate of 20 m.p.h.

The finnan haddock got its name because it was cured at the village of Findon, or Finnan, near Aberdeen, one of the chief ports in the kingdom, where it was first landed.

First Sidewalks of Paris.

It is just a hundred years ago since platforms along bridges, quays and streets for the convenience of pedestrians began to appear in Paris. It was then that they began to provide sidewalks for the boulevards which were the chief arteries of the capital.

It is an odd fact, but the name existed before the thing. It is to be found in Montaigne, with a very special sense. "To mount the sid-walk" was equivalent to appearing on the scene. Voltaire and Cartaud-Delavigne both employ the word in the sense of a road to fame and fortune. In 1829 the Parisian boul-vards were first built of Volvic lava, then, despite the high price of the material, of granite. But it was soon discovered that however hard the granite and lava might be, they were quickly worn down by the shoes of the walkers. It was then that they began to use asphalt. The first order of the prefect of the Seine regulating the width of the sidewalks is dated April 14, 1784.

A Drag on Indian Children.

While children are brighter than Indian children not so much because of their better breeding as because of more favorable home and social conditions, is the conclusion of Dr. T. R. Garth of the University of Denver, says Science Service.

The mixture of white blood in an Indian does little to raise his intellectual standard, Dr. Garth has found. Comparing the average intelligence of full-blood Indians, he found that the average for the Indian child is 70. The average for Indians with one-quarter white blood mixed in, that is, half-breeds, is 75, and those with three-fourths white blood rate 77. The increase is not very appreciable to racial admixture is thus very slight.

Education and opportunity, on the other hand, mean a great deal to the Indian, as they mean a great deal to the Negro, Dr. Garth pointed out.

Disguised as an Arab.

How a French officer spent many years in the desert disguised as an Arab is recalled by the erection of a monument to her in Paris a few weeks ago.

She was Isabelle Eberhardt, an authoress who died a year ago. The daughter of a French soldier in Africa, she became enamored of the life of the Arab and, disguising herself as one of them, lived for years under the name of Si Mahmoud, without her nationality or sex being suspected.

OLD SOL CAUSES STATIC?

Sun-spots' Influence

Jumping from the sun to the earth, it is well known that the short radio waves which carry the greater bulk of the trans-oceanic wireless telegraph and telephone traffic of the world, owe their capability for long distance travel to the existence of an overhead conducting layer of air. Situated at a distance of perhaps 50 to 100 miles above the earth's surface, this air, under the influence of the light and electricity transmitted from the sun, becomes an excellent reflector for short radio waves.

How Short Waves Travel

These waves, passing obliquely upwards from the transmitting stations, reach the overhead reflecting layer and are bounced back to the earth, often at very great distances. Were it not for the existence of the overhead reflector of air the waves would pass out into the empty spaces beyond the earth's atmosphere and be lost forever, unless perchance picked up by inhabitants of another planet who happened to be just like the people of this earth and likewise to have invented the radio.

Obviously the better the overhead reflector the more accurate and satisfactory is the transmission of the short radio waves and the reception of the messages they carry. On the other hand, distorted, turbulent and erratic overhead reflecting layers lead to less satisfactory long distance radio reception, with "fading" and static disturbances resulting from weak signals.

Eliminate Short Static

Sunspots are believed to cause magnetic disturbances on the earth, for when a magnetic storm arises compasses change their normal positions. Similarly sunspots must cause some change in the nature of the overhead reflector. It is assumed, therefore, that there is a close relationship between magnetic storms on the earth and periods of disturbed short wave radio reception. It is also thought by some engineers that by careful selection of the short wave length location and mode of transmission at the transmitting end, and by similar precautions at the receiving end, the effect of magnetic storms on international broadcasting may be considerably reduced if not entirely eliminated.

News and Information For the Farmer

More Onions Planted

Fully 1600 acres in the Dover,Erieau, Jeanette's Creek and Leamington districts are under crop for onions this year, according to a survey recently completed. Last year the acreage in these districts amounted to 1190 acres, the increase this season being due to the Dover farmers going in more extensively for this crop. On the basis of last year, this year's acreage should yield about 350,000 bags.

Interest Developed in Dairying

Two Ontario counties have recently shown an increased interest in the dairy cow which bids very well indeed for the dairy industry in the province. In Northumberland, the agricultural representative, Walter H. Smith, has persuaded Mr. Chambers, the Provincial Dairy Products Inspector at Belleville to open an office to assist his dairy farmers. At the beginning of the work twenty-one samples were taken for testing and the new office promises to become a very useful adjunct to the department. In Leeds county the dairymen have arranged to hold a number of meeting of farmers sending milk to various groups of factories with the idea of improving the quality of the milk submitted for cheese-making.

Changes in Representatives

R. S. Duncan director of the Representatives Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture has announced several changes in the personnel of his department. Ian McLeod B. S. A. who has been assistant representative in Huron for the past year has been appointed agricultural representative for that county with headquarters at Clinton to succeed George A. McGugan, who has resigned. Ralph Doherty, B.S.A. formerly assistant representative of Wellington County has been appointed quarters at Orangeville to succeed Mr. Campbell Lamont. In Renfrew County Arthur H. Martin will be succeeded by Frank G. Dench, formerly assistant representative in Grey County. Mr. Martin has been appointed assistant director of the crops, Co-Operation and Markets Branches at the Parliament Buildings. The following assistant representatives have been appointed: Essex, F. R. McClellan, B. S. A.; Huron, A. E. Barr, B.S.A.; Grey A. V. Langdon, B.S.A.; Wentworth, H. L. Atkinson, B.S.A.; Wellington, H. L. Fair, B.S.A.

Grubs and Strawberry Plants

A new strawberry plantation is likely to come to grief if it is on sod land where white grubs make their home. At least two vegetable crops should be taken from the land before the strawberry plants are set out. June beetles lay their eggs commonly in grassy land and the white grubs which hatch from them require two more years to develop. In newly ploughed sod, therefore there will be some half-grown larvae. In the year following, they will be nearly full grown and very voracious and strawberry roots are a favorite food with the result that the entire plantation may be easily wiped out.

Tests on Alfalfa

Satisfactory yields of alfalfa are fairly common in many parts of Ontario yet may farmers are anxious to find means of increasing the production of this highly valuable legume and of strengthening the crop. It is a well known fact that alfalfa makes use of large quantities of potash but just what quantities of suitable fertilizers will be best to apply to it, is a question in which many practical farmers are interested. In an attempt to answer this important question, a very interesting test is being worked out by the Department of Chemistry, Ontario Agricultural College, in co-operation with R. E. White, Agricultural Representative in Newmarket, on the farm of Earl Toole, Newmarket.

Grapes and Soy Beans

Elgin Senn, assistant manager of the Border Cities Chamber of Commerce at a recent meeting in Essex county said that it would be well for that county to go in for the cultivation of soy beans and grapes which are in high demand and can be easily grown there. Recently he had learned that a Border Winery had brought in five hundred tons of grapes from the Niagara District last year. Soy beans are a different proposition. The value of the crop is two-fold. The bean carries a valuable oil which is used in the manufacture of paint, etc. And the residue after the oil has been extracted makes a better hog feed than the original seed. "Exploitation of the soy bean would have a telling effect on Essex agriculture." Mr. Senn declared emphatically. It is not, unlikely that the advice of Mr. Senn might be applicable to other parts of Ontario.

Labor-Saving Devices

Already a great deal of discussion has been indulged in by poultry raisers concerning the use of electricity in producing more eggs per hen. However the use of "electric daylight" is not the only way in which this useful commodity can be employed on the farm. With the increased use of rural hydro power, electric labor saving devices will be in more general use and the day is not far distant when electricity will run the farm as completely as it now runs the modern factory.

Compete for Donation

Announcement is made by J. Lockie Wilson superintendent of the Agricultural Societies Branch that the A. J. H. Eckardt donation will be competed for in 1930 at the following county fairs: Russell, Kingston Industrial, Robbins Mills, Victoria, Simcoe, Lincoln, Norfolk, Lambton, Elgin, Bruce, Halibarton, Niplssing.

It will also be competed for at Agricultural Societies' Fairs in York County as follows: Aurora, Agincourt, Markham, Richmond Hill, Schomberg, Sutton, Woodbridge.

Inter-County Visiting

Farmers' excursions from Welland, Wellington, Kent, Lambton and Essex are visiting Norfolk County this summer. As a writer in the Farmers' Sun remarks: "If the time and gasoline can be spared and the trip is well-planned, this inter-county visiting seems to be a promising development. There are few of us who cannot learn something by observing what farmers in other parts of the province are doing and how they do it. Norfolk can show most counties something in growing apples. Oxford can give most some pointers in dairy farming; West Middlesex knows how to grow potatoes and other specialtions have their strong as well as weak points.

Plow in July

"Plow in July while it's dry" is the slogan adopted by farmers of Wellington County in their combat to eliminate the "Million Dollar Menace" the sow thistle. The method described by Ralph Clemens agricultural representative, is perhaps the best adapted to the poorly drained heavy clay soils on which sow thistle best thrives. A modern two-furrow plow is used. Crawls by four horses or a tractor. The bay is gotten off early and the land is plowed while dry to a depth of six or eight inches. The clods thus turned up, if left for a few days will dry out so that the sun and air will kill perhaps 70 per cent of the sow thistle roots. After a week, if rain has not intervened, a heavy brood-toothed cultivator or spring tine is used to expose all the roots to the killing effects of heat and drouth.

ADOLPHUSTOWN MAPLE LEAFS 6, ADOLPHUSTOWN 5

The two Adolphustown teams played good ball on Wednesday, June 25th and though the losers tried hard to score in the last three innings they could not bring the count over five. The Maple Leafs hit Bill Prout in the first three innings, to score all their runs and when Jack Prout relieved him in the fifth, that ended the scoring. Gay Addison pitched six and two-third innings and gave the Adolphustown a fine lead; time after time until the seventh when Joe Lavack and Howard Garrison scored for Adolphustown. C. Laverne relieved and held them down then on, the Maple Leafs winning by a score of six to five. There were five errors on either side in spite of the fast diamond and until the last man was out, the game was exciting and contested. The Adolphustown team lived up to advance notices as a smart fielding team, but some are woefully weak at the bat. Both teams are worth watching.

SOCIAL NEWS

Luncheon

Among the many delightful parties given in honor of Miss Margaret Daly, whose marriage is to take place on July 12th, was the luncheon given at the home of Mrs. W. B. Herrington, Mrs. T. M. Galbraith being one of the hostesses. The guest of honor wore a lovely frock of powder blue with coat to match, with beige hat and shoes.

Covers were laid for twelve and the luncheon table was beautifully appointed with Venetian lace, pink candles and flowers. The rooms were fragrant with rose-peonies and hellotrope, and the after noon was spent in playing bridge. A special prize of an embossed leather book-cover was presented to the guest of honor.

Bridesmaid's Party

Miss Mildred Brown, who is to be one of the bridesmaids at Miss Margaret Daly's wedding, entertained in honour of the bride-to-be, on Thursday evening last. The guests were invited for half past eleven o'clock, the hostess receiving in a gown of blue georgette, and the guest of honor in a starched chiffon of green and biscuit.

There were twelve girl friends present and the evening was charmingly arranged in pink and white, the centre a huge rose-gay, which later broke into individual rose-gay favors for the guests. The evening was spent in playing bridge.

FREE SHOTS ON Local Sport

Verybody thought that Adolphustown was going to beat the Maple Leafs.

* * *

And so did Adolphustown until 5:30 p.m. last Wednesday.

* * *

But the Leafs won and deserved to on the day's play. They had a better team all the way through and made fewer errors.

* * *

The boys from the corner wanted to protest the game because of one or two decisions but have apparently changed their mind. Nobody could have handled the game any better than the official who was in charge.

* * *

In fact the Sorland team are going to find it hard to get umpires for the rest of their games. Wherever a decision goes against them, they forget that the umpire has to call it as he sees it and not the way the visiting team would like him to.

* * *

However, the game was close and provided plenty of thrills for the crowd.

* * *

Four errors cost Forest Mills a game Saturday. They deserved to win on the day's play, but errors at the wrong time are often costly.

* * *

It is unfortunate for the Mills team that Len Hudgins cannot pitch steadily for them. Many rate him one of the best pitchers in the league and he certainly strengthens the team considerably.

* * *

Tamworth's victory over Adolphustown was a surprise to many. Adolphustown led most of the way but the home team rallied in the seventh and overcame a seven-run lead to win.

DOMINION DAY IN NAPANEE

Napanee was fortunate in having the very finest of weather for their celebration yesterday. The thunder showers of the night before had cleared the atmosphere and the sun shone brightly all day. There were the usual crowds in the town to participate in the celebration. Sharply at one o'clock the town band led off from the marks; square and were followed by the children who were entrants in the "Pets' Parade." There were a good many child ren and their pets were all scrubbed and decked out for the occasion. They marched to Wallace's corner where the band circled and played several numbers, then, all together, proceeded by way of Dundas Street to the driving park, where the children having the best appearing pets were awarded prizes.

At one thirty, in the park, the ball game was called. And at two o'clock the baby racing began. At time of going to press, the horses were still at it. The results will be published next week.

In the first baseball game, between Gilbhards and Tamworth, Tamworth came out at the small end of a six-three score. Fraser and Bradley pitched for Napanee and Brooks for Tamworth.

In the second game, C. N. R. of Belleville, defeated Sydenham, 9 to0.

POWER OF RIDICULE

Allusions to the effective use of ridicule against his opponents by the late Lord Balfour during the term of his Chief Secretaryship for Ireland recalls an incident of long ago, when a body of convicted prisoners who had been concerned in one of the rebellions of 1848, had to be marched through the streets of Dublin. The authorities had been warned that a desperate attempt at rescue might be made by the mob and then though a military escort had been provided, there was some uneasiness. In these circumstances a really brilliant notion occurred to the officer in command of the troops. He gave instructions at the last moment that the brace buttons on the trousers of the prisoners were to be cut off and thus the "patriots" had to walk through the streets holding up their trousers. The spectacle was greeted with roars of laughter by the crowd, and no more was heard of the attempted rescue.

BAY CIRCUIT WEST W. M. S.

The June meeting of the W. M. S. was held on Friday, June 13th, at 2:30 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Ezra Huffman. The meeting was opened with the singing of the hymn "Wonderful Words of Life," followed with prayer by Rev. J. E. Beckel. The devotional leaflet was read by Mrs. P. Parks and the minutes of the last meeting were read by the Secretary, Mrs. J. E. Robinson. A number paid their fees, with one new member joining, and plans were then made for piecing a quilt. After singing the hymn "The Light of the World is Jesus," Rev. Beckel explained a chapter in the study book, Mrs. Ezra Huffman, Mrs. W. Silver, Mrs. J. E. Robinson and Rev. Beckel then favoured the audience by singing "Face to Face."

Mrs. B. Harrison, returned missionary of Africa, gave a most interesting discourse on the African situation, as seen from a missionary's viewpoint and also told of many of her experiences in Africa.

The meeting was dismissed with prayer, after which a dainty lunch was served and a social time enjoyed.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. B. Gould.

MacDonald; Legislation, Mrs. Albert Lewis; Community Activities, Mrs. J. Hamilton; Relief, Mrs. William Dunn; Historical Research, Mrs. Harry Robinson; Canadian Industries, Mrs. Joe Lewis; Publicity, Mrs. George Smedley.

An instrumental duet was very daintily rendered by Mrs. E. Clark and her little daughter, Miss Eva. A splendid paper on "Agriculture" was given by Mrs. Harold Huff. A Geographical Contest put on by Mrs. A. Robinson proved very interesting as well as intellectual. A reading "Three Cheers for Tobermory," by Mrs. Ed. Hamilton. Our summer series was held at the home of Mrs. George Black. A splendid lecture on "Institute Work in General" was given by Miss Eadie. Owing to bad weather the attendance was not as good as expected.

It was decided our July meeting would be in the form of a picnic, to be held at Springside Park, Napanee, for the members and their families. The date will be announced later.

The President announced our next regular meetings will be "Grandmothers' Day"; at the home of Mrs. William Hinch, Friday, August 1st. A delicious lunch was served by the Entertainment committee and the meeting closed by singing the National Anthem.

CAUTION ADVISED

The Dominion Live Stock Branch continues its advice to the producer to exercise the greatest caution with respect to the movement of livestock to slaughter. The reasons for this are: Consumer purchasing power shows a decline, the export market is comparatively narrow, demand for beef is now on a hand-to-mouth basis, and cold storage supplies are particularly heavy. At the present time 12 percent more beef is in cold storage than for the same time last year, the stock of fresh frozen beef is about 26 per cent heavier, veal is 76 per cent heavier, and lamb and mutton in cold storage shows an increase of 94 per cent over the corresponding period last year.

Persian Balm is a peerless toilet requisite for women who care for charm and distinction. Use it for hands and face.

TEN YEARS OF GOOD HENS

Ten years in operation of the Canadian Record of Performance for Poultry under the supervision of the Dominion Live Stock Branch has resulted in 31,943 banded birds having qualified for R.O.P. certificates, having laid at least 190 eggs during the record year, while an additional 17,907 hens laying 225 eggs or more each during the year, have qualified for R.O.P. Advanced certificates. Record of Performance is a poultry grading system applied to commercial and farm flocks through our Canada through which the real productive qualities of hens is determined and established in tangible form.

PUTTING ONE OVER ON FATHER TIME

The success which has attended the efforts of L. H. Newman, Dominion Cerealist, and his staff at the Central Experimental Farm of the Dominion Department of Agriculture in growing two crops of grain a year, one in the field and the other in the cereal greenhouse, is a fine example of putting one over on father time. The most important work of the Cereal Division is the development of new varieties of cereal and other plants particularly adapted to Canadian conditions and demands. In the Cereal Greenhouse grain harvested from field test plots in the fall is planted again within a month or so, and the work of research and development is carried forward another crop year during the one calendar year. This means in practical result that the breeder has the opportunity of putting over

BACTERIA

Dr. N. MacL. Harris Gives Interesting Lecture on Subject.

Most bacteria are harmless, according to Dr. Norman MacL. Harris, of the Dominion Department of Pensions and National Health, speaking to seventeen hundred children at the National Exhibition, Canada recently. Dr. Harris said that many kinds of bacteria are decidedly beneficial and without some of these we could not live. Without their help we could have neither bread nor butter, and without certain kinds to enrich the soil wheat and potatoes could not grow. Dead horses, cows and cats are ultimately caused to disappear after such agencies as mammals, birds and flies have done their work of getting rid of certain parts of these [illegible] the type of our cities and farms is eventually disposed of by bacteria.

Bacteria, sometimes called germs or microbes, are everywhere in millions. In the earth, and even in the air we breathe and the soil we cultivate. They are on all sorts of [illegible] such as fruit and other foods. The uncanny glow of light sometimes seen in the sea is caused by certain germs.

Plague germs are carried by a flea from a rat to human beings. Some people carry typhoid germs. Dr. Harris showed the children pictures of the minute microbes that cause typhoid, lockjaw, diphtheria, tuberculosis, etc.

Some bacteria have the form of snakes, others that of a base ball and a sausage. If a sausage were magnified as much as the sausage-shaped bacteria that he showed upon the screen he said the sausage would appear to be five miles long. Of some kinds of germs 4,000 placed side by side would measure only one inch and there are kinds that would fill 25,000 and even 50,000 placed end to end to make an inch row.

After his lecture Dr. Harris showed a motion picture of a boy and girl named George and Helen on a visit to a bacteriological laboratory, where they saw germs from water and from [illegible] dirty fingers planted in gelatine, and how they grew in numbers. In two days these tiny germs had multiplied to millions—and their [illegible] had become so large as to be plainly visible to the naked eye.

It is hoped that soon the lectures of the National Musuem of Canada may be supplemented by motion picture film and loaned wherever desired throughout Canada, thus carrying the message that is now available in Ottawa to the people of all the cities and towns of Canada and where over a motion picture projection machine is available.

TRAFALGAR.

Newspaper of Nov. 7, 1805, Records Noteworthy Incidents.

The "Times" of November 7, 1805, contains the official report of Admiral Collingwood, to the Admiralty of the Battle of Trafalgar, and of the death of his revered commander-in-chief, Lord Nelson. Also is given a list of casualties among the officers and of captures, also the list of captures of the enemies' vessel, including nineteen battleships of the line.

In the same issue are recorded some out-worthy incidents of that memorable victory. One was as follows: "When Lord Nelson was shot, and was yet in the arms of the men who were supporting him, his eye caught the fuller rope, which was unusually slack. He exclaimed with much emphasis: 'Thinton that rope there,' as eminent proof that the professional ardor still survived the hell-Hardy of the Pause of life."

Another incident: "A man was so completely cut in two by a double-headed shot that the upper part of his body, with the exception of his legs up to his knees, was thrown some yards into the water, but strange to tell, his legs were left standing on the deck, with all the firmness and animation of life."

Relic of Roman Days.

The old Fosse Way, which is to be completely re-opened in its Warwickshire section, is the only English name for the Roman road that ran from Lincoln to Exeter, writes Looker-On in the London Daily Chronicle. Practically the whole of the original Roman line is still in use, although in parts it has dwindled to a lane. From Lincoln its course may be traced through Newark and Leicester to High Cross, where, it is intersected by another famous Roman road, Watling street, at a point known as the "centre of England." Then it proceeds through Cirencester and Bath to the half-forgotten Roman crossment of Ilchester, though the road itself is here in fine condition. After Ilchester, the Fosse Way crosses the Polden hills and runs through Bridgwater and then enters Exeter.

The Climbing Perch.

A very lucky fish is the climbing perch of India.

This remarkable fellow can live out of water for quite a time; and only that—he can travel about land, too! He has no legs, but manages somehow to wriggle along his pearlish-shaped body, which fins are kept continually wet during his "dry" travelling.

This does not limit the accomplishments of this fish, for he can even climb trees. He is blessed beyond all other fish, because, when the frequent droughts come along, all he has to do is to [illegible] rapidly vanishing water home and go forth in search of another.

Increased World Trade.

According to the National Foreign Trade Council of New York, Canada, the United States and Japan are in the vanguard of increased world trade, while the twelve nations of Western Europe remain slightly behind the 1913 level, though improving steadily. The total trade of 91 nations reached $72,914,000,000 in 1929, while the 1929 increase is estimated to be about $3,500,000,000 ahead of that figure.

MRS. EDITH ROGERS, M.L.A.

First Woman to Enter Legislature of Manitoba—Typical Canadian Wife and Mother.

Mrs. Edith Rogers, M.L.A., the first woman to enter the Legislature of Manitoba, was born in Manitoba Norway Museum. She is a typical Canadian wife and mother, having three daughters and one son. Her husband was the late S. A. Rogers, of the Crescent Creamery Company. She is public-spirited, interested in whatever makes for the building up of a high type of Canadian citizenship, says the Toronto Star Weekly.

The war, more than anything else, changed the direction of Mrs. Rogers' teeming energies. Before that catastrophic event she was a notable society leader in Winnipeg, content to hold membership in the "correct" women's organizations. Came the war, and the call to every serious-minded person to pull his or her full weight.

The Central Council of Battalion Auxiliaries was formed to systematize the support which the women of Winnipeg were giving to the boys "over there." This work soon became closely linked up with that of the Patriotic Fund, and in 1915 Mrs. Rogers opened an office downtown to help soldiers' widows. This office is still doing business, still giving womanly advice to women in need of a steadying influence, though Armageddon is eleven years in the background.

[illegible] was a "glad hand" artiste—and the term is not used in any [illegible] sure meaning—that Mrs. Rogers first felt the call to share the [illegible] of those less fit to solve their [illegible] problems. She was tireless in [illegible] work of meeting trains, welcoming [illegible] war brides and finding accommodation for families coming from overseas. Energetic, resourceful, generally admired and respected, she accomplished herculean and seemingly impossible wonders in restoring the delicate and economic equilibrium of [illegible] who had rudely jolted in sickness she was their help and comforter; in bereavement their chief [illegible] in waywardness their mentor and friend.

Her initiation into politics came in 1920. It was the first time that Winnipeg City was to elect its candidates under the multi-member plan. Mrs. Rogers stood high when the final vote was taken and she has gained steadily in popularity ever since. She is a Liberal and has sat in the chamber beside such stalwarts as T. C. Norris and Judge Robson. Other women have stood for honors, but they have invariably lost out when the ballots were counted.

Ever since her "awakening" during the war to woman's place in the life of the twentieth century Mrs. Rogers has been an efficient champion of the principle of "sex equality." She fought and talked on behalf of women receiving the full franchise and being received by man as his full partner in the business of living and hewing out a better world for posterity.

PRE-CAMBRIAN ROCKS.

Name Given to the Oldest Family of Rocks.

Pre-Cambrian is the name given to the oldest family of rocks. It is usually applied to mean all rocks which are of a greater age than the Olenellus fauna of the Cambrian formations. Olenellus fauna are the most primitive of well-preserved fossils.

Pre-Cambrian rocks may have required half of all geological time for their formation. Estimates vary widely from 48,000,000 years to 1,710,000,000 years. The rocks are mostly granite, but also comprise limestones, slates, quartzites and gneiss. They contain almost no fossils. They are of greatest value for their mineral deposits.

Pre-Cambrian formations occur in the Transvaal, India, West Australia, Southern Rhodesia and Brazil as well as in Canada, where they are most extensive. The pre-Cambrian area in Canada comprises 1,800,000 square miles and is mostly around Hudson bay, though some areas also occur in British Columbia and the Yukon. It is called the pre-Cambrian shield from its shape on the map.

Saved By His Wits.

A crook told me the following—against myself, writes an ex-police inspector, in Tit-Bits. "I was just thinking I'd let you catch me with me"—it had been a long chase—"and nab me," he said, "for I was getting winded; but when I got round the corner of X——— road, I saw a lot of sandwich-men drawling along. I snapped to one: 'Ten bob for your boards for half an hour. I write for the papers, and want to see what the game is like.' The boards were off his back and that, and then rushed off the wrong way—there being only a lot of tailor-men and an old down-and-out going the other way. So I got clear!"

Reduces Members' Salaries.

In accordance with its election promises, the Government of Queensland has passed legislation reducing the salaries of members from £750 to £590. The bill was bitterly opposed by the Labor Party, members contending that they could not live even on the present allowance of £750 a year.

The Government has also introduced legislation to sell all the state enterprises, with the exception of the state insurance office. State saw-mills and cattle stations, butchers' shops, fisheries, state hotel at Babinda (in the north of Queensland, and tramways will be sold.

Quebec's Third Largest City.

The City of Verdun, the third largest city in the Province of Quebec, has a population of 55,000, or more than double what it was ten years ago when the civic records showed 24,881." Valuation of property is fixed at $47,000,000.

Two caddies, having finished the day's work, were comparing their experiences. "Wot sort of a bloke did you get for your second round?" asked one. "Well," replied the other, "he was on the fairway he was a perfect gent, but when he was in a bunker he was worse'n a war hook."

THE RIGHT LENGTH

One of the perennial difficulties of from binder twine. The Seed Branch the grain grower at harvest time comes of the Dominion Department of Agriculture through its inspectors, keeps a careful check not only on the quality of binder twine made in Canadian factories and also brought in from other countries, but they also take particular care to ensure that the full length of the twine is in the ball. Under the inspection and Sales Act every ball of binder twine sold in Canada must bear a label showing the name of the maker and the number of feet per pound in the ball of twine. The usual lengths are 500, 550, 600 and 650 feet per pound, the two longer lengths being the more popular in Canada. Systematic inspection shows that infractions of the regulations are very infrequent, and also ensures that quality in the product which gives confidence to the farmer using it.

AN EVENING JOB

The Dominion Botanist, H. T. Gussow, in his report on the dusting of wheat for rust control, observes that experimental work has given the best period for dusting to be from 6 to 9 o'clock in the evening. It has been found that prevailing air conditions are extremely satisfactory for efficient manipulation of the dusting aeroplane during this part of the day, and that a uniform drift over a swath-width of 90 to 100 feet is possible. Early morning dusting operations on the principle prove unsatisfactory and only at extremely rare intervals can satisfactory aeroplane dusting be carried out during the daytime.

CONTROL OF PLANT LICE

Nicotine sulphate in spray or dust preparations is found by the Dominion Entomological Branch of the Department of Agriculture to be the most effective control for the destruction of aphids, or plant lice. Stomach poisons such as mixtures of lead arsenate and calcium arsenate are largely ineffective against plant lice. Three pounds can be used where only 1½ pounds are

THE BEAVER OFFICE WINDOW

The Beaver window is a popular place these days for the display of photographs, who have been writing at the office. These photographs are placed in the window. Those results appear in the issue. They carry joy to many and disappointment to the few. Occasionally the whole of the local class proved into the Collegiate. And of that group in this illustration, Mary Hinchcliffe, Olive Smith, Stanleigh and Stella, about eighty per cent were successful. To those who were successful we extend congratulations, those who failed, we would urge a little more assistance and regular study. The examiner is not for the average child and not for the brilliant one. Work consistent and steady through the year, does it.

In making the presentation, Mrs. James Thompson remarked that the exemplary life of Mrs. Gibson was an inspiration to all her friends.

In reply, Mrs. Gibson said that all her life she had endeavoured to be useful to humanity and that she hoped that during her remaining years, she would be able to be of some service to her church and her friends.

THE QUEEN AND HER RELATION TO THE COLONY

As the queen is, so is the colony. It is a fact that should be remembered by all beekeepers. A good prolific queen can build up a good producing colony but an unprolific one can never do so. Furthermore, queens reared from stock that possesses undesirable characteristics, such as egressive swarming propensities, irritability, etc., are very apt to transmit such characteristics to their offspring, queens or workers. The queen is first responsible for the strength of the colony, and colony strength is an important factor in honey gathering. The queen is the only bee in the hive that can deposit eggs that will produce worker bees, and experimental work done by the Bee Division at Ottawa has shown that a good queen can produce over 2,000 eggs per day when at the peak of egg production, such queens can build a colony up to full strength in a much shorter time than can queens that are less prolific. On the average, young queens are capable of greater egg production than are old queens, moreover, old queens are very apt to fail at critical periods of the year. Natural swarming is an undesirable feature of beekeeping and all bees will swarm if the conditions that excite this instinct are favourable, but some races or even strains of bees will react to the exciting causes much more readily than others and so constantly breed from them is to intensify the desire to swarm. So on the other hand, constant selection and breeding from colonies that show the least tendency to swarm will soon produce a strain that will respond to very simple preventive manipulation. The same holds true with bees that show a tendency to be irritable, remove the queen and replace her with one of a gentler strain and the manipulation of that colony will be much more pleasant. The queen is not the ruler of the colony but the builder of it, therefore, select her with care.

Canadian Gardening Service

Still Time To Plant

There is still plenty of time to get in a good vegetable or flower garden. Many people have made a splendid showing that did not have a chance to start operations much before the first of July. We are fortunate in this country in having a very quick-growing season on account of our long periods of day-light during the Summer months. Beets, carrots, beans, corn, and many other standard vegetables can still go in. Of course, where such a late start is made, one is strongly urged to select the earliest varieties, to cultivate well, and to use plenty of quickly available fertilizer which is high in nitrogen. This is the proper time to get in those hot weather vegetables such as summer squash, melons, marrow, and cucumbers. Wherever possible, one should secure started plants of the tomato, cabbage, or celery lines in the vegetables, add zinnias, cosmos, marigolds and petunias in the flowers. This is also the proper time to plant second or third crops of practically all the first-named vegetables so that the season for them may be extended. One should begin to think of a Fall supply of late lettuce, endive or other salad plants. The endive although not generally planted is quite easily grown and should be used to take the place of leaf lettuce during late Summer and Fall. It requires practically the same soil and cultural conditions as lettuce and should be bleached by tying up loosely, or storing in a dark place, before using. Late Fall table turnips, Lima Beans, pepper plants and egg plants also go in now.

Heading Back

To produce large flowers and sturdy plants which will withstand wind and rains, we must pinch back. Nip off any necessary shoots and also trim back the main stem. This will produce a more symmetrical plant. Tall, ungainly geraniums and petunias when treated in this manner and planted deep in the earth will spread out and develop wonderfully. Very soon a bush-like flowering plant results from the unsightly spindly thing that was carried through the Winter, or was allowed to grow too fast in the Spring.

Timely Flower Work

This is the proper time for planting tender things like Cannas, Tuberous and Fibrous-Rooted Begonias and Hellotropes. Plants of late-flowering bulbs grown where space is required for bedding may have the old flowering spikes and dead foliage cut away, or if they are still green they may be lifted and matured in some warm dry place and re-planted again in September. For plants of the Azaleas, Rhododendrons and other forms of the Ericeae family can be planted out of doors now in well-rotted leaf-mould soil in a partially shaded place. Do not water too freely. After resting, they may be taken up in the Fall just before frost and re-potted into soil containing leaf-mould or peat, but no lime. If these plants are already in pots of sufficient size, and

MAKING HEADWAY

British Motor Exhibits Gaining Worldwide Progress In Markets of the World.

The Annual Motor Show at Olympia, England, always creates world-wide interest, for everyone is attracted by the developments constantly taking place in motor transport, says a writer in "Better Automotive Equipment," a monthly magazine issued by the Fisher Publishing Co. Toronto. Apart from the fact that the show is international in character and that there is displayed all the latest wonders of the world, considerable interest naturally centres round the exhibits of British manufacturers in view of their efforts to secure a pre-eminent position in the world's motor markets.

That considerable progress has been made in this direction is clearly evident. From January to the end of August, 1929, the exports of British cars, chassis, commercial vehicles, and parts exceeded $35,000,000, representing an increase over the corresponding period of the previous year of over $8,000,000.

British motor manufacturers are engaged on driving their successes still further and special models designed for overseas conditions are being produced.

Through the British Manufacturers' Section of the S.M.M.T. the machinery now exists for conferences and discussions as to the best methods of developing the export trade, and no longer can it be said that the British manufacturer is indifferent to the requirements of potential buyers overseas—even if such a statement were ever really correct.

As an example of the progress being made it is interesting to mention that at a luncheon given by an important British manufacturer to introduce the 1930 model, it was mentioned that a determined effort to extend overseas business was being made and an order for 146 cars had been received by this company for Singapore, to be delivered within two months.

There can be little doubt that the ascending popularity of British vehicles has been largely the result of services rendered, and is this connection The Motor (London) recently published the record of a 14 h. p. British car. This vehicle commenced its active life in April, 1927, and up to the end of its first year had covered 20,000 miles through the British Isles, Germany, France, Austria, Italy, Spain, Switzerland, etc. During the whole of that time the engine gave no trouble, and was not decarbonised until the car finally returned to England. In its continental tour many well-known passes were negotiated under difficult conditions, but boiling and overheating were unknown troubles, despite a gruelling test on a 900-mile run from Innsbruck to Rome and Naples in December, 1927.

In May, 1928, after a general overhaul at the manufacturer's works, the car was shipped to Auckland, New Zealand, and since then has been using the clockwork on long, hard-driven tours, as well as on continuous town work.

British manufacturers claim to lead the world in design and workmanship and in value for money, and records such as this, coupled with the growing appreciation overseas of their products, proves their claim to be not an empty one.

The recent decision of Australia to afford still greater preference to British motor vehicles like naturally been received by British manufacturers with the greatest satisfaction, and with the home and export trade in cars, commercial vehicles and public service vehicles showing sustained expansion, an exceedingly healthy tone prevails in the industry.

Something Happened to Walking-Stick In England.

Once the walking-stick was the pride and joy of smart young men; now it has almost disappeared in London. Recently when an investigator made a tour of the West End he looked almost in vain for a man with a stick. There are plenty of men with umbrellas neatly wrapped, but there were very few with sticks.

A manufacturer of walking-sticks could throw no light on the mystery. "It is a fact that the stick habit has almost died out," he confirmed. "Nobody knows why. The only thing I can think of is that umbrellas have been finding it more expedient to carry umbrellas, and now they have lost the walking-stick habit."

Another manufacturer pointed out that because the well-to-do men were ashamed to be seen in public carrying umbrellas, whereas now they do the thing almost openly. Men of the business man and his clerk.

£200,000 Fee.

Famous lawyers and doctors are popularly supposed to draw the highest fees of any professional men, but the honors for any single job must surely be awarded to Mr. Frederick Palmer, who has been engaged by the London County Council as engineer of the great new Charing Cross Bridge at a fee of £200,000.

Enormous though this fee is, it is not by any means a record for Mr. Palmer. He has to provide his own staff of assistants, clerks, and so on, and the work will take anything from five to seven years to complete. Enough, it will remain, however, to prove that civil engineering is one of the most paying careers a young man can take up to-day.

For Testing Fabrics.

Knitted fabrics of various kinds are automatically tested with an interesting new apparatus developed by a British inventor. It reveals the elasticity of the finished textiles and also enables the inspectors to trace and correct the cause of any faulty knitting. Even temporary variations in the tension on the threads during the knitting operation.

I didn't notice.

Did he look frightened?

I don't know. Why?

Why, I heard he was round there, and I don't know whether he wants to lick me or whether he's hidin' from me.

In the course of a conversation in a factory yard it was mentioned that a man who was present had, at one time, been in a mental home.

"But he looks quite sane to me," said one.

"Sane? Oh, yes, he's sane enough. And he's the only chap in the district that's got a paper to say he is sane."

A story is going round that an acquaintance of Hatry's came across him while visiting the prison, and found him at the task of making up mail bags. "Hello, Hatry," said the visitor, "sewing?" "No," replied the prisoner, "reaping."

We accept the report of the Department of Agriculture that fewer persons are leaving the farm. There are fewer persons on the farm to leave.

A famous man, often called upon to make an after-dinner speech, generally began with, "Oh, why was I born?" On one occasion a distant voice was heard: "Go on, now—it can't be helped."

"If you think you have wed a cook," The bride declared, "quite wrong you're guess'n;
Our wedding simply means my dear:

The piano it is announced, is now fighting for its life in the American home. And one we heard the other night was taking a terrible beating.

Two caddies, having finished the day's work, were communing upon their experiences. "Wot sort of a bloke did you get for your second round?" asked one. "Well," replied the other, "when he was on the fairway he was a perfect gent, but when he was in a bunker he was worse'n a yar hook."

Recent Bride: I can't stand it any longer, Judge. My husband actually swore at me (tearfully). And I was learning to drive just to please him, too.

Judge: What did he say?

Second Bride: He said there in the ditch and said, "Sidy Cats, woman, didn't you see that truck ?"

An absent minded professor was in the receiving line at a faculty reception for the students. One of the students who worked part time in a tailor's shop and who made several shirts for the professor approached the professor. The latter not recalling his identity extended his hand cordially, and said: "Your face is familiar young man, but at the moment I cannot remember who you are or where I have seen you." The student blushing and whispered in the professor's ear: "Made your shirts, sir."

"Ah, to be sure, said the professor turning to the lady next to him in line." Mrs Shurtz, permit me to present Major Shurtz."

Miller's Worm Powders not only exterminate intestinal and other worms, but they are a remedy for many other ailments of children. They strengthen the young stomach against biliousness and are tonical in their effects where the child suffers from loss of appetite. In feverish conditions they will be found useful and they will serve to allay pain and griping in the stomach, from which children so often suffer.

Reformer (to prostrated man): And so this is the work of rum, is it?

Prostrated Man: No, sir; this is the work of a banana-skin, sir.

Americans are forgetting how to walk one writer says. But the walkers are learning how to jump, and that helps some.

A schoolgirl's essay in a Montana paper ran as follows: "When we go camping, we must keep the place neat, we must be very careful to put out our fire. Don't litter up God's earth. Burn it up and make it look like hell."

Willie was being measured for his first-made-to-order suit of clothes.

"Do you want the shoulders padded, my little man?" asked the tailor.

"Naw," said Willie significantly, "pad de pants."

Two men had a cheery "night out," and when they met a few days later, they compared notes. "That was a night and no mistake," said one of them. "Do you know I finished up in the police station?"

"Lucky dog!" said the other bitterly. "I found my way home!"

WEDDING IN FAIRYLAND

On the day Queen Mab was married
All the bluebells loudly pealed,
And the wind their music carried
Over village moor and field.

Rushes whispered, starlings chattered:
Here's the bride! She does look sweet!
While the cherry blossoms scattered
White confetti at her feet.

Marigolds gave all the money
For the dower of their Queen,
And the bees supplied the honey
For the wedding feast at e'en.

Dew-filled kingcups gleamed with welcome,
Hemlike were drunk, old vows were new;
And the willows, who were bridesmaid,
Bowed, like old ladies, too.

All the guests declared the wedding
Was others they had ever seen—
Though they could not quite remember
In the "Original Sketch."

Jack aged six, was given sixpence by his uncle for being a good boy. He was told by his mother not to spend it, but to put it in his money-box. Jack played out of doors till bedtime.

"Now," said his mother, "put your sixpence in, I spent it. I said, 'Did you?' and you answered, 'I spent it.' I said, 'Did you spend it?' and you answered, 'I spent it.' Now, did you spend it or put it in the box?"

"I spent," said Jack, "because I answered you truthfully."

DIPPING SHEEP FOR CONTROL OF EXTERNAL PARASITES

Sheep breeders will find dipping at this season of the year a profitable investment. Sheep and lambs will not thrive if they are forced to act as a host for ticks and other vermin. Sheep may also winter quarters will also be benefited by being dipped in the fall. The expense involved in dipping is very slight compared with the returns in the form of better crops in the fall and at shearing time in the spring. The yield of wool will also be greatly increased. The Dominion Experimental Farm, Ottawa, makes a practice of dipping sheep in the fall and spring as it finds ticks have been practically eliminated from the flock.

There are a number of reliable sheep dips on the market. Cooper's dip is the one most widely used and experimented with at this station proved very efficient, although tests made with it did not show it to be any more efficient control. The Dominion Experimental Farm has also found that the use of home-made and wettable sulphur dips is satisfactory for the commercial flock. A home-made lime-sulphur dip is prepared with ticks, were made of the dip used for sheep and lambs when not dipping. Sodium fluoride is also proving strengths from 2 to 4 pounds to one and a half pounds to a gallon of water. Dips should be used according to directions. One hundred per cent control was secured when sodium fluoride was used at the rate mentioned above in dipping sheep that were in evidence of slight burning. The results of this year indicate that sodium fluoride is a satisfactory control for ticks. Consequently sodium fluoride is also satisfactory as a sheep dip. Wettable sulphur was found to give 100 per cent control when used at the rate of 10 pounds to 100 gallons of water. Cooper's dip also gave 100 per cent control without any evidence of burning.

While sheep breeders operating in a large way may be justified in trying out machines for commercial dips, the small breeder is well advised to use the reliable commercial dips on the market.

IN FINE CONDITION CIVIL ENGINEER NOW

"My wife got me started on Sargon after I had gone through a two year siege of bad health and now I feel like a new man.

W. BRAGGINS

"I suffered terribly with indigestion that made me so nervous I'd frequently sit up half the night until I could compose myself. I lost weight rapidly and my strength and energy were far below normal. Sargon made me a changed man! I've had a gratifying increase in strength, weight and energy my appetite is hearty, I sleep splendidly and get up strong and feeling fine.

"I have never in all my life tried any laxatives that work like Sargon Pills. They regulate the bowels and stimulate the liver without any unpleasant effects and their good results are lasting."

W. Braggins, No. 7 Chesterfield Street, Apartment No. 4, Toronto, well known civil engineer with the Canadian Highway Department.

Sargon may be obtained in Nepanee, from Hooper's Drug Store, who has been awarded the exclusive Sargon agency for this town.

HORSETAIL MENACE

Horsetail, a weed familiar throughout Canada, is a menace to horses and other farm animals because of its poisonous properties. The Botanist of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, calling attention to the harmful effect of this weed on horses, cattle, sheep and sometimes pigs, points out that the presence of the weed in fields is usually an indication of the need for drainage. In cases where the weed is found steps should be taken for its complete eradication through proper drainage and cultivation methods. Horsetail usually grows in wet soils and sometimes in a thoroughly spongy condition. Where the weed is found in dry soils it is usually an indication of poor drainage.

YOUNG CHAMPIONS REPRESENT CANADA IN ENGLISH CONTEST

Determined to spare no effort to bring back to Canada the world's juvenile cattle judging championship, Clifford Baldrick, Barrie, Ontario, Cedric Kirkpatrick, Wirrall, N.B., and Gordon Campbell, of Stewiake, N.S., unofficial representatives of more than 6,000 boys and girls of the junior livestock clubs of the Dominion, sailed from Montreal, June 21st, on the White Star liner, "Alberic," for England. They will compete with teams from Great Britain, the United States and other countries, at the Royal Agricultural Show in Manchester, July 9th. They will go overseas under the auspices of the Federal Department of Agriculture and the Canadian National Railway's Department of Agriculture, having earned the honour of representing Canada as a result of their prowess at the Dominion wide competition of the Canadian National System at the Royal Fair in Toronto last Winter.

Visit Canadian Herds

An intensive preliminary training among the outstanding herds in Canada and Great Britain began for the boys on June 10th, under the direction of P. W. Walsh, Superintendent of Agriculture for the railway, who will conduct the boys overseas and act as coach. Federal and Provincial Governments are co-operating in the matter and Prof. Ness of Macdonald College, is assisting in the training of the boys in this country. Beginning at the Ormstown Fair on June 10th last, the first Class "A" summer fair in Canada, the boys inspected herds in Quebec and the Maritimes. They saw the Shorthorn herd of Alex. McLaren, Buckingham, Que., T. B. Macaulay's Holsteins at the Hudson Heights, the Macdonald College herd of Ayrshires and Shorthorns, the Maxwellton Jerseys at Ste. Anne's, the Nova Scotia Agricultural College herd of Guernseys at Princeport, N.S., Blaickie's herd of Guernseys at Great Village, Fred Setchell's Jerseys at Salt Springs, the McKay Holsteins at Truro, and Waller Dickey's herd of Holsteins at Truro.

Before leaving for England, the young champions were given a farewell luncheon by the railway, at which Federal and other officials were present, and in Europe they will be entertained, taken on sightseeing tours and on visits to famous farms.

SOME IMPROVEMENT IN BUSINESS LIFE

Seasonal influences appear to be responsible for an almost general improvement in business in recent weeks, but the highly-stimulating forces in evidence a year ago are lacking, according to a report of the Department of Trade and Commerce.

Changes in the customs tariff made early last month continue to unsettle import trade. Wholesalers report that shipments are coming chiefly in small quantities, merchants are following a cautious buying policy. They are ordering for immediate or for near future needs. Industrial activity is being fairly well maintained, and the forest industry, mentioned earlier, and mining industries are said to be more optimistic.

The major steel producers are operating at only slightly below capacity and wire and fencing demand is appreciably good. Toronto employment offices look for more activity in iron and steel lines in the near future. Radio manufacturers are becoming more active and shoe factories are fairly well engaged on summer and sports lines.

April newsprint output of 228,000 tons represents a substantial gain in both volume and operating capacity over the March figures. April shipments amounted to 221,000 tons.

The value of metallic production from Ontario mines and smelters during the first quarter of 1930 was 7 per cent higher than during the first quarter of 1929. There were gains in gold and in the quantity of silver, although the value of the latter commodity declined. Increases were registered in copper metal and nickel matte exported, but copper matte shipments were lower, as was the quantity of nickle recovered in refining. A new high gold production of $2,903,000 was established in April.

The valuation of Canada's chemical production during 1929, $168,599,000, exceeded 1928 production by 14 per cent; according to preliminary estimate just issued.

Movement of wheat from the Dominion continued low in April, exports of that month of 3,628,000 bushels, valued at $3,804,000 being 53% smaller than in April of last year. Exports of wheat flour, 401,000 barrels, valued at $2,270,000 were 37% smaller in quantity and 41% lower in value in the same comparison. Canadian Government crop report, issued on May 12, indicates that on April 30th, 21% of the 800,000 acres sown to fall wheat in Canada had been winter killed, as compared with 6% a year ago. Fall rye was less affected, with only 6% of the 818,000 acreage involved.

Commercial failures in Canada in March numbered 201, as compared with 181 in March 1929 and 266 in February, 1930. The total liability involved was higher in both comparisons.

SUMMER HEAT HARD ON BABY

No season of the year is so dangerous to the life of little ones as is the summer. The excessive heat throws the little stomach out of order so quickly that unless prompt aid is at hand, the baby may be beyond all human help before the mother realizes he is ill. Summer is the season when diarrhoea, cholera infantum, dysentery and colic are most prevalent. Any of these troubles may prove deadly if not promptly treated. During the summer the mother's best friend is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the bowels, sweeten the stomach and keep baby healthy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CHAUTAUQUA AT NAPANEE

Napanee is living up to its record this year of being one of the best Chautauqua towns on the circuit. It is eleven years now since these splendid weeks of education and interesting meetings first made their appearance in the town. And every year since has added to the place that they hold in the community life. The programmes this year have, up to date, been of the very highest order. And the large tent has been filled every afternoon and evening.

The general public which has enjoyed those privileges owes a debt of gratitude to the public spirited men who have guaranteed the management the sale of the necessary amount of tickets and assumed all the responsibility in connection with this great educational institution.

The prices this year were materially reduced, which made it necessary to guarantee a hundred more than other years. But, even with the reduced price, there has been no financial loss.

FREE SHOTS ON Local Sport

The tough diamond where the Adolphustown Dachsid team play their home games, produced lots of errors last Saturday and hence lots of runs.

* * *

While these made-over pasture fields may produce good food to watch, they do not produce good baseball.

* * *

And unless the home team knows every bump on the infield, they are no better off than the visitors.

* * *

The Maple Liefs' field is as bad if not worse, and lost balls are frequent.

* * *

The locals are idle for three weeks now when they play the Maple Leafs at Adolphustown, on July 27th.

This game was moved on from Wednesday to Saturday, by mutual consent.

BASEBALL

Gibbard's Down Adolphustown 19-11

The local nine journeyed to Adolphustown on Saturday last and added another win to their credit. The game proved to be loose from start to finish and both teams hit the old apple hard and often. The first part of the game was a hard one on the locals, as they were not acquainted with the diamond and when the ball hit in front of a player it usually bounced ten feet over his head and what should have counted as single hits resulted in home runs and three baggers, but that did not last very long. The boys got ground wise and in the fourth innings took the lead with the score 7 to 4.

From then until the eighth frame, the fans could hardly tell which team was going to come out on top, and at the end of the seventh, the score stood 11 all. It might be added that, besides playing ball, the Gibbard aggregation can stop a scrap in short order. A couple of boisterous fans attempted to give an elderly, well-liked fan, in the person of "Sam" Gallagher, a trouncing and it did not take a couple of local boys long to put them in their place and they were there for keeps.

The ball game started again and so did the rain and the officials are mentioning over the possible advantage of playing all games on rainy days, for the way the locals snapped into it in the eighth made the home team open their eyes a little wider. They put five men across the plate and in the ninth three more crossed. The final score resulted in favor of Gibbard's by 19 to 11.

After the game the locals were invited to put on the feed big as guests of Mine Host, Mr. Proutt's. The repast was of the usual calibre that Mrs. Proutt is noted for and the team enjoyed one of the best meals they have partaken of in a long while. The boys voiced their praises and congratulated Mrs. Proutt heartily. It anyone should be in doubt as to any possible exaggeration, kindly get in touch with "Tony" Sweet, or "Granddad" Kilgannon, they should know, having been the first pair to start and the last to finish.

The batteries for the game were—Adolphustown: Gallagher, catching; and Gallagher, J. Proutt and Bill Proutt, pitching. Gibbard's: Scrimshaw, catching, and Bentley, J. Bentley and F. Bentley, pitching.

Referee—J. Smith, Odessa.

NEWS OF THE WEEK

CANADA — The election campaign holds the focus of attention. R. B. Bennett was given a reception in Quebec City rarely ever given to a public man in Canada. He spoke in St. Peter's Square, to thousands of people who heard him enunciate the policies of his party. Local leaders made his visit audible to all.

McKenzie King is in the West, and speaking in Prince Albert, predicted majority over all for his party.

ENGLAND— The Labor Government by a slim majority, escaped defeat, when many of the Liberals bolted from the agreement which they had with Labor.

GERMANY — Official statistics report over two million unemployed in Germany. A forcible reduction in wages took place during the week in one of the largest industries. In this way it is hoped better to meet world competition.

CHINA— The condition in China becomes more chaotic, day by day. The northern forces under "Feng", the so-called Christian general, seem to have won a temporary victory over the government forces. Meanwhile, famine and misery increase by leaps and bounds.

INDIA — The censorship prevents news leaking out, but evidences of a sane settlement becomes daily more evident. The report of the Simons Commission, with the plan for dual for federated states, under the British Empire, is gaining friends each day. The moderates have appealed to Ghandi to call off his campaign of non-cooperation.

UNITED STATES — The Hawley-Smoot tariff bill, passed in the United States, has had repercussions all over Europe. Italy overnight raised her duty on small cars from 100% to 250%. Fourteen nations met during the week in Switzerland, to take action to keep up the exports of their countries. A tariff war seems the answer to the United States' action.

CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATE IS PROMINENT AGRICULTURIST

The Conservative candidate for Prince Edward-Lennox was born in the Township of Ameliasburg and has always lived there. His father was a successful farmer and gardener, for many years he was an exhibitor of choice grapes and vegetables at all the fall fairs in the district.

Mr. John Wese's farm is on the Picton-Belleville Provincial Highway at four miles from Belleville. This locality is a good farming section. The soil is productive and the substantial well kept farm buildings and well cultivated fields bear ample evidence of good thrifty farming.

In addition to his farming interests Mr. Wese has, during recent years, been identified with the canning industry as one of the promoters and stockholders of the Belleville Canning Company of which company he was a director and also of the Shannonville Canning Company, of which he is President.

In municipal life he has been most successful. He was for six years a member of the Ameliasburg township council two years as councillor and four years as reeve. In 1926 he was elected Warden of Prince Edward County by acclamation. He is an ex-president of the County Farmers's Association and an ex-president of the Ameliasburg Agricultural Society.

Mr. Wese is a young man, only 38 years of age, and will make a most creditable representative for Prince Edward-Lennox.

Mr. Weese is making a vigorous campaign by car riding. Last week he spoke three days in Lennox.

Help For Asthma. Neglect gives asthma a great advantage. The trouble, once it has secured a foothold, fastens its grip on the bronchial passages tenaciously. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy is daily benifiting cases of asthma of long standing. Years of suffering, however, might have been prevented had the remedy been used when the trouble was in its first stages. Do not neglect asthma, but use this preparation at once.

SAVE THE CHILDREN

In Summer When Childhood Ailments Are Most Dangerous

Mothers who keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house may feel that the lives of their little ones are reasonably safe during the hot weather. Stomach troubles, cholera infantum and diarrhoea carry off thousands of little ones every summer, in most cases because the mother does not have a safe medicine at hand to give promptly. Baby's Own Tablets relieve these troubles, or if given occasionally to the well child they will prevent their coming on. The Tablets are guaranteed to be absolutely harmless even to the newborn babe. They are especially good in summer because they regulate the bowels and keep the stomach sweet and pure. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ontario.

DECLINE IN TRADE STILL CONTINUES

The decline in Canadian trade, export and import, which began during the latter months of 1929, continued unabated in April and May, the first two months of the current fiscal year.

Trade reports for this period are barren of anything in the nature of figures that augur well for the immediate future. A comparative table listing twelve items shows that in only four of these is trade keeping to the level of the same period a year ago. In a number of items the decline is of 50% and over.

Total exports of Canadian produce during April and May 1929 were valued at $173,200,426, while for these two months in 1930 they have fallen off to $128,004,696, a loss of $45,195,730.

The value of wheat exports for April and May has declined by $18,568,236, or more than 50%. During these two months in 1929 Canada exported wheat to the value of $36,499,502 while for the same period this year only $17,793,266 worth was sent abroad.

The value of wheat flour exports have declined from $6,626,093 to $5,259,-514. Export trade in automobiles and parts suffered drastically, declining in value from $7,405,820 in April and May 1929 to $2,982,980 this year. Meat exports were almost cut in half, dropping from $2,560,121 last year to $1,325,706. Fish and cheese exports also declined seriously.

Exports of unmanufactured nickel, unmanufactured copper, wood pulp and newsprint have not declined.

UNEMPLOYMENT IS STILL SEVERE

Thirteen Canadian workmen out of every hundred who were working last summer are today out of jobs.

This information is contained in the last issue of the Labour Gazette, issued by the Federal Department of Labour, depression.

The figures of the Department of Labour show that the employment index for May is 111.4 while for August of last year it was 127.8. These figures deal mainly with the employment of workmen registered in trades unions and do not cover either the "white collar" worker or of the unskilled labourer, both of which classes have perhaps felt the pinch of unemployment more severely than has the union man.

From the beginning of the year, until May employment figures continued to drop steadily according to the statistics of the Department of Labour. During May there was a slight improvement, but it did not bring the index figure to within 5 points of that of May 1929.

For April the index figure was but 107.8 and government returns state that the number of Canadians employed during this month was 941,427 or some 30,000 less than in March when the employment roll totalled 961,162.

The severity of the situation is indicated by the fact that the Government Employment Offices report that in March there were but 63.5 jobs recorded for every 100 applications for work.

Furthermore the figures of placements show that vacancies for regular employment are very much lower than they have been, while casual employment shows no increase.

During 1928 the number of placements made in regular employment were 254,604 while those for casual labour, lasting less than a week numbered 136,724.

During the first three months of this year the number of placements for regular employment was 97,198, or at the rate of 146,796 for a 12-month period. This is considerably less than half the 1928 figure.

TELLING ALL HER FRIENDS ABOUT IT

"I expected great things of Sargon and it has not disappointed me. For months I had been in a terribly rundown condition, tired and indisposed all the time and was subject to severe headaches. There was a neuritis condition in my shoulder and arm, and constipation had such a hold on me that I developed hemorrhoids. Six bottles of Sargon drove the pains out of my body, I sleep better than I have in years and have a wonderful feeling of strength and energy. I'm telling all my friends about Sargon.

"Sargon Pills have given me such wonderful relief from constipation that I don't notice the hemorrhoidal trouble like I did, and I'm enjoying splendid health in every way." — Mrs. E. Robertson, 15 Allen Street, Hamilton, Ontario.

Sargon may be obtained in Napanee at Hooper's Drug Store, who has been appointed the exclusive Sargon agency for this town.

In Passing Other Cars...Don't "Cut In"

One of the greatest dangers on the highway is the driver who insists on passing other cars when there is no space for him in the traffic line ahead. If he should meet a car coming in the opposite direction, a crash follows—with injury to persons or cars.

It's a good rule to keep in line, unless you have a clear view of the road ahead, and there is a place in the traffic line which you can reach before you meet on-coming traffic.

Don't be a nuisance by "cutting in". It is discourteous to other drivers and creates needless danger. You may have a crash . . . and even if you don't, you are liable to a fine under the Highway Traffic Act.

DECISION

It wasn't that he had used a rotten gag that he had liked better. He hadn't. He could truthfully say that he liked the girl as well as any girl he had ever met. But he didn't want to marry her. He didn't want to marry anyone—not for a very long time, indeed. Why, he was only twenty-three! . . . No, he was not ready—there!

It was funny how he had come to be respected as "Soapy Joe." It had begun when they were about eleven. Half a dozen boys, including the number, had started playing about with the same number of girls, the whole crowd of them together. As time passed one and another left the company; sometimes two of them started "going steady" . . . sometimes one of them found an irresistible attraction outside the crowd and deserted on that account. At least there only remained himself and his chum, Polly and Susie. Then his chum intimated that he found Polly so absorbing that he could dispense with other company. And so Susie and he were thrown together; and through lack of a little strength of character and decision he had drifted into this hopeless situation. It was awful.

Susie was a good girl; he respected her and liked her, but what he felt for her wasn't love, he was sure of that. He had read about love in books. He was fond of reading. And surely when so many writers described this wonderful feeling there must be some truth in it. Supposing he married Susie and then met another woman and fell in love with her, like they did in books!

He had made up his mind to break it off many a time before this, but when he met Susie he found he had not sufficient courage to carry it through. She looked up to him so, thought him so wonderful. He knew that what Susie felt for him was real, genuine love. That was what made it worse. Everything tended to keep them together. They went to the same chapel and Sunday school. He would see her many times each week, and he could visualize her expression of dumb suffering when they met afterwards. He might get a job in another town, but then people would say that he had run away, unable to face them, because he knew he had treated the girl shabbily. And there was something else; Susie just loocked the sort of girl who might go into a "decline" if she was miserable. It really was awful.

Anyhow, he was really determined this time. He would tell her tonight, when she called at the house. He had promised to take her to the pictures, and as they hasn't much time and his home was nearer to the picture hall than hers they had arranged it that way. He wasn't keen on the pictures himself, but Susie liked them. He would much rather have gone to the Debating Society. He liked having a regular good argument with the other young fellows. Some of the older ones had begun to notice him, too, and one of them had told his father, in confidence, that they were keeping their eye on him; he was one of the most promising young speakers in the town. You never knew what you might lead to, especially in these days when they were keen on enlisting young blood in the ranks. Perhaps they might even want him to be a candidate at the next election. He would feel very nervous, but he would be proud and happy, too, as well as I, so.

"That wasn't what I was going to say, Jack," sh answered. "I was going to ask you if I were the only girl who would have you."

NEW TARIFF OF ...

In spite of political statements as to what are the issues of the political campaign, Ottawa has its own ideas, dependent on the days of the fiscal year. Ottawa is human, has a mean habit of developing a good-will. The Ottawa outlook is that there are two main issues to be faced by both parties, the tariff and unemployment.

Perhaps the main features of the tariff changes during the last session of parliament was the great extension of the British preference—and here is where cleavage between the two parties immediately becomes apparent. Both parties realize that the British preference solution will have a big bearing on the coming Empire Economic Conference, and it is perhaps with this in view that the two leaders differ.

Mr. Mackenzie King has made the grand gesture, acclaimed widely in British and by his own followers, the grand gesture of a free-will offering of a potential open market of $400,000,000. This is his idea of Imperialism, his idea of knitting the components of the Empire together by bonds of good-will.

Mr. Bennett, on the other hand, claims that the interests of the Empire would be best served, by looking after the interests of both Canada and Britain by a mutual and reciprocal trade policy of concessions and it might be termed bargains. His claim is that other countries are putting up the barriers against the Empire and it is up to the Empire units to protect themselves by deals which will secure Empire markets for British countries. This is his idea of the beginning of an Empire Economic Unit.

In the Maritimes, the Prime Minister is claiming all the credit for fully implementing the Duncan report; Mr. Bennett claims that he didn't and that anything he did was nine years late and only an election gesture anyway.

On the whole Ottawa has not yet digested to the full the two platforms enunciated by the leaders. They won't do that until they hear them both in Ottawa and then, since the women voters outnumber the males, perhaps the better dressed man will get Ottawa's two seats. Ottawa has but little other comment to make as yet, on the two platforms; Mr. King says the three main issues are the record of the Government, the budget and Canada's representation at the Empire Conference.

—Mr. Bennett has laid down his nine pledges, which include the calling of a special session seeking a solution of the unemployment problem, a national old age pension scheme, a national highway, the development of the St. Lawrence waterway, and a Peace River outlet.

A CONTRAST IN CATS

"Cats, unlike the dogs, cannot be shampooed, for they are liable to become rheumatic. Instead they are dry-cleaned by a secret and expensive process." —Sidelight on the private life of pets among the richer inhabitants of Mayfair.

A Country Cat, of poor but honest folk, Accepts an invitation
To view the flat where gilt-edged comfort dwells
A rich relation.

The Town Cat, very sleek and well presented,
Displays the spoilsmen wealth has here invented.
Here are its sleeping-baskets lined with silk,
And silver saucers for its Grade A milk.
With plates of solid gold from which it eats
The richest titbits from the rarest meats.
Its toilet set is tortoiseshell and platinum;
Its cushions—why, a monarch might have sat in 'em!

And if it feels the need for sport,
Then lackeys of opposing sorts
Are summoned and a ball is rolled
Of inlaid ivory and gold.

The Country Cat inspects it all
And feels (as we intended) very small.
But, looking round,
One slight defect is found;
And so she says, with more assurance cheery:

"This place is much too fine for me,
my dear;
But still—I don't see any mouse-holes here.

In spite of all this glorious system
You must have missed 'em;
I'm sure you find this life a bit stunning!
Come back with me—tomorrow we go hunting!
I'm sure you'll feel much better for the change."

"To-morrow?" says the Town Cat, somewhat sadly;
"My dear old friend, I'd do so very gladly,
But more important things have intervened—
To-morrow I'm sent off to be dry-cleaned."

"Dear me!" the Country Cat exclaims, "You town folk play some curious games.
Dry-cleaned? Well, bless my well-washed ears and whiskers,
That sounds a nasty shock for feline friskers!
What? Can't you clean yourself, and aren't you proud to?
"I can," the Town Cat says; "I'm not allowed to."

"Friend," says the Country Cat in some dismay,
"You'll pardon me, but I must get away.
I frankly fear
The risk of staying here;
It is not proper, no
I, too, may be
By some one keen custodian (though well-meaning)
Sent off, like carpets or old clothes, for cleaning.
No, no—I'd better seek my country cot.
That less severely regulated spot
Where, though I'm poor and on the rough side,
At least I'am allowed to wash myself."

Moral

This tale is most familiar warning pitches—
To wit, the hidden snag that lurks in riches:
Red, purples
And if you think the point is plain enough
Well, which would you prefer—dry-clean or wash?

CLOUDEN, in Punch.

WEEDS

Ontario People Are Becoming Weed Conscious

Ontario people, both rural and urban are appreciating the fact more and more, that weeds are destructive and unsightly and have no place in the Ontario landscape.

Nowhere have farmers in general, been so careful in keeping down noxious weeds on their farms. During the month of June, it was a pleasing sight to see men, women and children out in the fields, hoeing, cutting, spudding and pulling weeds, state officials of the Crops Co-operation and Markets Branch, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

Hundreds of country cemeteries have been cleaned up, properly sodded, planted with shrubs and otherwise put in a condition more fitting the last resting place of our esteemed and honoured forefathers. More attention is being paid to school yards, church yards, highways, township roads, railroads and public property of all kinds.

The successful control of the weed situation is very largely due to the united and co-operated effort of farmers, weed inspectors, road and railway officials, trustees of public property, Women's Institutes and Service Organizations all over the Province.

Weed control is more apparent in some sections than others but for the most part, real progress is being made. In the Weed War of 1930, in spite of success so far, the battle has only begun. Citizens, communities and organizations will have to continue to give their co-operation and support before the weed menace is finally under control.

Help the Weed Inspector

Every municipality in the Province, including towns, cities and villages, now has a weed inspector. The weed inspector's duties are to inspect all property in the municipality, discuss with farmers the best methods of control of noxious weeds and assist the farmer in every way possible in his fight against the weed menace. In extreme cases where weeds in crops are so be that they are providing a menace to neighbouring farms, the weed inspector may advise the cutting of the crop. If this is neglected or refused, the inspector may order the crop cut and charge cost of same to the occupant of the land in his taxes.

All occupants of land are expected to prevent the ripening of all noxious weeds in such a manner that seeds will not blow over neighbouring property.

Municipal councils are expected to give the local weed inspector every assistance and support in his work. Although there are 17 weeds deemed noxious under the Weed Control Act, Sow Thistle, which is considered the "World's Worst Weed" is given by far the most attention. Weed inspectors are determined to keep this weed in control in such a manner that it will not blow from farm to farm as it has done in the past. Ontario people have become "weed conscious" and as a result, will not rest content until the weed problem is fully solved and under control.

CAMDEN VIII. W. M. S.

The July meeting of Camden VIII Women's Missionary Society was held on Thursday, July 3rd at the home of Mrs. Murray Martin, with a goodly attendance of members and visitors.

The meeting was in charge of the President, who conducted devotional exercises with singing, scripture reading of Proverbs Chapter 20. The devotional leaflet, "Temperance" was read by Mrs. Martin, followed with prayer by Mrs. H. J. Wilson. After singing a hymn the roll call was called and offering taken. The treasurer reported our finances, with good prospects of our allocation being reached this year.

The programme leaflet, on "Temperance," was read by Mrs. Thos. Wilson and closed with a verse setting forth woman's sphere:

"Tis Thine to curb the passion's maddening sway,
And wipe the mourner's bitter tear away;
'Tis thine to soothe, when hope itself has fled,
And cheer with angels' smile the sufferer's bed:
To give to earth its charm, to life its rest:
One only task—to bless and to be blessed."

The minutes of last meeting were read and approved. Plans were discussed for a quilting to be held so that our supply secretary may have ample time to send forward our bale at the requested time. It was decided to hold such quilting on the first Thursday in August, in the church, and in conjunction with our regular monthly meeting.

The meeting was closed with singing "Yield not to Temptation," and the Mizpah benediction.

CONWAY W. I.

The regular meeting of the Conway Women's Institute met at the home of the President, Mrs. J. A. Young, on Tuesday evening, July 8th, with an attendance of thirty-six. The meeting opened by singing the Ode, followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. The roll call, "A place I have visited," was quite am...

On motion of Mrs. A. P. Young and Mrs. George Ham, a vote of thanks was tendered the officials of Conway Church for the use of it on the 7th, for the District Annual. A short discussion is was decided that the Institute purchase a new ... for the Kingston General Hospital to replace the one they had ... some years ago. After the business, the Vice-President, Mrs. A. Young read an address to the retiring secretary, Mrs. W. H. Phippen, and the President, Mrs. J. A. Young, presented her with a $10 gold piece for her faithful service during the past five years. Mrs. Phippen, though much surprised, expressed her appreciation in a few well-chosen words. She said she had enjoyed the work.

A splendid programme followed. This was carried out by the young people of the community. Miss Eleanor Ham, nurse in training, Toronto, delighted the audience with a piano solo. Everyone was pleased to have the opportunity of once again hearing Miss Ham at the piano. Miss Vera Ruttan showed her ability as a vising public speaker in a pleasant little reading entitled "Cheer Up." The Misses Peggy Ham and Jean Hughsoon added their part to the programme by two pleasing instrumental duets. Miss Elizabeth Sills developed many practical points in a paper along the line of "Pests on a farm, and prevention of the same." Miss Jessie Kilgannon very kindly gave a piano solo which all enjoyed. Miss Ada Tuckett, Kingston sang "Sweet Nightingale," impromptu, which shows the training in that work now carried on in the public schools. With Miss Marjorie Keyes acting capably as pianist all enjoyed the violin solo by Master Reginald Couch and the mouth-organ selection by Mr. Robert Law.

The meeting closed by singing the National Anthem, after which delicious refreshments were served by the hostess and lunch committee and a social time was enjoyed by all before dispersing to their various homes.

BOLSHEVISM MAKES NO PROGRESS HERE

Bolshevism has made little progress in Canada or the United States, it is stated in Labor circles here. Organized labor in Canada is uncompromisingly opposed to communistic principles and will never compromise with communism officials of the Trades and Labor Council state.

Organized labor in the United States is of the same conviction, it is pointed out. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, recently testifying in Washington, before a special committee investigating communist activities, stated emphatically that the importance of these activities among the working people of the United States was inconsequential. Only the potential importance of communism is serious on this continent, he said.

Green quoted from publications in the "Pravda", the Bolshevik official statements and other sources. These, he said, "strikingly illustrated the programme of the Bolsheviks in their desire for world revolution."

"As their activities have been directed to England, China, France, Germany, India, Persia and other European and Asiatic countries and Green continued, "so have they extended to the United States. Organizations have been formed here whose purpose is to promote the communist party, to sow discord and to accomplish the overthrow of the so-called capitalistic governments of the United States and Canada.

"As a condition precedent to this," he said, "the communists have strongly felt that the American Federation of Labor must first be overthrown and controlled. Moscow has set for its workers a 'present task' which is to cultivate conditions and bring about a realignment of forces in Canada and the United States which will promote the coming of the revolution on this continent and in the rest of the world.

CAN MATERIALLY REDUCE COLDS

Strict isolation of sufferers from common colds would reduce the number of sufferers from this ailment to a minimum, news dispatches from Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, indicate. Dr. Allen K. Krause, specialist in chest diseases, experimented for some years there in an attempt to discover the cause of common cold.

Although it was discovered that the cold came from some bacterial agent it was found impossible to isolate the germ, so medical opinion has as yet been unable to devise a cure.

Prevention, however, is another thing. Colds, in the majority of cases, can be prevented, Dr. Krause declares. He advises that every sufferer should keep to himself to prevent infection of other people. Susceptibility to colds can be overcome by gradual and judicious exposure to low temperature. For the average person the best insurance against catching cold is the avoidance of overheavy clothing and over heated dwellings and workrooms. Habituating the body to a temperature of not more than 70 degrees while resting or sleeping is most important, Dr. Krause declares.

If the numbers of common colds were materially abated diseases of the respiratory system would tumble from the high place they now occupy as causes of death, he says.

ITALY INCREASES DUTY ON WHEAT

The steady restriction of markets for Canadian wheat was given further impetus this month when Italy increased the duty on wheat from that country to 86.7 cents a bushel. This increase was made despite the existence of a favoured nation treaty between Italy and Canada. Thus Italian products are admitted to Canada under the intermediate customs rate, though Canada enjoys no preference in the Italian wheat market.

Italy is now in line with the majority of European countries most of which have, in recent months, placed prohibitive import duties on Canadian wheat. The highest rate now effective against Canadian wheat is that imposed by Germany, 97.4 cents a bushel.

FARM BOARD HOLDS U. S. WHEAT SURPLUS

Sixty-six million bushels of wheat have been withdrawn from the market by the Grain Stabilization Corporation, acting for the Federal Farm Board of the United States, it is learned here from authoritative sources.

As a result, the total visible market able supply of wheat in the United States is substantially less than last year at this time.

This year's visible supply of wheat is 22,000,000 bushels greater than at this time a year ago, it is declared. But by the withdrawal of 66,000,000 bushels from the market by the Grain Stabilization Corporation, the visible supply is, insofar as it will affect markets, 44,000,000 bushels less.

The wheat now held by the Grain Stabilization Corporation will not be thrown back on the market in such a way that depression of prices will result, the Farm Board has promised. In fact, it is definitely stated that until wheat prices mount again to $1.25 per bushel not a dollar's worth will be released. The Grain Stabilization Board was brought into being as a relief measure for the United States farmer and operates on capital supplied by the United States Government.

ST. LAWRENCE WATERWAY PROJECT WOULD AFFECT BAY OF QUINTE DISTRICT

A great many from Prince Edward-Lennox County attended the Conservative picnic at Belleville on Wednesday afternoon when Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Premier of Ontario, and Leslie G. Bell, K.C., M.P., Montreal, spoke in the interests of John A. Wesse, Conservative Candidate in Prince Edward-Lennox, and W. E. Tummon, ex-M.P., Conservative Candidate in South Hastings.

Hurling a ringing challenge at Premier Mackenzie King to clearly define his policies on the St. Lawrence Waterways question, Premier Howard Ferguson carried the large crowd to the heights of enthusiasm. The Premier demanded that Mr. King submit to the people of Canada, his immediate proposals of the navigation scheme. "The Prime Minister looked up the report seven months ago and he has just released it for the information of the people," he observed. "The problems of navigation and power have been made distinctive and separate and King can no longer quibble over the difficulties in the way. In delaying the waterways he must definitely announce himself," he said amid cheers.

"We want the St. Lawrence developed. It will mean a cheaper cost of transportation and cheaper power, and we have the right to know exactly what he is going to do. He has the co-operation of the Quebec and the Ontario Governments in this project and now we have the opportunity to say to Mr. King and his friends in the Toronto Globe, what are you going to do."

Premier Ferguson went on to illustrate the tremendous advantages that the St. Lawrence Waterways will mean to the Bay of Quinte District. "It is of vital interest to you, it will put you right on the Great Lakes system with a route to the sea, and we are waiting with anxiety and impatience to know what the answer will be." Continuing, Mr. Ferguson declared that he is prepared to do all in his power as a representative of the people of Ontario to open a navigation system.

Status Is Shattered

Touching a new note in the present election campaign, Premier Ferguson charged that the Status with the Empire is gradually being broken by the constant hammering of the Liberal party. Professor Skelton and Hon. Ernest Lapointe are severing all links with the Dominion according to the speaker and soon only two will remain, the appointment of a Governor-General, and the appeal to the Privy Council. "Every connection with Great Britain has been rent asunder by the Liberal party," Mr. Ferguson charged.

"Confederation was created by each Province when certain ties were made with the Motherland but every one in a while the Liberals return and announce that the Status has been changed, but they never think of consulting the people of Canada when they alter the construction of Confederation," he claimed.

The Premier stated that never was there a time in the history when such a serious condition with respect to Canada's agriculture, labor and employment existed. "We must find such a way to protect the home market and you won't see that hanged, if you return the present government," Mr. Ferguson averred.

Alarm Is Spreading

He told his audience that alarm is spreading in the ranks of the Liberal party and pointed out that Premier King has changed his policies several times since the campaign started, amicably settled.

Brig.-Gen. B. R. Hepburn was also on the platform.

PEAK OF TOURIST TRADE NOT REACHED

While United States tourists spend close to $300,000,000 annually in Canada, this country's tourist expenditures in the United States are by far the greater, on a per capita basis.

During 1929 Canadian tourists spent $51,000,000 across the border, a Canadian expenditure of $9.10 per capita.

The per capita expenditure of the United States in Canada through tourist activity amounts to only $2.33 per capita.

It is believed here that the right methods of fostering the tourist traffic in Canada—good roads and more accomodation— would swell the United States per capita expenditures to the same high proportions as the Canadian per capita expenditures in the United States.

If the United States expenditures on tourist activity in Canada reached the Canadian figure of $9.10 per capita the total value of the trade to Canada would be $1,177,500.00 annually.

The New Law Makes Necessary

Every motorist should familiarize himself with the details of the new law at once.

In its general principles it insists that the motorist who causes damage must be able to pay, either personally or through insurance, or be barred from the road.

Also, this same suspension of license may be applied to motorists who are offenders in regard to those rules designed to safeguard person and property on the highway.

And such suspension of driving license through fault of driving, or failure to pay applies to all cars owned by the offender.

And, through reciprocal arrangements, this law applies to Ontario motorists when in other provinces or in the U. S. A. and to visiting motorists in Ontario.

MOTOR AGE BEHIND GRAIN SURPLUSES

Machinery displacement of horses and mules has much to do with the existing surpluses of grains on this continent and the grossly over produced condition of the agricultural industry, declares a recently issued publication of the Horse Association of America.

As a partial remedy of the situation the publication urges that horses and mules be used wherever and whenever they are found as cheap or operations as motor driven vehicles.

It is claimed that the destruction of the normal increase in horses and mules through the substitution of automobiles, trucks and tractors, has cut down the acreage needed for animal power production and maintenance from 107,162,500 acres to 52,503,000 acres in America.

AIR MAIL SERVICE FOR FAR NORTH

During the season of navigation, parcel post to points in the Mackenzie River District may be accepted at the same rate of postage as prevailed prior to the inauguration of the air mail service in that district, according to advice from the Deputy Postmaster General's Department.

In addition to this service there will also be the air parcel post service at the higher air parcel post rates. The boat service will not be as frequent as the air mail service and parcel post forwarded via this route will necessarily take much longer to reach destination than parcel post prepaid at the higher air parcel post rates.

The choice of the route for parcels to points in this district during the season of navigation will rest with the sender. Persons wishing to forward parcels by the air mail service should prepay them at air parcel post rates and endorse them "via air mail."

MARKET CRASHES BRING NEW DEMAND FOR UNIFORM LAWS

The Canadian investing and trading public is in the throes of another series of market crashes, with the result that the demand is becoming more insistent throughout the country for uniform legislation which would curtail the action of market gamblers who "sell short."

The November debacle caused a stir throughout Canada which was reflected in the prosecution of many brokers, several of whom were forced to close their doors. As a result the various provinces revised their laws, and a move was set on foot to bring about Dominion legislation. One good feature did result, and that was the introduction of a seven-year penalty for those found guilty of "bucketing" or failing to place a customer's order on the exchange.

"Selling short" is the practice of selling shares which the seller does not possess in an attempt to force down the price of the particular issue, and when if delivery is demanded, buying in the stocks at the lowered price to make delivery. Almost invariably this is done on margin, and with the depressed price many purchasers are decluded into selling.

Three remedies are suggested in Ottawa: the absolute prohibition of short selling; the taxation of short sales to such an extent as to make them impossible; and making delivery of all stock sold within a limited period.

Certain it is that the temper of the investing public of Canada has been sorely tried within the past eight months; the public has lost huge sums of money, thus aggravating the depression in trade circles and industry.

The Canadian action is viewed with interest in other countries, especially the United States, where Congressional action is foreshadowed by several resolutions having to do with the same question.

SEES RADIO SOVIET PROPAGANDA TOOL

Dissemination of propaganda on an international basis by broadcasting stations operating with power sufficient to shatter large portions of the globe could be effected without violation of existing radio laws, either international or national, according to Federal Radio Commissioner Harold A. Lafount. It is conceivable, says the Commissioner, that a station could be set up in Mexico and blanket the entire continent without transgressing the International Radio Telegraph Convention. Similarly, he states, "Even Russia might erect a station of fabulous power" to broadcast to the world the precepts of communism.

"Military administrations of all large nations, I understand, are giving thought to the problem, presented by radio broadcasting as a means of propaganda and counter-propaganda in warfare," he points out. "Censorship," which is generally invoked on all modes of communication in national emergencies, would have little effect on broadcasting, since radio knows no barriers, and booming power will carry the voice over vast expanses of territory."

It probably is far-fetched from the technical standpoint, that a station even with 50,000,000 watts power, located in Russia, could reach the millions of listeners on the American continent, says the Commissioner. With far less power, however, broadcasting stations in the Soviet Union could cover the entire European Continent.

"The question of censorship of international programmes has never arisen," he declares. "Conceivably as the law of nations, there is no law to prevent the wholesale dissemination of propaganda anywhere, but it is construed under the general laws of "friendliness" among nations." Commissioner Lafount points out that the international broadcasting of programmes has become more widespread since last year. It is one of the most important radio innovations of recent years. So great has been the interest advanced that it is now possible to send programmes from the United States by short waves to be picked up by other nations and vice versa.

FASCINATING LINKS IN CANADIAN HISTORY

John de la Cosa, who accompanied Columbus as a cartographer, on his exploration and discovery of North America, returned to Spain in 1500 and shortly after drew a map of the country which they had discovered and the country traversed in the journey. It is supposedly the first map which includes North America. The map was found and not found until 1832 when the original manuscript was discovered in Paris. In the map are 50 crests of kings and the Dominion Archives, at Ottawa, holds a good reproduce of six of the crests. The map is 40 by 78 inches and is of interest even to the most casual reader, as it is seeking information regarding the early history of Canada.

It is in color and to depict the winds La Cosa uses four heads of men, and the expression on four faces show whether they are favorable winds or not. Countries are divided by the picture of Monarchs sitting on the thrones, this finally being in the Europe portion which is reserved for the Holy Land and the temple of Zion, and Libia are shown in their respective niches.

Perhaps it is a legend but an interesting tale is told regarding the map. At once it is noticeable that it were being studied by forty people around a table, each one would face pointing directly in front of him. The legend runs that the nobles objected to having to read such maps upside down so this strategist made his map in a manner that all would be satisfied.

Trading posts on the coast of Africa and the Mediterranean are conspicuous. It is remarkable the clear way in which La Cosa sketched the East Coast to Florida and it is the wonder of the present day how he was able to achieve this after his voyage.

Of the 35,000 maps which are in the map room of the Archives, La Cosa's map is one of the most interesting and is well worth a great deal of study. Students studying the early life of the country view it with deep regard for the excellent work done by the cartographer.

Pity the man who does nothing for a living. He never knows when his job is finished.

EMPIRE TRADE is Canada's Road to Prosperity

World-wide conditions have created an economic situation that presents problems demanding the highest qualities of statesmanship for their solution. Since the war period, new tariff barriers have been created by many countries, restricting the outlets for Canadian products and necessitating new trade arrangements.

Early recognition of this trend provided the inspiration for the King-Dunning Budget, which has indicated the path along which Canada must proceed to ensure a continuation of her commercial prosperity. The prompt development of trade within the Empire is the logical solution of the enormous problem involved; and the enthusiastic manner in which the King-Dunning Budget has been received throughout the Empire ensures Canada a most favourable position at the Imperial Conference for the interchange of products.

Providing a market for Canada's farm products, ensuring the building up of a home-market for her manufactured products, the policy of the King administration offers the greatest assurance of Canada's future prosperity.

LOWER COST OF LIVING

Budgets during the past nine years of Liberal Administration have lowered tariffs on many commodities and implements of production; these reductions have automatically lowered living costs to the Canadian public. The King-Dunning Budget, which the electorate is asked to approve on July 28th, is an extension of this policy; dairy equipment and machinery in general placed on the free list; tea, porcelian and china, free under the British preference.

TAX REDUCTIONS

Sales Tax—Reduced from 6% to 1%.
Postal Rates—Reduced from 3 cents to 2 cents; penny postage re-established.
Cheque Tax—Reduced from 2 cents on every $50.00 to 2 cents over $10.00.
Receipt Tax—Abolished.
Transportation Tax—Abolished.
Insurance Tax—Abolished.
Telegraph Tax—Abolished.

Reduction in five years estimated to amount to $116,000,000.

TARIFF REDUCTIONS

1922—Sugar, agricultural implements, textiles, boots and shoes.
1923—British preferential tariff reduced by 10 per cent. where goods imported by Canadian port.
1924—Instruments of production used in agriculture, mining, forestry and fisheries.
1925—Well-drilling machinery and fishermen's engines.
1926—Sugar, automobiles, tin-plate etc.
1928—Implements of production in mining and fishing industries; fertilizers on free list.
1930—Tea, porcelain, china, vegetables, fruits, free under British preference.

Reduction in duties means reduction in prices.

WOMAN APPOINTED TO U. S. LEGATION

It seemed almost "poetic justice" that Miss Constance Harvey, whose home is in Buffalo, and who is the first woman vice consul to the American legation and the first woman to have such a place in Canada, should make her first public appearance and her first address at a meeting of the Zonta Club this week in Ottawa. The Zonta Club is composed of business and professional women, of outstanding ability in their respective work, and they are pleased to have Miss Harvey with them.

Women in diplomatic fields are new to Canada but not exactly new to the United States. Miss Harvey is the fifth woman who has been chosen for a foreign post and at the present time there are four in the service.—She received her education in France and Italy and took her course in international law in the United States.

In her address Miss Harvey stated that she thought it was her essential duty to make all possible contacts with women and she said that she had a relatively interest in Canadian women in what they are doing and what they are thinking. In establishing these contacts she considered she would have the best way of advancing national and international work.

FUTURE SEEMS ASSURED

Superintendent Taggart of the Dominion Experimental Station at Swift Current, Sask., in his report just issued, observes that in the open plain regions of Western Canada the future of this combine seems assured. Combine operators who have had fairly extensive experience are almost unanimous in stating that they expect to continue using the combine. At the same time, he points out that changes and modifications both in machines and croping practices will probably be made.

"BEAVER ADVERTISEMENTS PAY BEST. TRY ONE AND SEE"

FISHY

(By V. S. Pritchett)

He had not been near the place for thirteen years. All gone now, the boys—Kelly dead, his son dead. Denny, that waiter below, dead too, he supposed. The good old days dead. Above all, credit dead, strangled by tightening purse-strings — and the aching heart-strings, too, for that matter. That was the worst of all, Ireland had hardened. In the old days, now, if you hadn't the money in your pocket, sure any day would do . . . . .

Thus Tommy Hefferman stood musing before Kelly's Fish Dive, staring at the old brick with tears tart as lemon juice squirting to the corners of his big, pained eyes. There was a flight of steps leading down to the Dive. He considered the steps and his feet in relation to them. He considered the moon now riding high out of reach in a tottering sky, like a glass of something neat in a shaky hand; but it was Tommy who was tottering and shaky. He considered the dish of oysters with innocent crescents of lemon on them which stood on the counter at the bottom of the stairs; divine waters were secreted over his old teeth and tickled his tongue till it lept like a trout in his mouth. He considered finally his empty pockets, and those desiring waters dried in bitterness. Credit dead. Dead as a stone those good old days.

But as he stood with the tears now smarting on his two purple banks of cheek he heard a voice that made him clutch at the railings with excitement. Denny's voice! Or a voice like Denny's speaking to a customer in the Dive! Before Hefferan knew how he had done it he was down those slippery stairs and sitting up at the high counter, faced by a tall, lean, grumpy old man of fleshy, pimply baldness and with whiskey-angered eyes. Hefferman's heart thumped like a bar tender's lever. He looked fiercely around him at the little red room, the shells nailed all over the walls, the pictures of hunts and races cut out of old magazines and framed. He looked fiercely to disguise his inward panic.

"Sure, you don't know who I am!" challenged Hefferman, taking the offensive.

"Ah, now I do," said the man, fixing him and wondering who on earth he was.

"Ooch, you do not," badgered Hefferman.

"Sure, you're the gentleman.

"In the old days, the good old days before the war," put in the anxious Hefferman.

"Of course," lied the startled man, but not taking his eyes off the customer "I remember you. In the old days, indeed I do. I never forget a face."

But it wasn't Denny. At least, this old man with those eyes that screamed at you could scarcely be the old obliging Denny. And no Denny, no credit.

"And what's more," said Hefferman, pushing his bowler hat on the back of his head and deciding to make a fight, "I'll have me usual. I'll bet you don't remember that, now!

"Ooch; I remember that as plain as plain. I remember it . . . . .

"Man, you're a miracle. You remember me usual. Come on now, then. Bring them along."

There was clue enough in that plural for the old man. His pimples brightened.

"A half-dozen 'twas, I believe," he insinuated in triumph. "And, maybe, a bottle of stout . . . . .

Hefferman's black, round body expanded on the stool. The man was actually bringing him oysters! Marvellously!

"A half a dozen and a stout," said the man putting them down before Hefferman on the counter, "One-and-ninepence and fivepence for the stout; and he rights I ought to be charging you 2s."

Hefferman winced in the alcoholic fog which hung over him like a cloud over a mountain, but the sight of those oysters gave him confidence. He was succeeding. He made no attempt to pay.

"They're small," said he gruffly.

"Sure, what's the good of size without flavour?" retorted the man.

"Ah, but you want size . . . . .

"Ay, but without flavour . . . . ."

"Sure my father used to tell of the day sixty-seven years ago when they used to get oysters in the town of Galway at 6d a dozen. Shoveled them up with spades, they did," extemporised Hefferman.

"That's right. With spades," lied the old man, conceding no knowledge.

"As many as they wanted."

"As many as they wanted," agreed the man, but taking all the credit for the story, "And now begob," he continued on the offensive, "I could sell you oysters today at two-and-nine-pence . . . . .

"What d'you mean, you could sell them?"

"We could," said the man pausing dramatically, "But we wouldn't."

"You wouldn't?"

"Sure, they're Dutch. You wouldn't eat a Dutch oyster."

"Did you ever eat an American oyster?" asked Hefferman cautiously attacking.

"I did. There was a nice lady who kept a shop in Galway twenty years ago, a charming creature she was an' unmarried too, and she had a shipload of American oysters."

"Ah, well, then, you'll know what's wrong with them," said Hefferman striking back.

"I do, indeed. Sure, I saw an Irishman spit one out in a bar in New York and said 'twas a disgrace to the Atlantic Ocean," lied the man.

"That's the truth," agreed the nonplussed Hefferman.

"And when you open an oyster," said the man, following up his advantage, "you like that on his shell because it gives him a lofty appearance."

"An' gobble him off in his own juice," rejoiced Hefferman.

"Sure, when I think of the old days," cried the old man, carried away by his success. "The way you'd give the stuff away!"

"Prawns as large as your hand and as stiff as pokers," cried Hefferman.

"Salmon at seven pound apiece and cocked in a silver salver," cried the man.

"Whole dam cargoes of mackerel down at the South Wall, thrown away, used for manure," cried Hefferman, lying recklessly.

"Barr'ls of mackerel and all going to ruin in the sun and coming back tinned salmon, and the dearest part was the tin. Sure, the fish that came out of the deep in those days . . . . .

"In the three countries," almost shouted Hefferman, getting down from his stool, and shaking his waist into position, "in the three damn countries there's not two men have seen the fishes we have."

"Sure, I never forget a face," said the man. "When I saw you coming down them steps, says I, 'Sure, here comes one of the boys. It's what's his name,' says I."

"Hefferman, you remembered it!" said Hefferman.

"Hefferman. I said; 'after thirteen years.'"

"Dammh," said Hefferman, fumbling in his pocket. "That's strange. Where did I put that other half-crown. Sure—ah, the other pocket. Well, now, did you ever see the like of that. Sure, I can—pay—you all right, but if I do—dammit. I know I had another half-crown—if I do I'll not be able to get back home to-night."

"Ah, now—" protested the man.

"Och——" fumbled Hefferman.

"You pay me another time," said the man hurriedly, the pink blushes flooding the pimples of his face and drowning them.

"Powerful, powerful," muttered Hefferman, buttoning up his coat. "That's what makes the greatness of Ireland, In the three countries there's not a place like this. We don't forget our friends, do we? But I'll pay you all right. Not now, but some other time."

"Och, I know you'll pay me, tip-top you will," said the blushing man looking at the ceiling.

Tommy Hefferman found himself tracing his way through a kind of fog of benevolence and alcohol. The moon, moist and slippery as some divine oyster, lay in the pearly cloud-crinkled shell of the night.

"Now who the hell was that?" said the old man when he came to himself again and was throwing the shells away into the pail.

SHORT COURSE FOR DEPARTMENTAL JUDGES

Under the supervision of Mr. J. Lockie Wilson, Superintendent of the Ontario Agricultural Societies, a short course for Departmental Judges was held on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, July 2nd, 3rd and 4th, at the Ontario Agricultural College. Over 123 judges were in attendance which included plowing match judges, standing field crop judges, and judges of heavy and light horses, beef and dairy cattle, sheep, and swine.

Wednesday was devoted mainly to the plowmen, the time being taken up with demonstrations in the fields. In the evening a joint meeting of all judges was held in Massey Hall, where addresses were given on live-stock judging, crop competitions, and plowmanship by experts in each branch.

On Thursday and Friday the live-stock men and field crop men were divided in groups and the time spent in practical judging and discussion.

These courses were started about fifteen years ago, and have been held at intervals of two years ever since. Primarily they are to get the judges from all parts of Ontario together for purposes of demonstration and discussion so that a uniform standard can be kept for judging at competitions and shows throughout the Province.

In the words of James McLean, who was in charge of the plowing judges. "this year's course is the best ever, mind you not just as good, but the best ever."

REDUCTION IN DEATH RATE FROM TUBERCULOSIS

Tuberculosis continues to be the most outstanding feature of this year's health record.

"On the basis of what has happened, in past years, says the bureau of statistics of the Metropolitan Life, "we are justified in expecting that the tuberculosis death rate for the completed year will be at least eight per cent below that registered for the January to May period. In that event, we should record, this year, for the great body of our 19,000,000 insured wage-earners and their families, a tuberculosis death-rate of approximately 78 per 100,000. This would mark a reduction of 43.4 per cent in ten years and of 63.3 per cent since 1911.

"We must, nevertheless, face the fact that the conquest of tuberculosis is still far from complete. Despite these greatgains this disease still ranks third in importance to heart disease and pneumonia among the causes of death in these wage-earning populations, another year should witness its drop below cancer."

POULTRY GO TO WORLD SHOW

On the way to the World's Poultry Congress in London, England, 140 choice specimens from Manitoba and British Columbia, travelled across the continent specially constructed Canadian National Express cars. Interviewed here, they stated emphatically in clucks, grabbles, honks and quacks that they intended to carry off all the prizes in their classes. With them travelled J. R. Terry, Poultry Commissioner for British Columbia.

THE WAY OF LIFE

(By Bruce Barton)

A LETTER TO A YOUNG MAN

You ask me how you can get a better job.

My answer is that you can't.

All over the country are millions of young men, who, in a vague sort of way, want a better job; and here and there among them are worth-while few who want the better job.

And the millions wonder why the few move on, while they stand stationary year after year.

You must, first of all, pick out the better job—some particular job that is better than yours. Then train your guns on that and capture it.

You tell me that you are a bookkeeper and that you earn $25 a week.

I know certified public accountants who earn $10,000 a year and more.

If I were a bookkeeper earning $25 a week, I should go out for a public accountant's job. I might die on the road, but whoever found my body would notice that my face was toward the summit.

Second: You can never make anybody pay you more money until you have more to sell.

I can advertise in a newspaper tomorrow morning and have a hundred bright young men here at eight o'clock. Each one will have just as much to offer me as you have; the same two years of high school; the same experience in keeping books, the same good record. Every one of them will be willing to work for $25, and some of them for $18.

The only way you can lift yourself out of that $25 class is by giving yourself an equipment that the rest of the fellows in that class do not have. In other words, by study—by education—by specialized training.

Third: When you have picked out the one particular better job that you want, when you have fitted yourself for it then be careful of your letter of application.

Your letter is your representative. For heaven's sake, if you have in you any spark of originality that other men have not, make your letter a tiny bit different from the other letters that the other men will write.

Fourth: I receive many letters of application. In one form or another they usually say something like this: "I want a better job; I am thinking of getting married"; or, "I have a mother to support"; or, "I have been three years in this place without a raise and see no future."

All of which interests me not at all. The only letter that I read with interest is the letter of the young man who has studied my business and who points out to me how I can make more money for my employer by employing him.

Ideas are the keys that unlock big men's doors.

When you have fitted yourself for the better job, let your letter of application contain an idea.

THE GENTLE ART

According to one of the accounts of the Sharkey-Schmeling fiasco, after the foul blow has been delivered, "Sharkey, in tears, ran across the ring, and a loud argument followed."

What kindness and benignity
The fighters, on their dignity
And free from all malignity,
To their profession bring!
How dare you say brutality
Is still a speciality
Of that refined locality
The modern boxing ring?

They have to act pugnaciously,
But they can do it graciously—
And very ostentatiously
Each little lapse is felt.
Their courteous skill and knowledge is
The most-human of 'ologies,
And, O, with what apologies
They hit below the belt!

And thus, you see, it comes about
That they can knock their chums about,
And being each other's tums about,
Or bite each other's ears,
And still wave any blame away;
Of course, it gives the game away,
But they can wipe the shame away
By bursting into tears.

But I should like more cheeriness—
One feels a certain dreariness,
Indeed, a growing weariness
Of penitential bowls;
There might be more propriety,
And certainly variety,
In cutting out the piety
And cutting down the fouls.

CARE OF OLD CEMETERIES

In another place in this issue is a note from the Department of Agriculture concerning the control of weeds and the care of old cemeteries. In Napanee and on Thomas Street is a weed patch beneath which rests the remains of some honored citizens of the town. A little thought, care and work would make this a place of real beauty. At the present time, and it is rather disheartening to the memory of those whose remains lie buried there.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN YOUNG

The angel of death entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Young and called to rest their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Johnnie Young. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Young, of Marlbank, who deeply mourn her death. She was a great sufferer for seven weeks, but bore her suffering with Christian patience. All that medical aid and loving hands could do was done, but with no avail, and on Sunday morning, June the 8th, at Kingston General Hospital, she passed peacefully away to the Great Beyond. She remains were brought home on Sunday by the Tamworth undertaker. A funeral and the funeral was held from Christ church, Tamworth at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday morning. Rev. R. A. Penney conducted the service and spoke very feelingly, taking for his text: "In my Father's house are many mansions."

The funeral was largely attended and the floral offerings were beautiful, showing the respect in which deceased was held. She leaves to mourn her loss her devoted and sorrowing husband, her father and mother and four brothers and four sisters; a host of friends and relatives which deeply mourn her loss. She was carried to the grave by her husband's six cousins, Randal Wellman, Mr. Bob Williams, Mr. Herb Williams, Andrew Ridley and was laid in her last resting place in the family plot in Christ Church cemetery, Tamworth.

BIG NIGHT IN NAPANEE!

Pavement Dance, under auspices of the Napanee Band, on Friday, July 18th Music by Band and special Orchestra.

Join in the contest for prizes, participate in the fun. Help the Band secure uniforms. Admission 25. Management Committee, F. W. Knapp, Jas. Douglas, A. E. Smith, A. Mac Gregor, Bandmaster.

IS NAPANEE TO HAVE A REGATTA THIS SUMMER

Last summer an aquatic club was formed in the town and much interest and enthusiasm shown in water sports. This was somewhat of an innovation in Napanee and was well received by the public, who turned out in goodly numbers to witness the regattas. There is perhaps no branch of sport in which the public get so much real fun and enjoyment as at aquatic meets. It will be a pity if these in charge do not continue the programmes begun last summer, under such auspicious circumstances. The summer is passing quickly and before long it will be too late.

THE BAND TO HOLD DANCE

Recently, a few public spirited citizens formed themselves in a committee for the purpose of helping the Town Band to secure new uniforms. It is nearly twenty years since the present uniforms were purchased and they are hopelessly out of date, and completely out of fit. The Committee met with with success. They reduced over three hundred dollars. This amount, however, is only half enough to secure the uniforms. So the Band itself has undertaken to raise the remaining amount. They are planning a pavement dance, this to be held in the town square on Friday, the eighteenth. There will be prizes for the best old time fiddler, the best step dancer and the best caller off. The price of the tickets is twenty-five cents. If you are called on by the ticket sellers, buy two or three. 29ap

FREE SHOTS ON Local Sport

The winners in "Bill" Vine's latest barnyard golf tournament, had to pitch real shoes to come out on top this time.

* * *

Many a game was won and lost by one point, but one is as good as a dozen.

* * *

This sport looks simple and it is simple if you know how.

* * *

But to step up and toss a ringer every second shoe isn't simple, nor is it luck. It takes an eye and a hand that work together, as well as a lot of practice.

* * *

At its best, the game isn't strenuous but provides lots of exercise and the men who play are finding it mighty fine recreation.

* * *

And this game is like its more classy cousin. Once the bug gets you it gets you hard.

* * *

The local ball club is idle until July 26th, when they play their postponed fixture with the Adolphustown Maple Leafs. They are trying to arrange an exhibition game this week with one of the intermediate clubs from Kingston. This would show how they line up with the better teams.

The Maple Leafs are idle, too, and are trying to pull a game with Picton.

It is a great feeling to know that—"right now is the time" to vote in this election. We are working for better conditions for all the people on the farms and in the towns.

Our opponents' policy is one of patronage politics, benefiting only the favored few.

Ours is a policy of developing Canada for the Canadians of creating opportunities for all —Conservatives, Progressives and Reformers alike. Our supporters, from all walks of life are of all shades of politics, have the confidence that goes with doing good acts benefiting humanity. Our opponents lack confidence because they are supporting a policy that has reduced farm revenues, also the price of farm lands, and made labor conditions bad for the working man and woman.

I ask all fair thinking people who want to see improved conditions in this wonderful Canada of ours, to get behind me and help turn the King Government out. It is time for a change.

Yours faithfully,

John Weese

PRINCE EDWARD - LENNOX NOMINAIONS

Nominations for the riding of Prince Edward-Lennox took place at the Consol House in Picton on Monday afternoon. The only names submitted were John A. Weese and W. H. Benson for the Conservative and Liberals, respectively.

After the period allotted to nominations had expired, the returning officer, Mr. Milton Storms, was elected chairman of the meeting, which was then addressed by the following speakers:— John A. Weese and W. H. Benson, the candidates; Peter White, K.C., and supporting Mr. Weese and Rev. S. H. Roblin, supporting Mr. Benson.

The candidates spoke very briefly, referring to the chief topics in the programmes of their respective parties.

Peter White, K.C., emphasized the fact that 66 countries of the world had raised their tariff, shortly after the war, foreseeing the period of overproduction and giving their industries an opportunity to become established. Canada alone had taken no precautions until hard times had arrived and now our agriculture and other industries are left in a bad position.

Mr. White drew attention to the treaties with other Dominions of the Empire that the King Government had arranged, such as Australia, British West Indies, Newfoundland and obtaining for Canada preferential rates but missed the golden opportunity of doing the same with Great Britain.

He also denounced the one-sided French treaty by which Canada gave low tariff to wines, brandies, etc. and obtained only "favoured nations" treatment from France. This country has raised the tariff to prohibitive rates on such of our exports as wheat, until our former exports to France are now below our imports, whereas previous to the war every cent exports to France were higher than our imports from that country.

The speaker explained how unemployment and immigration were in such an unsatisfactory state, due to the mismanagement of the Liberals.

The Rev. S. H. Roblin, the speaker for Rev. Benson, was severely heckled on account of statements he made which were stated by the interrupters to be incorrect. The reverend gentleman appeared to become angry and threatened to get most of his effective men.

His voice quivered with emotion as he described how our markets had been opened to the rest of the Empire by John Dunning Budget while Mr. White prepared to show the loyalty of the King Government evidently. But he did not. Canada's co-producers were to meet this competition. Tariff posts were regulated by the chairman of the Tariff Board, according to Rev. Roblin, also Miss A. Brown.

Mr. Roblin did not affect prices. It is the law of supply and demand asserted the speaker, but he might remember that increase the price of the article. The Empire increases the supply, and reduces the price. Will the import of canned peas from the United States not lower the price by increasing the supply. Canned goods were not protected by increasing duties.

Trade is not a meritorious one. There had been no objection to the New Zealand tariff on butter until Hyndman's visit to the country and the dairy industry protested the duty was at once raised from 9c per lb to 4c. And as a matter of fact the duty does not come into force until October 12th and there is already en route to Canada from New Zealand enough butter to affect the Canadian market through 1931.

Another of his extraordinary statements was that unemployment is less per capita in Canada than in any other country in the entire world with the exception of France. This is ridiculous. There is no unemployment in France, Belgium or Italy, which lack our great natural resources, yet have arrived to this splendid condition through their tariffs. Another gem from Rev. Roblin's collection was that Mr. Bennett refused to see Ramsay MacDonald had pronounced the Dunning Budget. Al the Dunning Budget was pronounced A1 for Great Britain and has been acclaimed as a splendid gesture of loyalty by numerous English politicians and has been accepted as a dutiful pronouncement by no one in England has described it as Al for Canada.

The reverend gentleman's assertion that he knew more about Canada and the British Empire than his interrupters brought forth peals of laughter. He also was forced to take back a statement he made that Mr. Stevenson had supported a certain resolution at the meeting of the Empire Boards of Trade in England.

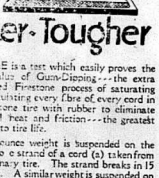
The Weight Test Shows Gum-Dipped Cords are Stronger-Tougher



HERE is a test which easily proves the value of Gum-Dipping—the extra patented Firestone process of saturating and insulating every fibre of every cord in a Firestone tire with rubber to eliminate internal heat and friction—the greatest enemy to tire life.

A two-ounce weight is suspended on the end of a cord (a) taken from an ordinary tire. The strand breaks in 15 seconds. A similar weight is suspended on a Gum-Dipped strand (b) taken from a Firestone tire—it remains unbroken for 45 seconds—three times as long!

Let your nearest Firestone dealer equip your car with a set of these stronger, tougher, more dependable tires that hold the world's records for mileage and endurance. See him to-day.

ERNESTTOWN WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The July meeting held at the Cedar Nook Camp was largely attended by our own members, declared they had a happy afternoon due to our gracious hostess, the Misses Hilda and Lucia McTear.

The "Little Camp for Little Girls" proved most interesting and the children, in fancy dress costume, gave a programme of songs, drills and a delightful operetta: "The Prince and the Fairy." We all enjoyed watching the afternoon swim and many remarked "what a happy little life they have at camp." Another pleasant phase of the afternoon was watching the mail being distributed.

Tea was served in the dining room and taxed the seating capacity to the very utmost.

The business meeting followed. The President, Mrs. Harry Meile being absent, owing to the regrettable illness of her mother, the First Vice-President, Mrs. Kenzal Priest, presided.

A committee, Mrs. Milton Thompson, Mrs. William Chaplin and Mrs. Leo Crowe, was appointed to take charge of the races and prizes at our annual picnic, August 14th.

The new District President, Mrs. Ernest Wright, of Violet, was welcomed by a good hearty clap and called up to address us. She spoke first of the importance of the girls' coaching classes, and of bovine T. B., which she explained, was likely to be in any herd, except accredited, which few of us have, and that the only safe guard against the dread disease was pasteurizing the milk which wasn't, after all, so very much work. Mrs. Wright explained clearly how it should be done. Put milk in a sealer or bottle, set in a container with water, and heat to 145 degrees and keep at that temperature for 20 or 30 minutes.

A vote of thanks to the Misses McTear, for their kind hospitality, and Mrs. Wright for her splendid talk, was moved by Mrs. Fred Hamen and seconded by Mrs. Claude Thompson.

EASY—QUICK—CHEAP

Constant improvements in telephone service have made out of town calls as simple and nearly as quick as a call to your next door neighbor, and the cost is lower than ever before. After 7.00 p.m. when evening rates begin, you can talk a hundred miles or more for about the price of a movie. 30

BATH WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The regular monthly meeting of Bath Women's Institute was held in the Town Hall on Thursday, July 17th at 1:30 p.m., with a good attendance.

It was the purpose of the meeting to make another effort to help boost Bath, by financing the making of a playground for the children, but as the parents of Bath, were not interested the plan will be put on the shelf. It was moved, seconded and carried that tenders for the grading and levelling of Elm Beach School yard be sent to Mrs. A. Button, the secretary-treasurer of the Institute. The Institute members feel the money they have to their credit should do good in an educational way and as this school grounds is badly in need of levelling, the Bath Women's Institute will put up the money for same if the tenders are acceptable. Please take and send tenders at once.

A splendid list of current events was given by Mrs. Stevenson. A letter of appreciation was read from the Library Board, thanking the B. W. I. for its aid. Bills were brought forward and moved—paid.

The next meeting is at the home of Mrs. D. Shelter. A good programme has been prepared. Lunch will be served.

Lunch was served and the meeting adjourned.

HER SYSTEM WAS IN A TOXIC STATE

MRS. E. WILKINSON

"I'd been troubled with indigestion for 20 years, Headaches, poor circulation and chronic constipation helped pull me down; my color was sallow and my whole system toxic. Sargon brought me remarkable improvement. I'm not my food without a trace of indigestion. I sleep fine and feel like I'd been made over.

Sargon Pills never leave the effect of having taken medicine, but they cleansed my system of poisons and consequently ended my constipation."—Mrs. E. Wilkinson, 273 Willis St., Toronto.

Sargon may be obtained in Napanee, at Hooper's Drug Store, who has been appointed the exclusive Sargon agency for this town.

UNIQUE CEREMONY TAKES PLACE AT OLEBROOKE

A pleasing ceremony took place at Colebrooke on Tuesday the 15th, on the beautiful lawn of Mr. Purcell, when twelve stalwart Conservative electors of Camden Township appeared and were photographed in groups, by Mr. Thomson, of Kingston, for the Toronto Telegram, Mail & Emptre and other papers.

The occasion was unique. These twelve men voted in 1878 in the Township of Camden for the national policy of Sir John A. MacDanld and will all vote again on the 28th of this month for the similar policy, now submitted under the leadership of Hon. R. B. Bennett, by reason of the Conservative candidate in the riding of Prontenac-Addington.

Dr. W. Spankie Speaks

Dr. Spankie, sitting member in the House of Commons for last session, was present and addressed the gathering on this occasion and added that he, too, had served in 1878, by acting as scrutineer for the Grand Old Chieftain.

The names and ages of the twelve gentlemen of Camden here referred to, are as follows:—

Calvin Lee, aged	86
H. R. Purcell, aged	92
H. A. Barrett, aged	88
Jesse Lee, aged	87
Robert Switzer, aged	86
Charles Lee, aged	83
Milo Huffman, aged	83
James S. Bell, aged	83
Nelson Walker, aged	83
R. Wilson, aged	82
Samuel Cameron, aged	82
Chas. Wellbanks, aged	81

All hale and hearty.

Reciprocal Trade Arrangements with Great Britian

This policy is now advocated by Premier Scullin of Australia.

The British Bankers' Manifesto declares Britain must adopt a reciprocal trade policy within the Empire.

This will be the policy supported by the British Dominions at the Imperial Conference in September.

Send Mr. Bennett to the Conference to see his policy is adopted.

The Countervailing Duties levied by the King Government are on articles that the U. S. A. selected in order to protect THEIR markets. The Conservative policy is to levy a duty on imports that compete with OUR products.

Mr. Bennett has pledged himself to assemble parliament immediately after the election if the Conservative party is returned with a majority and put through legislation to relieve unemployment any place in Canada. Canadian Gardening Service

Flower Week

If one wants a continual supply of flowers and a trim appearance in the garden generally, all fading bloom and any suggestion of seed should be removed. The production of seed saps the vitality of any plant and if it will not produce flowers and seed too. Alyssum and similar plants which produce a profusion of short- stemmed bloom may be snipped with a pair of shears when the flowers start giving place to seed, and they will send up a fresh supply of growth in about a week. After each rainfall, one must remember to loosen up the soil to conserve the moisture and let the air in. Just before the gladiolus start to bloom, it is advisable to sprinkle a little lime around the plants. This will give more depth of color to the flowers and will also sweeten the soil. Dying rose blooms, and bloom on the spirea, syringa and other shrubs should be cut off so that all nourishment will go into the plants and produce growth for next year's flowering. It is now time to ease up on cultivation around fruit trees, shrubbery and woody vines as growth on these must be hardened so that it will not kill back next Winter. It is a good plan to transplant a few well grown annual flowers around the rose bushes and shrubbery to check the growth while a cover crop of oats or vetch, or even weeds may be used for the same purpose among the fruit trees and bushes.

Thinning

Too often the mistake is made of not thinning all the vegetables. Many people think that because they can use very small beets and carrots it is not necessary to give them any room, but beets will not develop even to the greens stage unless evenly spaced. It is only necessary to give an inch and a half each way, and a little less for carrots. As a result of this light thinning, the vegetables will grow quickly, and quickly grown vegetables are always the most tender. It is not too late yet to sow a few beets, beans, and possibly corn but the seed should be soaked overnight to hasten germination and growth must be hurried by frequent cultivation and plenty of water.

Will Bloom Again

Most perennials can be made to bloom again if the first set of flowers are removed when about two-thirds of them are past their best. In doing this, it is important, particularly with the delphinium or perennial larkspur, to cut back all growth supporting the bloom. This may mean the removal of all stocks, but one usually finds when the first bloom of the season is nearing its end that second growth is well started from the bottom. With the phlox, remove the old bloom with a pair of shears, the removal of the stocks not being necessary. Columbine is usually cut right down, leaving only the second growth which comes up from the roots. After this pruning, it is well to dress the soil about the plants with some good fertilized and to cultivate well.

Enemies of Fruit

Two pests are liable to be particularly active among the bush fruits, just now. Currants, especially those of the red variety, are often almost defoliated in some quarters by the currant worm. To control, spray with one ounce of hellebore to a gallon of water. Adding a little soap to the water will help make the solution stick. If one has not a sprayer, dust the hellebore on in powder form while the dew is on the leaves, or after a light watering. This poison which must be fresh will also control the worms which eat the leaves of roses. Examine the raspberry bushes and if the tips of the new canes are wilting, one can be quite sure that cane-borers are at work. These grubs make rings around the tip of the cane and bore down inside. Cut off the tip well below the lowest ring and burn these cut off portions.

Remove all calluses and enlargements from your stock with Douglas' Eryplian Liniment, a wonderful remedy.

CANADA LEADS U. S. IN NEW LABOR LAW

Once again the United States has followed Canada's lead in the march towards perfect labor legislation. Just a few days ago the United States Government adopted labor legislation that was framed in this country more than ten years ago by the Borden Government.

This legislation has to do with the establishment of national employment agencies and cooperation by government employment agencies with local organizations.

Immediately following the war representation was made to the Borden Government that fake employment agencies were victimizing Canadian labor throughout the country and that even those that operated honestly were greatly interfered in method.

Resultingly, the Government established the Employment Service of Canada, paying half the cost of maintaining agencies in cooperation with the provincial governments.

Miller's Worm Powders will eradicate the worm evil that keeps so heavily on children and is believed to cause many fatalities. They are an accepted medicine to children and can be fully relied upon to clear the food channels thoroughly of these destructive pests, settle and restore the inflamed and painful surfaces to healthfulness. They are an excellent remedy for these evils.

STUDY SHEEP INDUSTRY

Dr. J. H. Grisdale has announced an economic survey of the sheep raising industry in Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia this summer. The Agricultural Economics Branch and the Experimental Farms of the Dominion Department of Agriculture will co-operate in carrying out the survey. This survey, which will include a complete study of conditions in the sheep ranching industry, marks the beginning of a programme of research work in agricultural economics on behalf of the Livestock Industry. It is anticipated that between 150 and 200 sheep ranchers will be visited in the three Provinces. Departmental experts will be assisted by representatives of the respective Provincial governments and of livestock associations in carrying out the work of the survey.

ROMANCE

Mary Bradley was one of those prosaic people whose big eyes are windows into fairylands. All her waking hours seem to dream in rivers of eternal delight. She had her troubles, and some of them souring if she had been disposed to take them that way. But no one bubble burst the iridescence of the next beguiled her fancy, and she forgot that she was hurt. It was patent to her neighbors that, unless she was lucky, she was bound to suffer for her dreams. To see her look at a young man made the spiteful shoot out their tongues. They said that she was "soap daft." It meant that she showed her longings more than was considered wise.

She had many affairs but they came to naught. Finally she settled her heart on Joe Bradley with a tenacity that was appalling. What she could see in him no one could guess. He was lazy, drank whisky to fighting limits, and his ways with women were not to be commended. But Mary waylaid him on every possible occasion, and through her big eyes he became Sir Galahad, and all the Knights of the Round Table besides. She looked so pitifully innocent that the novelty of it all appealed to Joe. So he married her.

There had, of course, been kind friends who had warned her what to expect from Joe. But she preferred to believe the evidence of her own, big eyes, which was just about equivalent to crystal-gazing. However, Joe did not leave the prophets long in suspense. A fortnight after the wedding he came home riotously drunk, and pushed Mary into the street. The prophets looked through their windows and patted themselves on their backs for their prescience. And that was all they did. Except Mrs. Hallet across the street from the Bradleys. She looked through her windows and patted herself on the back. But she also plodded across the street and cursed Joe Bradley with startling vehemence. Then she took Mary gently by the hand and brought her to her own home. She made her bed upon the couch, and there Mary rested for the night until the storm has passed.

The morning after, Mrs. Hallet went across with Mary and gave Joe Bradley a piece of her mind. He took it manfully, and confessed that he remembered little about the business, and added that he would like his breakfast as soon as possible. He stroked Mary's hair and kissed her, and she lec plopping tears roll from her big eyes on to his gorgeous waistcoat. Which put her on for another three weeks, when she again slept at Mrs. Hallet's after showing her a disturbing black and yellow bruise across her breast. Mrs. Hallet was a fine strapping woman, and she told Joe the next day that it was a good job for him that he had not her to deal with, as she would have made him a mess of poker brush. But Joe merely remarked that it was easy to understand Mrs. Hallet passing his checks in. It was the easiest and cheapest way of dodging a nagging wife. And when Mary came across he took no notice whatever of her. She made his breakfast without a murmur, and when he went out she came to the door to watch him go down the street. Mrs. Hallet was peeping through the window, and she took in Mary's big eyes made her go and help the cupboard door with her clenched fists.

There was little alteration in the programme for about two years. Then Joe's luck was born and at Christening, big Joe got drunk, and Mary and the King Government will suffer most. Unemployment and general economic depression resulting from the whole situation are the considerations by which the people of the provinces are being most influenced. The government is believed likely to lose heavily in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and in Alberta it seems that it will relinquish a few seats to the Conservatives, while some of the U. F. A. candidates whose election is assured, will be ready to support Mr. Bennett. Reports received from a large number of organization from its numerous branches in the West indicate the prospect of a veritable landslide against the ministry on the prairies, particularly in Manitoba and Saskatchewan. In British Columbia, there appears to be no more than one weak riding in the list held by the Tories in the last parliament.

The Liberals have been counting heavily on gains in Ontario, but advices from Toronto and other parts of the province fail to provide any justification for this. The Conservatives had fifty-four Ontario seats in the House of Commons, and there seems to be no reason why they should not increase this.

The opinion in some quarters is that if the Province of Quebec does anything for Mr. Bennett it will contribute to a clear majority over all other parties in the House of Commons, and the reception the Conservative Leader has been accorded in the French Province is considered to be significant.

AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE

Canada's participation in the World's Poultry Congress at the Crystal Palace, London, England, July 25-30, takes a three-fold form: a National Exhibit, a Livestock Exhibit and a Poultry Exhibit. The Poultry Experts of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, and throughout Canada have been associated with the Exhibition Artisans of the Departmental Staff in producing the economic worth of Canadian poultry breeding stock is shown through the presentation of pens of live-bird specimens of the finest Registration and Record of Performance poultry; these emerge from a background of Canada in panoramic relief showing splendid mountains, fertile prairies, thriving industrial centres and busy seaports—a background appropriate to a national menace as it is pointed out by the Bureau of Statistics of the Metropolitan Life that the majority of victims are under age twenty.

In Canada, in 1928, no less than 1,023 people were drowned, as compared with 1081 deaths by automobile accidents. According to provincial re- turns, the casualties for drowning in Canada were as follows: Prince Edward Island, 10; Nova Scotia, 31; New Brunswick, 50; Quebec 276; Ontario 273; Manitoba 59; Saskatchewan, 45; Alberta 65; British Columbia, 106.

The complete figures of drowning fatalities in 1929 are not yet available owing to delays in certain provincial returns but on the basis of the gradual increase for the last five years it is estimated the 1929 figures for drowning fatalities will be approximately 1125, which is a higher percentage than that reported the United States, having regard to the volume of population.

In both countries, the fact is featured that in the majority of accidental drownings, the cause is attributed to bravado and imprudence.

SEE TREND AWAY FROM GOVERNMENT GAINING IMPETUS

Possibility of Conservatives Having Largest Group Following Election

Ottawa. — Unprejudiced observers now regard it as a distinct possibility, failing any unforseen development in the last week of the campaign, that Mr. Bennett will have considerably the largest group in the next parliament. As polling day approaches the tide in his favor appears to be gaining rapidly in volume.

Such a manifestation of a definite trend of public sentiment as has developed within the last week or two was hardly expected in this campaign. It is surprising even the closest and most experienced of political observers. Evidence that even hitherto confident Liberals have become convinced that their cause has suffered a setback is easily discernible.

People in close touch with the business community—financial men, traveling representatives of investment houses, commercial travellers and others who go about the country in the course of their business—report that everywhere there are signs of public hate turned away from the government.

Unless all signs fail, it is in the West that the King Government will suffer most. Unemployment and general economic depression resulting from the whole situation are the considerations by which the people of the provinces are being most influenced. The government is believed likely to lose heavily in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and in Alberta it seems that it will relinquish a few seats to the Conservatives, while some of the U. F. THE KING GOVERNMENT'S TARIFF RECCORD

Let the record be read of Mr. King and his colleagues on the fiscal issue. First, we have the finance minister, Hon. Charles Dunning, who, while premier of Saskatchewan, introduced the famous free trade resolution in the Saskatchewan Legislature condemning protection as a particularly immoral form of robbery. There is Hon. T. A. Crerar, an equally extreme free trader. There is Hon. Charles Stewart, who, two or three years ago, pronounced the death-knell of protection in the House of Commons. Next comes Hon. W. R. Motherwell, minister of agriculture, and Colonel the Hon. Cardin, who, when he was a member of the Meighen cabinet, voted for a Government that will form the subject and always against first, the interests of the British Empire second, and the interests of foreign countries quite a long way after. The record of the Conservative party on the fiscal question is absolutely consistent. Conservative cabinets have never wavered on this issue. They have always been friendly to the closest possible national and soundly British in their outlook. The gate of a new era of confident progress and prosperity is therefore open to the electors on July 25th.

DROWNING ACCIDENTS BECOMING NATIONAL MENACE

Drowning accidents in Canada and in the United States are becoming more frequent from year to year. Indeed it is considered appropriate as a national menace as it is pointed out by the Bureau of Statistics of the Metropolitan Life that the majority of victims are under age twenty.

In Canada, in 1928, no less than 1,023 people were drowned, as compared with 1081 deaths by automobile accidents. According to provincial returns, the casualties for drowning in Canada were as follows: Prince Edward Island, 10; Nova Scotia, 31; New Brunswick, 50; Quebec 276; Ontario 273; Manitoba 59; Saskatchewan, 45; Alberta 65; British Columbia, 106.

The complete figures of drowning fatalities in 1929 are not yet available owing to delays in certain provincial returns but on the basis of the gradual increase for the last five years it is estimated the 1929 figures for drowning fatalities will be approximately 1125, which is a higher percentage than that reported the United States, having regard to the volume of population.

In both countries, the fact is featured that in the majority of accidental drownings, the cause is attributed to bravado and imprudence.

AUTUMN INFANTS SHOW MOST VIGOR

Babies born in September have the best chance of surviving according to statistics by the health department of the children- dying during the first year of life. Only 7 per cent of the September infants perish during the first year of life, while the death rate in other months is phenomenally but consistently higher, the babies less than one month old being the most vulnerable, and which declines almost entirely upon-life-sustaining material reaching the ripe old age of one month. Nearly one-fifth of all deaths occur among babies less than one week old.

The particular vitamin which promotes vigor in an infant is designated as Vitamin E. It comes from the germ or kernel of the wheat, from green vegetables, from vegetable oils, egg yolk, but not principally from milk. Thus most babies thoroughly and a vegetable diet with abundance of Vitamin E, during the Spring and Summer months, and therefore children born in September have acquired a maximum prenatal

ONE GOOD RECIPE MAKES A COOK FAMOUS

A chilled pudding is almost an essential dessert for the hot weather. Particularly if the main course has consisted of hot meats and vegetables a cold dessert is most appreciated.

Chocolate Cream Pudding will be found to be very delectable. Melt 2 squares chocolate, add 4½ tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, ¼ teaspoonful of salt, 3 tablespoonfuls sugar and ½ cupful of cold water. Meanwhile scald 1¼ cups evaporated milk mixed with 1 cupful water in the top of a double boiler. Pour a little of this scalded mixture on the chocolate mixture and blend. Add this to the remaining scalded milk and stir constantly until mixture coats the spoon. Cover and cook for 25 minutes, stirring occasionally. Beat one egg slightly, add 3 tablespoonfuls sugar, and pour the pudding over the egg mixture, stirring constantly. Continue cooking and return to the double boiler to cook a minute longer. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla, beat up well, and pour into cold wet moulds or sherbet glasses. Chill. Serves 6.

HALF A MILLION RADIO LICENSES

Over 150% of Canada's farm houses are today equipped with radio receiving sets, it is stated by Commander C. P. Edwards, Director of Radio Service in Canada.

During the first half of 1930 nearly half a million radio licenses were issued in Canada. There are at present 70 broadcasting stations in this country.

STREET DANCE

Friday night the streets of Napanee were crowded with merry makers. Cars were parked for blocks around and the people were in the town in hundreds. And all the excitement was occasioned by the street dance which was footered and carried out by the band in order to secure funds for their new uniforms.
The space in and around the market square had been reserved for dancing. And the Town Hall, with its pillars and beautiful lights never looked more attractive. At first a bit shy about entering the dancing, the people gradually overcame the diffidence. By nine o'clock the whole square was filled with a merry, happy swirling throng.
To add to the interest in the affair a band had offered prizes. The prize for the best caller off was divided between W. Maracle and W. Hearns.
Robert Brand, of Deseronto, took the prize as the best step dancer, while Clayton Johns, of Deseronto, walked off with the prize for the best fiddler. The lucky winner was 262.
Besides providing a fine piece of wholesome fun for the community, the dance added a nice little bit to the coffers of the band and advances the fund a step further on the way to its completion.

THE CHRISTENING OF "D" COMPANY

On Saturday morning last "D" Company of the Hastings Regiment, recently formed in Napanee, Picton and Trenton, completed their annual training.

Every company has its traditions, its customs, and up to a full attendance of the boys were of good physique, and on the whole a very creditable show.

The Provincial Regiment has good reason to be proud of its record for the year. The number mustered early in the camp, was judged the best.

The General Officer Commanding Military District No. 3 was an enthusiastic over the splendid appearance of this battalion, stating that he sent a Brigade Major to Lieut.-Col. Harman, to compliment him on it.

The individual highest score for musketry in the Division, was obtained by Sergeant Reeve, "B" Company, who obtained 111 out of a possible 115. In the entire regiment the musketry average increase was from 33% in 1929 to 97% in 1930. Lewis gunnery was increased 100% in efficiency. Captain G. L. Paul, who had charge of rifle and Lewis gun work, was able to enter three teams who had qualified as first class gunners this year, as against one last year.

Lieutenant-Colonel J. Harman was continually complimented on the appearance of his lines, as well as on the fine appearance of his regiment on parade, and on their fast-growing efficiency on tactical and ceremonial manoeuvres.

On the last day, the General Officer Commanding, took occasion to walk down to the Provincial Camp, and to congratulate Lt.-Col Hannah on his regiment. To Major Babcock of "B" company, he said: "You have certainly brought in a splendid company."

Corporal Charles Amey, "B" company was successful in winning the 440 yard race and in getting second place in the 100 and the 220. This N. C. O. is being given a commission as 2nd Lieutenant in "D" Company, there being no vacancies on the "B" Company establishment at present.

It was easily the most successful camp the Regiment has held since the war, but the success must not be confined to the N. C. O.'s and Officers. Every man in the Regiment strained every effort for the unit, and never were a more willing group assembled. For instance, when a special platoon competition was expected, and volunteers were asked for, who, it was explained, would be asked to practice in the evening, when their time was actually their own, practically every man volunteered, and those who did not, came forward with apologies, saying that they would be proud to do it, but that they were afraid that they were not quite good enough to represent the Prontenac. Never was a grumble heard the boys all preferring to stay in and work, rather than go out to a movie show. Never was a crime or a misdemeanor reported.

And when at last the camp was finished, practically every man present signified his desire to attend next year, if possible. A regimental spirit exists in the Prontenac Regiment that can be second to none, and with such a splendid spirit, fostered by the old traditions of what the Regiment has done in time of peace and war for one hundred and thirty-eight years, we can look for still greater work for the future.

The officers from Napanee who attended camp were: Capt. H. L. Armstrong, Adjutant; Lt.-Col. J. Hannah, Officer Commanding; Captain J. L. Murray, Paymaster; Major H. L. Babcock, Captain G. L. Paul, Lieuts. E. C. Robson, P. Henderson, E. Watts, and 2nd Lieuts G. C. Robson, A. R. Herrington and H. R. Loucks.

DORLAND

We wonder if the person that made the remark that the Dorland Fleas were lazy, have changed their minds? The Fleas discovered that they needed a soft ball and that the easiest way to get one would be to win the one offered by the Bayhorse Girls to the winning team at the lawn social Thursday night. The first innings neither Conway or the Fleas scored, but right away a change was made and it sure kept the score keeper busy. The Conway girls just seemed not to be able to get the ball any place where there wasn't a Flea and the Fleas did not get the ball any place where there was a Conway girl. J. Bayhorse's Girls to the winning team at the lawn social Thursday night. The first innings neither Conway or the Fleas scored, but right away a change was made and it sure kept the score keeper busy. The Conway girls just seemed not to be able to get the ball any place where there wasn't a Flea and the Fleas did not get the ball any place where there was a Conway girl. J. Bayhorse's Girls had a big final, never allowed a ball and only three flies out of the Conway girls' bats. Mary Dickson pitched, allowing only 3 hits. Conway seemed to need Dorland's practice, for they were batting the ball almost with them. Dorland's pitchers are second and Rose Lemon, on third picked up a number of nice catches. B. Lawrick knew how a "good short" should throw a ball, even if she is little. The "three" Gallaghers were perfectly at home in the field although they were hardly there long enough to show how they could play. Eleanor Sills and Mary Allison, on the Conway team, played good ball and scored the two runs that were made. Mrs. C. Hinds played well on first base but never seemed to be able to get the ball there on time. At the end of the seventh innings, the score was 17-2 in favor of the Fleas and owing to the dark and the lateness and the fact that the Fleas wanted that new ball and the cream, the game was called finished and celebrated. The Dorland Fleas and their Bayhorse manager want to thank the Dorland boys for several good turbs by the game and Mr. Edward Lemon, as umpire.

CHILLED BEES

One of the greatest causes of bee losses in the early spring is not disease, but the effects of exposure and chilling, states C. B. Gooderham, the Dominion Apiarist. Manipulation of the bee colonies during the spring and early summer is necessary to determine that the colonies are headed with a prolific Queen, well supplied with food, and with room to produce new bees for the honey harvest, but any manipulation which results in a chilled brood defeats this purpose. The principal causes of chilled broods are: examination of colonies when outside temperatures are too low; splitting the brood nest; and lack of protection.

LIVESTOCK SITUATION

In his annual report on conditions in the Livestock market, the Dominion Livestock Branch calls particular attention to reduction in cattle output. The report states: "The sales of commercial cattle during the past five years showed every evidence of having reached a low point in the production field. During the past two years our combined sales to yards, plants and on direct export have declined below the million mark. . . Direct exports, however, increased by about 2,000 head, and direct sales to plants by about 7,600 head. It also reports growing activity in the Province in livestock production generally, and throughout the Dominion in sheep and lamb production.

THE CITY OF FIUME

Italy's Glittering Gem of a Port from Which Business Has Departed.

Fiume, the divided city, the outpost of two states, is at the very tip of Italy's most eastern point of expansion. Much of the city is in Italy, but it is divided by a small river and the part beyond that is in Jugoslavia. A short bridge joins the two countries, and the railway station at both ends let hundreds of people cross daily, for many live in one part of the city and do business in the other. However, there isn't much business done in the Italian part of Fiume, says a correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor.

Everyone knows that Italy is shaped as a boot, with the heel turned east. If one pretended that his left arm were the Adriatic sea running along the back of the boot between Italy and Jugoslavia, then his left hand, held palm downward, with the fingers together and the thumb distended, would roughly resemble the forked upper end of the sea. At the tip of the forefinger is the excellent port of Trieste, which before the war handled a large part of the traffic of lower central Europe.

At the end of the little finger across the sea from Trieste is Venice, Europe's most mysterious, captivating city, resting in the water. The peninsula between the forefinger and the somewhat distended thumb is the territory which Italy won from Austria as a result of the great war. Across the peninsula, at the end of the thumb, on the inside, is Abbazia, a much frequented seaside resort.

At the end of the thumb, on the outside, is Fiume, the divided city. One may travel from Trieste, across the mountainous peninsula of Abbazia, over an excellent automobile road forty miles long, in an hour and a half. Tied from Abbazia one goes in ferryboats across the end of the sea to Fiume, forty cool and delightful minutes away. Almost the whole shore is lined with bathers.

But as one enters Fiume's excellent harbor, all is quiet and still. There is no business, no traffic, no going and coming of boats. Nationalistically saved, romantically delivered by the Italian poet, d'Annunzio, Fiume is commercially ruined. All the business of Jugoslavia goes through her part of the port, Rijeka; all the traffic of Austria and northern Italy goes through Trieste. Fiume sits proud, attractive, patriotic and penurious. The grand governor's palace glistens on the heights. Beautiful villas stand out white upon the treecovered hills. Several magnificent new buildings have been put up. Fine looking banks have been opened. But her port is nearly idle, and the enormous warehouses stand empty. Fiume is all dressed up, but has no place to go, or rather has nobody to come and make her a visit. Italy feels happier to have Fiume as her port, though it is idle, than she would be to see it busy though a free port.

Slowly but surely the trade of Central and Hungary and Italy has to use it as her shipping point. Perhaps it will again welcome and send off heavily laden ships, and the flag of Hungary will be seen once more on the Adriatic. At present it is a white, glittering gem at the tip of Italy's empire, and a trip from there to Abbazia on a jaunty little ferryboat, along the rim of the Adriatic, is a delightful way to spend part of an August day.

Muses Where Worshipped.

We speak loosely of the Muses very often without realizing that they were actually worshipped by the ancients as Goddesses of Song. There were nine of them, a fact which has given a kind of "lucky" character in musical matters to that number. They were Clio, the narrator or reciter; Euterpe, the bringer of joy; Thalia, the blossoming; Erato, the lovely; Melpomene, the singer; Terpsichore, the dancer; Urania, the heavenly; Calliope, the beautiful-voiced; and Polyhymnia, the many-voiced.

In these descriptions will be found the broad idea that the Ancient Greeks ha l of song, and the complete aspect of it which can be applied to it to-day. When we speak of Parnassus, also, we use a Greek word that means the Hill of Song, though it is often used as meaning the place where artists of all kinds get their reward of fame. It was originally the dwelling-place of the Muses.

World's Bravest Woman?

Having seen a woman who has slept alone in the jungle grow terrified at the sight of a mouse, I must incline to view that Mrs. A. Tuck, of the Mousery, Rayleigh, Essex, England, is the world's bravest woman, says an Old Country correspondent. For Mrs. Tuck lives day and night surrounded by mice, thousands of them, grey, black, white, pink, blue, and chocolate-colored mice. Her husband breeds them for experiments conducted by scientists. Rats, too! One shed alone contains 1,500 female mice with 5,000 babies. Mrs. Tuck is not the least disturbed, however, although her house is within a hundred yards of the mice sheds.

Need $222,000,000 Repairs.

Conditioning of New York state highways to keep pace with the deterioration due to heavy motor travel, as well as new construction to meet the demand for more routes, will require the expenditure of $222,000,000 during the next five years, A. W. Brandt, state commissioner of highways, has just announced.

The program he suggests calls for the rebuilding of 1,000 miles of road a year for the next five years.

PARADOX

She now lived completely in her little room. Every other room in the house was assertively modern. Her children loved her tremendously, but her presence became at a time before they came. So they left her a room that should be entirely what she wished it to be. Everything in it, like herself, seemed wrapped in soft, velvety quietude. She was very old—and very weary.

Sometimes they came up and told her of happenings that were of vast import to themselves. She liked to hear them chattering, but what they said mattered little to her. The richest gain in life now was rest and peace. Long spells of solitude she did not mind. It gave her scope for reinspection. She was not unhappy. Indeed there was something pleasant about this sleepy drifting in placid waters.

Her room was very tiny, but it was big enough to hold the things she prized the most. There was the piano which they had bought when she married. The keyboard was two octaves smaller than the lively instrument downstairs. But this had two beautiful brass pillars to support its keys, and tried back of extraordinary height. It was an oddity now, but she cherished it for its quaint loneliness. Sometimes her daughters would play upon it for her special delight. She prided herself that it had a good tone. But its melody came curiously muffled, as though it had travelled a long way.

On her mantelpiece she kept a few choice pieces of Chelsea ware. He presented that he knew something about porcelain, she remembered, and she was with the humbling demand that he was pleased with the quality of the glaze and the way it reflected so cheerfully the lighted candles by their sides. There were no candles in the brass stags now. It was one fault. She kept forgetting to ask her daughters to bring some when they went down the line.

From her chair she could see a vast stretch of rolling Lancashire moorland and the blue hills of the Pennines behind. Occasionally she lifted her eyes to their sombre beauty, but not very often. She haad danced in sunshine on those moors, but that could not happen again. Her dancing blood was thinned. She did not worry, but just sat still with her fragile hands resting in her lap. There was grace and refinement still in her hands, but they reminded one pathetically of withered flowers. Or perhaps of an ancient piece of ivory carving behind that pitiful tracery of blue.

She was bent, but her crouching was not due to senility. Someone from the window there was to be found in her that majestic quality which moved Whistler to paint his old mother as a symbol of all old mothers. She was indeed now too old and useless to be anything else than a symbol. It was to her children's credit that they loved her still for that.

In a mahogany cabinet she kept her most intimate treasure. Some things she gloated over in secret, but one letter she kept near the glass. It was a harmless piece of sentiment. Once on a time—when she was a young and pretty girl—she stood at the edge of a crceed whilst a prince drove past. He like herself was young and gay, and he wore a purple in his breast. As he drove past he waved his hand, and the flower dropped from his coat and fell into the street. She rushed in from timidity and fear, and when she got home placed it in her album. Soon after the Prince died, and she kept the flower in remembrance. And when she grew old, and sorrow came to the mother of the Prince and to herself, she sent the flower to the Queen. It touched the Queen deeply that her son had been remembered so many years. It hurt nobody in particular that the Queen's letter had the placed of honour.

Above the mahogany cabinet there was a portrait in water-colour of a very pretty girl. She had singing eyes, and the artist had caught well the sparkle of youth. There was something in common between the young girl and the patient old lady who sometimes lifted her questioning eyes to the picture. The old lady did not remember the girl, though it was her own mother who had died in giving her birth. It seemed strange that her mother should be perpetually young and that she herself would shrivel into age. Why did people express such sorrow at the passing of the young? Was it so much better that they should grow old?

Her mother was so absurdly young! Here she was, a frisky, winsome child of a girl, laughing down at a daughter old enough to be her grandmother. In plain truth she had long since renounced the very idea of being her daughter. In middle age she actually paired her mother off with her youngself. They went out together, and enjoyed themselves immensely at parties. They sat together in candlelight and talked romance. It was a strange how-dye-do!

When middle age slipped past, her younger self sailed into the mists, and she stood by her mother with the wistful anxiety born of shattering experience. What could one do? With a mother that never grew old? What would happen if she did meet her daughter? Her own children had the good fortune to have kept their own mother in true perspective. They could not have told (nor could she) the exact moment when guidance fell from her hands into their own. They could not have said how or when it happened that their mother had become old. She had gathered round her like a robe an eerie spiritual beauty that terrified them. But they clung to her and vowed that she could live for ever. But she herself thought that the gap in years between her own withered person and her laughing mother was more than reasonably wide.

She wanted to look her best if they did meet.—T. Thompson.

NEW PLANT LABORATORY

One of the most important developments of recent years in the Horticultural industry in Canada was the opening at St. Catharines on June 30th, of the new Plant Pathological Laboratory of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. It is important and unique thing about the St. Catharines laboratory is that for the first time since its inception in 1913 pathological research in connection with orchards, small fruits and vegetables can be conducted in orchards and crops which form a part of the new institution. In addition to a thoroughly modern eight-room laboratory building, ample greenhouses and field study facilities are provided. It should prove of real benefit to fruit and vegetable growers throughout Canada.

COUNTERVAILING DUTIES APPLY TO MOST COUNTRIES

A ruling of considerable importance in connection with the British Preferential rates in the Canadian tariff has just been issued by the Department of National Revenue, whereby British countries which increase their tariff on any commodity in the countervailing list are automatically deprived of the British preference.

The statement issued by the Department makes this clear. "It is being departmentally ruled," says the Commissioner of Customs, that except in cases where fixed rates of duty are provided in trade agreements with Canada on goods imported into Canada, the countervailing or equivalent rates of duty, wherever provided for in tariff items, shall apply to importations from all countries which impose upon such goods produced in, and imported from Canada, rates of duty higher than those specified in the Customs Tariff of Canada, including countries which enjoy the benefits of the British Preferential tariff, save trade agreements with Canada or enjoy the benefits of such trade agreements.

KEEPING EGGS FRESH

Considerable interest attaches to experimental tests now being made by the Poultry Division of the Dominion Department of Agriculture in the possibilities of keeping eggs fresh through the use of Carbon-dioxide. The theory of the experiment is that as eggs from the moment they are laid give off carbon-dioxide with resultant deterioration of albumen and yoke, that if this loss can be counteracted eggs can be transported without any essential loss of quality. Some success has already attached to the shipment of eggs in containers holding carbon-dioxide, and the range of shipment may be materially extended if the use of dry ice, now being experimented with, proves all that is claimed for it. Dry-ice instead of melting evaporates, and in evaporating gives off carbon-dioxide; this, theoretically provides a supply of carbon-dioxide to counteract egg loss in this element.

HOW TO FARM BURNT-OUT LAND

Six years of experimental work provide some interesting results as to the possibilities of farming the so-called burnt-out lands of certain Prairie areas. There is estimated to be some 650,000 acres of this type of land, and experts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture are making an intensive study of methods of working it to advantage. Preliminary studies indicate that breaking and levelling form an important part in the rehabilitation of this type of acil, and also that such crops as sweet clover and grasses tend to improve the soil. Particular attention is being paid to experiments with fall-ploughing and the time and depth of breaking, the value of back-setting, listing, subsoiling, manuring, liming, and similar special treatments designed to improve the tilth of the soil.

BOYS' CAMP AT BEAU RIVAGE ISLAND

Beau Rivage Island in the St. Lawrence River near Gananoque, right in the heart of The Thousand Islands, will be the beautiful site of a unique boys' camp this summer.

From all parts of Ont. nearly one hundred boys of teen-age, members and leaders of the Tuxis movement in Eastern Ontario, will live life in the full in this natural playground. Here they will gather for eight whole days of inspirational fellowship, of instruction in worth-while subjects.

Instruction classes in Bible study, leadership training, group games, as well as camperaft, canoeing, and swimming, to say nothing of the fine musical appreciation periods, are being planned under an outstanding faculty of leaders.

Last year this camp was an unparalleled success and all signs point to an even greater camp this season. Information regarding Camp Tuxis on Beau Rivage Island may be obtained from the Ontario Boys' Work Board, 299 Queen Street, West, Toronto.

EMPIRE TRADE A VITAL NEED

In the past ten years new tariff barriers have been created by many countries, restricting the outlets for Canadian products.

Such restrictions naturally lead to reduced buying power on the part of the people, in turn affecting manufacturers and producers in every line.

This problem has demanded the highest qualities of statesmanship for its solution and, the trend having been early recognized by the King Administration, a non-partisan and highly competent Tariff Board was appointed. The result of the tireless efforts of this Board is the King-Dunning Budget.

The prompt development of trade within the Empire is the logical solution of the enormous problem involved; and the enthusiastic manner in which the King-Dunning Budget has been received throughout the Empire ensures Canada a most favourable position at the Imperial Conference for the interchange of products.

Providing a market for Canada's products, ensuring the building up of a home market for her manufactured products, the policy of the King Administration offers assurance of Canada's future prosperity.

KEEPING DOWN LIVING COSTS

King Budgets during the past nine years have kept living costs down. Tariffs have been lowered on many commodities and implements of production, reducing living costs, and costs of production while at the same time helping Canada to build up the greatest export trade per capita, in the world, in manufactured and semi-manufactured goods.

SPEED AND THE FUTURE

Public meeting in the Old Country to discuss ex. the Empire-wide question of trying his speed-boat on Lake Windermere. There was a shower of proposals to the effect that each body of water should try. "What was the use?" a good many correspondents wrote to the Rugby papers. The complete answer has been supplied by Sir Henry Storey before his death, when he wrote to a London daily these significant words:—

"Speed will be the keynote of the world in the future, and this country has got to lead if it is going to live. War does speed always mean more speed for speed's sake. It means, as an ensilver appeared, the discovery of all those factors which make better engines, more power for less weight, improved springing, cleaner body design, and all the hundred and one points which make mechanical development possible.

"So when an accident happens it is no use saying 'what the use?' There is a use. It has taught someone something and the lesson learned may be worth all the risk and all the loss."

If additional testimony were needed, it is supplied by the Air Minister, Lord Thomson, who says:—

"As to the wisdom or otherwise, of speed exploits, in my opinion they are necessary as tests of endurance of motormechanism and the durability of metal requisite in all machinery propelled vehicles, whether on land or water, or in the air."

In addition to the scientific knowledge to be gained, there is the inestimable value of a great example. The men who have done things in the world have never hesitated to brave fate, to challenge the unknown, to take a chance. Those who see in the accidental death of such a man nothing of importance do not understand the human race. So long as humanity itself endures such men will command the admiration of the multitude and will furnish inspiration for those who come after them, that the splendid spirit of adventure may not pertain from the earth.

"Freak fashions don't last long," I read. A short life and a gay one.

Weak And Depressed

The work of the average woman in the home makes greater demands on her vitality than she realizes. Long hours, care of children and home is the daily grind. No wonder she is depressed: that she suffers from headaches and is run down.

What is needed is a blood-builder to give her vitality to perform her every-day duties. Such a blood-builder is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, of which Mrs. Joe L. Corbin, Moncton, N.B., says: "I was weak, badly run down; housework was a burden and I was nearly depressed. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were recommended and by the time I had taken half a dozen boxes I was fully restored to health and strength."

You can get these Pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

News and Information For the Farmer

Sheep Outwit Hen Contender

More than 6,000 Canadian sheep owners have signed contracts in which they agree to market all lambs in future through the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers, and appearances are still pointing in the subjective of three million pounds, which is set as the minimum amount necessary to ensure the success of the new marketing policy has already been passed.

Lice and Ticks

No matter how carefully the henhouse has been cleaned and disinfected, lice and mites will put in their appearance before the summer is over. They are a source of great annoyance to the birds and may become so bad as to practically drive the flock out of the building. A good dust bath for the hens or creating sulphur fluoride into their feathers will help get rid of the vermin from the birds, but there are always cracks around the walls and roosts where the vermin hide during the day and come out to feed on the birds during the night. Coal oil has been used effectively in destroying the pests on the roosts and a nicotine preparation painted on the roost in the evening will destroy the vermin on both roosts and birds. The fumes permeating through the feathers do their work.

Fruit Prospects Excellent

Lincoln County, the leading tender fruit section of Ontario, reports one of the best crops of all kinds of fruit in recent years. Sweet and sour cherries are excellent, but prices have been somewhat low. There was also a good showing of early vegetables. From the apple sections reports indicate that the crop will be considerably smaller than a year ago. Orchards which have taken advantage of the spray service are coming on exceptionally well, but in other orchards scab is making its appearance. There will be a considerable increase in the size of apples this year. Potato sections report an outlook for more than average yield of potatoes this year and early potatoes are now finding their way to market.

Canadian Hens Prominent

Canadian entries in the overseas sections of the British national egg-laying contest are holding their own with the world's best egg producers, according to reports recently received, which show that Canadian hens hold third and fourth positions in the international contest.

Weekly Crop Report

"Markets are at a low ebb and farmers are only realizing $1.60 to $2.25 per cwt. for milk." This is the fly in the ointment of the most recent reports received from district agricultural representatives. The report comes from the dairy districts, both of the Eastern and Western sections of the province. For the beef sections, similar reports are received as to the effect of the slump in the price of beef cattle which has affected cattle graziers quite severely.

Prices for other farm commodities are likewise low. On the other hand, the prospect for crop yields are excellent. Abundant rainfall has given the necessary moisture to the soil in most parts of the province, and it is now estimated that there is nearly enough haying to carry spring crops through to the ripening stage. In some sections there has been a trifle too much rain, particularly in Northern Ontario where excesive wet weather damaged spring grains.

Pastures are good practically all over the province and livestock is benefiting accordingly. There will be an average alfalfa crop and a very good hay crop of all kinds throughout Ontario. The stand of fall wheat is looking excellent, likewise the various spring grain crops.

Haying operations have been general with the quality of hay below average, due to the catchy weather. Alfalfa seed producing sections report an unusually large acreage being left for seed. Seed is setting well and there will likely be a large crop of alfalfa seed this year.

Growers of canning factory peas have been busy harvesting their crop. Reports indicate that the yield of canning peas is above normal, and vining stations and canning factories have been working to capacity.

The poultry market has been dull with the exception of eggs, which have moved readily at from 28c to 25. Broilers are plentiful and hard to sell, prices ranging from 60c to $1.25 each, depending on size and quality.

Northern Ontario Progresses

There are many people who think of Northern Ontario as a large area producing a wealth of minerals and not a little pulpwood. It is good to know that gratifying progress is being made along the lines of dairy production all through that district known as the "Clay Belt," which runs through Northern Ontario north of the Great Lakes and over into Quebec. In 1917 a creamery was established in New Liskeard, which made 40,000 lbs of butter that year. In 1929 the 17 creameries in that district produced over 1,000,000 pounds of butter and the market trade along the many towns and villages seems to be well organized. There is a steady demand for good dairy cows and in 1928 fifty pure bred bulls, were placed in Temiskaming alone, prospects point to an excellent dairy development for Northern Ontario.

Sheep Dipping Pays

Wellington County now has 44 Community Sheep Dipping Tanks. Six new tanks have been built this spring and most of the dipping has been completed. Last year 9665 sheep were dipped in 38 tanks but this year the number will exceed 19,000 or about one third of the sheep in the county. The cost is between three and four cents per head but those who dip regularly estimate that it is worth $1.50 per year per head to dip sheep and lambs. Thus the tanks in Wellington County can be figured to be worth about $28,000 to the sheep raisers this year, the satisfactory have been the men that it is the aim of the live stock commissioner to have a tank in every district completed in the county. In the United States, as it is in Great Britain, it is

TO SETTLE IN PARAGUAY

Canada Has to Try Idle Sheep

There are very few foreigners in Paraguay and agricultural farming has not as yet been heavily developed because the Argentine drains off the German immigrants from countries they can filter through to Paraguay. However, some interesting colonizing experiments have been made, writes W. L. Schurz, formerly American trade commissioner to Paraguay, in the Christian Science Monitor. He goes on to say: One of the most ambitious of these was the attempt to set up an advanced socialistic regime in the colony of New Australia. A large colony has lately been founded in the interior of the Gran Chaco by Mennonite sectarians from Canada, mostly of German origin. Plans have since been made for a Doukhobor colony from Canada. The Paraguayan Government, in its desire to welcome serious agricultural immigrants, has been tolerant of the special tenets of some of these bodies of colonists, such as the refusal of the Mennonites to bear arms.

Since one of the dictators compelled the people to plant a certain number of orange trees, the country has become a veritable orange grove, in addition to its fields of cotton, tobacco and sugar cane. I have found orange trees in the jungle, where the seeds had been carried by birds, and from my horse have often picked oranges from the trees overhanging the roads of the interior.

The hard quebracho tree of the Gran Chaco produces one of the most important tanning materials used in the North American leather industry. This product and the raising of cattle constitute the most important industries of that mysterious land to the west of the main river.

As the only practicable approaches to Paraguay are by way of Buenos Aires, the commercial relations with the Argentine are particularly close, and its money is only quoted abroad in terms of Argentine pesos. As most of its staple products are produced in Argentina, it is at a disadvantage in foreign markets, as compared with its larger and more progressive neighbor. Asuncion lies four days by river steamer above Buenos Aires and two days by train. It is also now accessible by a regular airplane service.

The population of Paraguay is about 960,000, or approximately what it was before the war of 1865-1870.

The Paraguayan masses are a mixture of Spanish and Guarani Indian. Although recent governments have discouraged the use of the ancient Guarani language, outside the large towns, it is still the common tongue of the people. Even the upper classes, who are largely of pure Spanish blood, often speak it in their homes. The Indians are mostly a few tribes that inhabit the wilderness of the Gran Chaco and small groups in the more remote parts of the country.

PAY OF ITALIAN TEACHERS

Government Recently Raised Their Salaries.

Italy has recently raised the salaries of her school teachers, but the increased pay is still inadequate to meet their requirements. School teachers are very modestly paid, says the Rome correspondence of the Christian Science Monitor. An unmarried school teacher in Italy gets a little more than $300 a year for the first five years of service; married teachers receive an additional $50 a year. Salaries are raised at quinquennial periods, until they reach the maximum of $650. In the larger cities, teachers receive a higher pay, but the large majority of Italian teachers receive the salaries quoted above.

On the other hand, Italian school teachers enjoy many reductions on the state railways, on street cars, theatres and cinemas, and in many cases also on house rent; but on the whole the elementary school teaching profession is not made very attractive. This explains why the bulk of Italy's elementary teaching is conducted by women.

War on the Desert

A tree-belt planted in Uganda to check encroachment of desert sand promises to be successful, according to Mr. E. H. Barbe Baker, assistant conservator of forests in that country, in an address at the Imperial Institute, London, England, lately, he dwelt upon the urgency of the need to preserve the world's timber supplies. In a very few years, Mr. Baker said, there would be a serious shortage of soft wood. The trees of Africa, he claimed, were particularly important, as they provided soap, rubber, and many other necessities.

An author states that he always does his hardest work before breakfast. Getting up, for instance.

scarcely human to leave whole flocks of helpless lambs covered with large hungry blood-sucking ticks, to say nothing about poor economy, 950 sheep were dipped in two tanks last week which is about the record for this county.

Short Course For Departmental Judges

Under the supervision of Mr. J. Lockie Wilkes, Superintendent of Junior Agricultural Societies, a short course for Departmental Judges was held on July 2nd, 3rd and 4th, at O. A. C. Over 125 Judges were in attendance which included plowing match judges, and judges of heavy and light horses, beef and dairy cattle, sheep and swine.

Wednesday was devoted mainly to the plowmen, the time being taken up with demonstrations in the field. In the evening a joint meeting of all judges was held in Massey Hall, where addresses were given on live-stock judging, crop competitions and plowmanship by experts in each branch.

On Thursday and Friday the live-stock men and field crop men were divided in groups and the time spent in practical judging and discussion.

These courses were started about fifteen years ago, and have been held at intervals of five years ever since. Formerly they are to get judges from all parts of Ontario together. To-day's meeting of representatives from all over the province, combined with the fact that a number of judges were present from the United States, is a tribute to the success of the Provincial

EMPIRE TRADE EXTENDS
Canadian agriculture is now seeking new markets, and producers in other parts of the Empire are working toward an extension of markets for those of their products Canada needs. Information received by the Minister of Agriculture at Ottawa shows that during the past year 750 carloads of bananas were shipped into Western Canada from the British West Indies. Word now comes that the first shipment of oranges and lemons from new South Wales will reach Vancouver on July 15th. Canada reciprocates with her exports of potatoes to the West Indies and with shipments of apples and onions to the Antipodes.

DEATH OF A FORMER NAPANEEAN.
Robert W. Vance, 77, originator of the seven-cent store and a life long Wood business man, died Friday, July 11th, at his home, 672 Prwt, Avenue.

Mr. Vance was born in Scotland. He moved with his parents to Napanee, Ontario, when he was a child. As a young man he established and conducted, at Napanee, the first seven-cent store ever known. He also invented a miniature mechanical world, known as "Vance's Little World," in which 200 figures constantly moved in lifelike manner. He exhibited it for many years throughout Canada and Northern New York. In 1910 he came to Rochester with his family and since has conducted a confectionery business at 681 Jefferson Avenue. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Harriett F. Vance; four sons, W. C. Vance, Robert, Jr., Roy B. Vance and Gerald P. Vance; five daughters, Mrs. A. N. Snyder, Mrs. F. A. Leahy, of Watertown; Mrs. C. G. Holloway, of Syracuse, Mrs. Dean B. Balmer, of Rochester; a brother, Alexander Vance of Toronto; 23 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. Funeral services will be conducted as his home Monday afternoon at 2:30.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

BASEBALL

The Invincibles have at last been defeated. Odessa motored to Adolphustown on Wednesday afternoon with an idea that they were going to have a walk-away game. What a surprise! In the first innings, Odessa scored three runs after which they scored two runs and only one player made first base until the fifth, when Reid scored their last run. In the fifth innings, B. Prout scored a run for Adolphustown and during the sixth, Gallagher, Rombough and J. Prout each scored runs to make the game a tie 4 to 4, at which score it remained until the eighth innings, when Rombough made a hit and held first base. J. Prout followed in bat, and as he looked rather small, the Odessa pitcher gave him a walk. B. Prout came up to bat and after three balls connected with a nice hit giving himself a home run and bringing a fast score up to 7-4. Odessa did not even see first base during the remainder of the game and for some reason were not anxious to play the last half. Rumor brings some dissatisfaction among the players, but anyone who witnessed the game knows that both teams tried hard. The umpire was only called upon to make four bake decisions, because very few of the players ever secured first base even when the ball was hit. B. Prout pitched good ball during the entire game and Rombough, as catcher, gave excellent satisfaction. R. Loyst on first and J. Laveck on third are good and though Laveck got some lovely catches on flies, Loyst's time was spent waiting for the runner. J. Prout, on short turned in a snappy game and altogether Adolphustown fielded well and made very few errors. Some of the boys did not appreciate the girls' help during the game, but who can blame the Dorland "Peas" for yelling when their manager plays good ball. We hope the boys understand they always has to be a winning team as well as a losing one.

PONIES 2 GIBBARD'S 1

Bentley Holds Frank Smith's Boys Runless Until Eighth

In one of the smartest exhibitions of baseball seen in Kingston this year, the Kingston Ponies won from Gibbard A. A. in the last frame by 2 on in the Monday night. The game was a pitching duel from start to finish and both teams backed their efforts in fine style.

Bentley started on the mound for the winners, but was replaced by Craig in the fifth. The locals collected six hits from him and found little trouble in connecting.

Craig held the visitors hitless until the end of the game and had four strike outs. He walked Fred Bentley in the eighth but there were two out and his team-mates could not bring him in. While Craig is not one of the Ponies pitchers, he tossed a fine game.

Pennock, on second, for the winners, turned in a fine game defensively and succeeded in bringing in one of his team's runs. He hit a long liner in the seventh over shortstop for a neat three-bagger, but he overran the base and Stewart nailed him for an easy out. It was a tough break, being the nicest hit of the game.

Fred Bentley was on the mound for the locals for his first game this year, holding them runless until the eighth and it was no fault of his that Pennock and Bellringer tallied then. He had eight strike-outs, three of which were in the sixth and two in the seventh and held them to eight hits, four of which were in the last canto.

Stewart scored the local's only tally in the first on Kilgannon's long single after Bentley advanced him to third. The only other chance Gibbard's had of scoring was in the second when Kinkley singled and went to third on Gibbard's single; the latter went to second when Grattan dropped a pitch but Sweet struck out and Johnson filed out to Pennock. On only three occasions did the visitors succeed in getting a man on a bag in the rest of the game. Kilgannon got his second hit in the third; Scrimshaw was hit by Dixon in the fourth and was replaced by Wilson, who went on second when Kinkley, Gibbard and Sweet died out.

The locals played good ball all the way through and it was a tough game to lose.

The first upset in the local bush league!

* * *

The hard-hitting Adolphustown Dorland team beats the league-leading Odessa aggregation.

* * *

This ties Odessa and Gibbard's for first place and ties the two Adolphustown teams for second.

* * *

What a race!

* * *

And what a game it will be on July 30th when the Maple Leafs go to Dorland and again on August 2nd when the Furniture makers hit the Highway town.

* * *

And the funny part of it is that all four teams think that they are going to win whereas only two can.

* * *

These will be two useless well worth the trouble, time, expense, etc., to see.

* * *

Doug. Fraser, the local's regular twirler, ran a nail in his foot last week and it was doubtful for a while whether he would play for some weeks, but the wound is healing nicely and he expects to be in shape to play shortly!

* * *

Fred Bentley twirled a mighty fine game for Gibbard's in Kingston, Monday night.

* * *

It was a great game all the way through, in fact many of the fans said it was the best game they had seen there in years.

* * *

And they have a senior team in that town.

* * *

Anyway, they want the locals to come down again on August 4th, the Civic Holiday so that the management of the Ponies must think that they will draw a crowd.

* * *

The Ponies come up here on Tuesday, July 28th, and the locals will be out for a win, so don't miss it.

She was married when quite young and with her husband, had worked together to build up a home on the farm. She was highly respected and honored by everyone in the community, because of her general goodwill and friendliness. The funeral service was held on Sunday afternoon, July 27th at the Bethany Church. The auditorium was crowded and many were unable to get into the building. Her pastor had charge of the service and spoke of her courage service and faith. The King Government is Defeated

Conservatives Gain in Every Province--5 Cabinet Ministers Fall by the Wayside

John A. Weese Wins Splendid Victory in Prince Edward-Lennox

PRINCE EDWARD-LENNOX

The result in Prince Edward Lennox exceeded the expectations of the most sanguine member of the Conservative party. While it was fully expected that Mr. Weese would be elected by a comfortable majority, the fact that his followers rolled up a plurality of 1450, shows the popularity of the new candidate. While the newly elected member had only been in the field but a couple of weeks, the Conservatives got behind him splendidly and gave him the handsome majority above stated.

Mr. Weese arrived in Napanee about 11 p.m., and was escorted to the Armouries by the Napanee Band, where a packed house awaited him. He briefly thanked the electors for the handsome majority given him in Lennox.

CANADA TO-DAY ENTERS A NEW AND HOPEFUL ERA

Toronto Mail and Empire

With yesterday's victory at the polls Canada sets out on a new hopeful period of its career. The incubus of an indifferent Government has been shaken off and the people feel that under the new Government to be formed they will be able to reorient the ground which they have lately lost. From the very outset Mr. Bennett will place Canada's interests first. British interests second, and American and other foreign interests last—very much last. The new prime minister will carry out his pledges to institute unemployment relief measures and enact legislation for the effective protection of Canadian agriculture, Canadian labor and Canadian capital.

No time is to be lost in implementing these undertakings. It may take a month or so to form the new Government and get Parliament in session, but two or three weeks should suffice after that for the House of Commons and Senate to pass enabling legislation for the inauguration of necessary public works and for the passage of immediate tariff protection for oppressed Canadian industries. Parliament in June should be able to get the task of national rehabilitation well under way before Mr. Bennett has to go to the Imperial Conference. Once there, he will take the lead in negotiating for British preferences on a reciprocal basis which will benefit both Canada and the Motherland. We profoundly believe that the people of Canada have every reason for confidence in the new mandate and the leader they have received, a commanding director who is practically certain to be given a working majority sufficient for the heavy task of lifting the country out of the depression. There will be no mistake, however, to be made immediately. Unemployment is too widely extended and the general uncertainty too deepened to warrant expectation of overnight recovery to normal conditions. But the new Government will start out with a mandate which will enable it to act with confidence in the knowledge that it has behind it the country's support in its every step.

RESULTS BY PROVINCES

At 12.10 a.m., Tuesday, the Canadian Press reported the party standing, by Provinces, as follows—

	Lib.	Con.	U. F.	Labor	Ind.	Doubt.	House
							Seats in
P. E. I.	1	3	..	..	..	..	4
Nova Scotia	3	11	..	..	..	..	14

Hon. R. B. Bennett, chosen new Conservative Leader at the historic convention in Winnipeg three years ago, who issued a challenge to Premier King in the House early in the last session to appeal to the people, will form the next Government of Canada.

Inroad in Quebec

A startling inroad by the Conservatives into the Liberal stronghold of Quebec, where the former gained over a score of seats; a gain of four seats in New Brunswick, where only Hon. P. J. Veniot represents the Liberal Party; a gain of two seats on Prince Edward Island; a net gain of over six or seven seats in Ontario, where the Liberals had hoped to take seats from the Conservatives; a gain of one seat by the Liberals in Nova Scotia, where they were confident of gaining seven or eight; and three or four gains for the Conservatives in the West, were features of the returns.

Ministers Lose

Five Liberal Cabinet Ministers went down to defeat, notably Hon. Charles Dunning, framer of the famous Budget, and Hon. Thomas Crerar, Minister of Railways, and former Progressive Leader. Two other Ministers, who were appointed just before the election, also lost out at the polls, namely, Hon. Cyrus Macmillan, Minister of Fisheries, who was beaten in one of the Prince Edward Island seats, and Hon. Fred Kay, of Brome-Missisquoi, Minister without portfolio.

Sweeping to victories in at least twenty-three Quebec ridings, and sending to defeat five Liberal Cabinet Ministers including Finance Minister Dunning, who drafted the Empire Budget, the Conservative Party, under Richard B. Bennett, at 2 o'clock Tuesday morning, was conceded victory. Mr. Bennett will form an Administration to succeed that of Premier William Lyon Mackenzie King, which has ruled Canada for nine years. Further Western returns are likely to give Mr. Bennett additional strength.

Many Gains

Analysis of the amazing reversal of Parliamentary strength in the Liberal and Conservative Parties shows the Conservatives to have made gains in every Province except British Columbia, where at the time of writing returns are insufficient for calculation. In Prince Edward Island the previous 3 to 1 Liberal - Conservative respective strength was reversed, the Conservatives winning three seats to the Liberals' one. In Nova Scotia, despite a Liberal wipeout in Colchester, the Conservatives registered a net gain of one seat, the result being 6 Liberals and 10 Conservatives.

In New Brunswick the Conservatives won 10 to 1, where the former standing was Liberals 5, Conservatives 6. Quebec voted Conservative beyond even Conservative expectations, returning at least 23 Conservatives, where previously there were only 4 Conservatives; there were Conservative net gains of five or six ridings in Ontario; in Manitoba, from which Province last session there was no Conservative candidate, at least four Conservatives were returned to the House of Commons; in Saskatchewan, where, last session, there was no Conservative member. And Alberta broke its old phalanx of United Farmers to return at least four Conservatives. Although Conservatives were being returned from British Columbia, a notable Conservative loss there was the defeat of Hon. Harry H. Stevens.

OBITUARY.

EDWARD JAMES REEVES

It was with not little anxiety that the public learned of the sudden and unexpected illness of Edward James Reeves, so familiarly known as the youngest son of the late Mr. J. D. Reeves and Mrs. Reeves of Tweed. Every care was given and the utmost that the modern medical profession is capable of, was done for him, but despite these efforts the community was grieved to hear that on Monday morning, July 7th, he had taken a quiet farewell of this life.

Eddie, who was of an unusually bright and loving disposition, although only ten years and eight months of age, was already giving evidence of promising career.

The funeral service which was held at the home on Tuesday afternoon, July 8th, was in keeping with the young life that had so recently taken its departure. The many floral offerings gave evidence of the place he occupied in the hearts of all who knew him.

The Rev. E. B. Cooke, in conducting the service, chose for his text, the 11th verse of the 40th chapter of Isaiah: "He shall gather the lambs with His arms and carry them in His bosom."

It seemed singularly fitting that he should be borne to his resting place by his little school chums, who formed in a square about the grave were scores of others of junior classes from the church school of which he was a member.

He leaves to mourn, his mother, two brothers, Clarence and Jack; two sisters, Grace and Irene. His father predeceased him five months ago.

It Has Many Qualities.—The man who possesses a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is armed against many ills. It will relieve a cough, break a cold prevent sore throat. It will reduce the swelling from a sprain, relieve the most persistent aches and will speedily heal cuts and contusions. It is a medicine chest in itself.

YARKER - COLEBROOK W. I.

The Yarker-Colebrook Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. McClelland, Colebrook, on Thursday, July 10th, at 2:30 p.m. There were twenty-eight members and eleven visitors.

The meeting was opened in the usual way, after which the President, Mrs. C. Asey, extended a hearty welcome to all the visitors.

The minutes and reports were read, adopted and approved. Many "Helpful Hints for Saturday or Monday" were given in answer to the roll call. Current events, prepared by Mrs. V. Atchison, were read by Mrs. R. Jackson.

Mrs. A. E. Huffman read Dr. Margaret Patterson's speech on "Women's Work, or "Spiritual and Moral Health" which appears in the report of the Women's Institutes of the Province of Ontario for 1929. In her speech, Dr. Margaret Patterson emphasized the need to find within ourselves, the power to amuse ourselves, a need that is very much in evidence today, when many people are rushing here and there to get a thrill.

Miss Vivian Clark read an article concerning the ability of Tobermory to take care of itself in the near future.

A splendid poem, entitled "It takes a Heap of Living in a House to Make it Home," by Edgar Guest; was given by Mrs. Percy Asselstine.

After the National Anthem was sung the secretary, Mrs. R. Jackson distributed some literature sent by the Department. Refreshments were served by the Hostess and Lunch Committee.

The next meeting will be held at Mrs. A. Holland's Summer Camp, on August 20th, at 2:00 p.m.—Roll-call "A Funny Predicament."

ORCHARD FACTS

There could be no more useful or complete handbook of modern orchard practices than is afforded in the bulletin of that title, prepared by horticultural experts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, and just off the press. A complete compendium of information with respect to orchard practice, the bulletin covers the whole field of apple growers' problems, from the planting and training of the young tree, to a synopsis of tree and fruit diseases, their treatment and control. Among the subjects dealt with are: training the young tree; maintenance of fertility; systems of cultivation; spraying; thinning; renovation of the neglected orchard; scraping, cleaning and tree surgery; insects attacking apple trees, insecticides; and important diseases of the apple. It is a little book every apple grower should have in his library.

It is reported that a baritone singer broke his larynx in trying to get a flat. It would have paid him better to have gone in for a cottage.

PASTURES AND PROTEINS

The value of pastures depends very largely on the amount of proteins in green feed—available to the cattle using them. In this connection the studies of "close grazing" now being made by experts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture are of special interest. While still in the experimental stage the work already done holds much of interest for the dairyman. Briefly put, the object of close grazing is to provide an adequate and continuous supply of green fodder from succulent new herbage growth. This is done through the division of a suitable field area into four equal sections. While the herd grazes for a week on one section the new growth, rich in protein, is developing in the others. In this way a new pasture with three weeks growth of new herbage is regularly available.

PALE PEOPLE ARE IN PERIL

Some Form of Nervous Breakdown Always Threatens Them

Pale people are almost always nervous. Paleness denotes lack of blood and rich, little blood usually results in jaded nerves, sleeplessness, headaches or neuralgia.

Dr. Williams Pink Pills are different from most other medicines—it is impossible to take them and not feel better. Their whole mission is to make rich, red blood. This new blood strengthens the nerves, and gives vitality to the whole body. Concerning them Mrs. G. Cook, Bloor street, Toronto, says: "Two years ago I used Dr. Williams Pink Pills for a nervous breakdown with the result that I have been well and strong ever since."

You can get these Pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ontario.

OLD RULES FOR SMOKERS.

Taken From a Gentleman's Book of Etiquette Published In 1860.

A Gentleman's Book of Etiquette, published in 1860, was widely quoted as an authority as to what was considered becoming. Numerous were the prohibitions on smokers:

One must never smoke a pipe in the streets; one must never smoke at all in the coffee room of a hotel. One must never smoke, without consent, in the presence of a clergyman, and one must never offer a cigar to an ecclesiastic. But if you smoke or if you are in the company of smokers and are to wear your clothes in the presence of ladies afterward, you must change them to smoke in. A host who asks you to smoke will generally offer you an old coat for the purpose. You must also, after smoking, rinse the mouth well out, and, if possible, brush the teeth.

You should never smoke in another person's house without leave, and you should not ask leave to do so if there are ladies in the house. When you are going to make a cigar you should offer one at the same time to everybody present; if not a clergyman or a very old man. You should always smoke a cigar given to you, whether good or bad, and never make any remarks on its quality.

It should be remembered that this was in 1860 that the reader will naturally observe that it was far less difficult for a gentleman of quality to put his plug and bite off a satisfactory chunk than to be obliged to remember and comply with all the above technicalities.

CITY OF GENEVA.

German Publication Gives Interesting Facts.

The city of Geneva, always a picturesque resort, has attained a quite extraordinary political significance, as a meeting place for the delegates to the League of Nations, a German publication, "Der Querschnitt," recently gave us some interesting facts about the League and its city:

"As a matter of fact, the League includes half a thousand or so diplomats and would-be diplomats. They come from forty-five countries and constitute the first international society of foreign affairs of the embryonic world state. Their attitude on politics, social, and material questions determines the character and the functioning of Geneva's League of Nations—the greatest curiosity in the world's history.

"During the war, there stood on the shores of Lake Leman a princely hotel which served primarily as a centre for international espionage. After the peace, when Brussels, The Hague, Vienna, and Constantinople each failed to have itself selected as the seat of the new League of Nations, this institution, in its way known, and Geneva thereby lost its only truly palatial hostelry. It had been the Hotel National, valued at five and a half million Swiss francs."

THE ACCORDION.

Encyclopaedia Says "Its Capabilities are Extremely Limited."

To-day we hear many bitter discussions on the value of such instruments as the saxophone and the bagpipes, but when Dumlan, of Vienna, produced the first accordion, a hundred years ago, he caused more bother and bitterness in ten minutes than saxophones and bagpipes have caused in years.

Discussion raged whether the accordion was a musical instrument or a weapon, while leading encyclopaedias described the instrument as "coarse in timbre and devoid of beauty," "much inferior to the concertina," and "its capabilities are extremely limited."

First tried out at a Viennese musical festival, the accordion soon sank to barrel-organ level. The only source of revenue from it was for tuning it "somewhere else."

There are, at present, only two places in Europe where the accordion is not despised—Scotland and Belgium. The latter country possessing 40,000 accordion players.

First Steel Pens.

Steel pens were invented before the destruction of Pompeii (A.D. 79) for in the Museum of Naples, Italy, there is a pen-point made of bronze, slit after the manner practised today, which was found in the ruins of Pompeii, but they were first common by knees in the fifteenth century.

Barrel pens were first made in 1780 by a split-ring maker of Birmingham, England, named Samuel Harrison. A blacksmith of Sedgeley, Worcestershire, England, named Sheldon, improved the method of making these, tapering or splitting the slit or pen-point before the barrel pen was tempered. In 1803 Bryan Donkin made barrel pens with pen-points of steel, silver, gold, and platinum. To him was granted the first English patent for making steel pens.

Missing Rembrandts.

It is not generally known that there are no fewer than seventy lost Rembrandts, some of them possibly in the possession of very poor people. If they only knew, they might possess that wherewithal to maintain themselves not only in comfort but even in luxury for life. All 70 are described in ancient records as having been painted by the master. One London art dealer before the last sale had many years to a quest for these lost masterpieces. Some of them have been of amazing fair colour. The principal reason why they are still missing is that their owners do not realise their identity.

Tips Banned.

"Mitropa" the company which controls the sleeping and dining cars throughout Germany, has absolutely tipping in their sleeping cars. The officials insist that the employes are well paid, making gratuities unnecessary.

"Hello" girls at some of our telephone exchanges are not allowed to wear jewellery. Yet they are always receiving "earrings."

"Spring-cleaning the Railway Stations," a headline. Sandwiches will be dusted carefully and put away for another year.

News and Information For the Farmer

Kent Soil Survey

A survey of soils in Kent county, has been made in the past few months by Mr. J. Whiteson, of the Agricultural College. A map will be prepared showing conditions, and especially the acidity of soils. Five men were employed on the project, the ground being marked out in sections and drillings taken at regular intervals. The map will be in some respects a revision of one prepared in 1923.

Proper Stabling Capacity

While the cows are out on pasture is a good time to make any necessary alterations in the cow stable. The length and width of cow stalls should be adapted to the size of the cows in the herd. In most stables there are cows that are uncomfortable from standing in stalls that are too short and others that are needlessly dirty from standing in stalls that are too long. Here are a few general dimensions for cow stables: For Ayrshires the stall length should be from 54 to 58 inches; for Holsteins, 58 to 62 inches; for Jerseys, 52 to 56 inches and for Guernseys, 54 to 58 inches. A good plan is to have the platform gradually lengthened from one end of the stable to the other and then stable cows according to length.

Potato Growers' Benefit

The Central Ontario Potato Growers' Association, which has a large number of its members in Simcoe County, was very successful in its operations of last year, the first year of the organization, and plans are under way to greatly increase the membership and the quantity of potatoes handled by this Association.

During the marketing season of 1929-30, 75 cars of T. P. Brand potatoes were handled, 50 of which were grown in Simcoe County. Prices received were very encouraging, being equal to the prices for Maritime potatoes on the Toronto market and averaging 25c per bag higher than No. 1 Ontarios. At some shipping points the price received for the T. P. Brand was over 50c in advance of local prices.

As a result of the encouraging progress of the past year, it is expected that the membership in the Association will be doubled during the coming year with a similar increase in volume. The fact that only the best grades of potatoes are accepted for sale and that all potatoes must be inspected in the field, to insure freedom, from disease, the Association does not expect any desire any phenomenal growth as quality not quantity is the foundation on which the Association is building.

Norfolk Apple Orchards

F. C. Paterson, Agricultural Representative at Simcoe, reports that Norfolk County commercial spray orchards, on the whole, appear to be in much improved condition. As a result of the orchard and spray service, and consequently the increased use of fertilizers, better pruning and better spraying, the trees are vigorous, hive good foliage, andinsects and diseases are evidently under good control. The 1930 crop will not be as large as the crop of 1929, but there is promise that it will be of excellent quality.

The new precooling and cold storage plant recently erected by the Norfolk Fruit Growers' Association will extend the marketing season, and generally improve the situation for the apple growers of the county.

Molasses For Hens

Almost every poultryman finds it necessary to give the birds epsom salts occasionally, in order to overcome constipation, as the result of heavy grain feeding and close confinement. The bad feature of giving salts is that it tears down the calcium of the body. Molasses in the poultry ration will do the same thing as epsom salts, and will not have the bad effects of salts. Besides molasses is extremely rich in vitamin B, rich in minerals, and ranks high in digestibility. It is richer in vitamin B than some yeasts, and is one of the few ingredients used in poultry rations not deficient in potash.

Touring Northern Ontario

The twenty-third annual conference of the agricultural representatives of the Provincial Department of Agriculture is being held in Northern Ontario this year in order to give the representatives the opportunity to see the crops at first hand. The party will go as far north as Kapuskasing, visiting the agricultural sections and points of interest en route. The sessions of the conference will be held at the Northern Academy at Haileybury, which was formerly the seat of the demonstration farm but is now an educational institution under the supervision of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. The party left North Bay on the night of July 29th for New Liskeard from whence trips to various points of interest were made. The sessions at Monteith open on Thursday, and on Saturday the party will visit Cochrane and Kapuskasing, returning to Iroquois Falls on Monday night. The return trip home will take place on Tuesday.

The Crop Situation

Cutting of fall wheat has been in full swing throughout the province during the past week or ten days, and in the majority of districts a good yield has been harvested. Reports from the various representatives indicate that spring grains are showing extra good promise and with continued favorable weather should give a splendid yield. Lack of rain in some parts resulted in the burning up of pastures. Alfalfa, clover and hay crops were generally a good satisfactory. Some remarkable returns are here for the green pea crop for canning purposes were obtained.

Judging Contests for Boys and Girls

Judging competitions for boys and girls are included in the prize lists for the fall fairs this year. The following have been announced for the following competitions: C. N. E. Toronto, Sept. 5th to 13th, open competitions in live-stock, roots and grain, fruit and vegetables, poultry and domestic science; intercounty domestic science; Central Canada Exhibition, Ottawa, August 18, and 19, open competitions in livestock, seed and vegetable judging and weed identification; Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, Sept. 16th, open competitions in livestock and domestic science.

LAMBS TO BE PURCHASED ACCORDING TO WEIGHT AND QUALITY

In no farm animals are marketing weights of more importance than in lambs. During the season, of plentiful supplies a few pounds increase in weight makes a great difference in the classification and price of the dressed carcass. It is also becoming less and less desirable to store heavy dressed lamb for winter use. The weights the lambs yield in dressed carcasses, therefore, make a considerable difference in the average price paid to producers for live lambs, because their value must depend on the price received for the product when it is resold to the retailer.

Emphasis on those points is placed in the announcement made on behalf of lamb buyers that, in addition to the efforts that have been made to get rid of heads and the usual discounts on culls, this year a further step is being made to bring the lamb industry more into accord with consumer demand.

The object is to promote the marketing of well-finished lambs between 75 and 95 lb. in weight. This is necessary if the consumer's demand for lamb meat is to be maintained and extended.

To this end, effective August 4th, all lambs over 95 lbs. at the market will be discounted 2 cents per lb. and effective September 2nd, all lambs over 110 lb will be discounted 3 cents per lb. Bucks and cull lambs will be discounted as usual.

This step need not entail a hardship, as it is obvious that all that is necessary is to pick out the heavier lambs of the flock and market them as they reach proper weight. Furthermore, if the market in August is paying, say 20c per pound, a 90 lb lamb will bring the same return as one 20 pounds heavier when the market may have dropped, say to 9 cents per pound a few weeks later. The effort all through is to promote and extend the trade by stimulating a public demand for and supplying a good quality, home-produced lamb.

WEALTH FROM WEALTHIES

Few people appreciate the production possibilities of an orchard. As a result of a series of studies in apple culture and orchard practices, made by experts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, data relating to the production record of a closely planted Wealthy orchard is particularly interesting. The average net annual profit per acre from the time it was planted in 1906 to date is shown to be $171.64. The highest annual net profit per acre was in 1923 and amounted to $475.30, while the lowest net return of $102.78 occurred the following year. The complete financial statement for this orchard for the latest available year shows: total expenditure, $1,258.12 per acre; receipts, $829.31 per acre, and net profit, $464.96 per acre.

The life of an impostor is a very monotonous one. Life is an average 45 days. It is just one sham thing after another!

Sargon took right hold of my troubles, ended all my ailments and strengthened and built me up remarkably. I am deeply grateful for what this wonderful medicine did for me."

"Sargon Pills stimulated my liver to normal action without giving me that weak, 'let down' feeling produced by other laxatives."—Mrs. Fyke, 90 Hyde Park Avenue, Hamilton, Ontario, who is the mother of eleven children.

Sargon may be obtained in Napanee, at Hooper's Drug Store. You can be even awarded the exclusive Sargon Agency for this town.

Getting Ready For "500 Party"

In a recent bulletin to Junior Farmers' Clubs, J. E. Wyatt, assistant director of the agricultural representative branch states that definite records have been received from 30 counties and districts in connection with the 1929 Boys' "500 Project." In these counties a total of 1741 boys between the ages of 16 and 20 years have actively enrolled and an average of 45 boys per county. It is suggested that all Junior Farmer leaders encourage entrants to keep their records up-to-date so that they may be complete when called for prior to the county Royal Judging Competition.

Embargo Helps Canada

The government of the United Kingdom is placing an embargo on all grades of United States barreled apples of any fancy and number ones, from August 1 until November 15, agreeing that no parts cabled to apple shippers. This is the period during which the English home grown apples are being put on the market and their own product will thus be safe guarded from the influx of United States apples. The action of the Government will affect half the United States export of apples to Britain, great quantities of which usually go on the English market at this time, as the fruit ripens considerably earlier in the States than in Canada. This embargo, it is estimated, will remove half the American competition from the Canadian apple during the period.

SILLSVILLE-CONWAY W.M.S.

The June meeting of the Sillsville and Conway W. M. S. met at the home of Mrs. James Rikley on June 8th. Devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. Duncan Hough. Opening hymn 94, "We have a story to tell to the nations," followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. Good Psalm was read by Mrs. Hough, then hymn 642, "Jesus shall Reign."

A reading, entitled "A Prayer that was answered," brought the missionary spirit home to us all. Our presidents then took charge of the meeting. The Misses Dickson and Rikley, delighted us all with an instrumental duet. A solo by Mr. Plant, "My Father Knows," touched all present, with a nearness to our Father. We were again favored with a duet by the Misses Dickson and Rikley.

The minutes of the May meeting were read and accepted. Mrs. Merrill and Mrs. M. White paid 50 cents each towards the Supply Committee. Mrs. Merrill answered to temperance herald with a reading showing how necessary it is that parents set the right example for their children. After singing hymn 115, Mrs. Harold Hough gave a talk on the Jerusalem Conference, and a few well chosen words, she moved a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Plant for their always willing help in every way in our Women's Missionary Society work, seconded by Mrs. G. Phippen and fully endorsed by all. Mr. Plant replied with his usual modesty, saying they always enjoyed being with us and what they had done was the Master's work. Mr. Plant also said he was sure we would find our incoming pastor a willing and proficient helper.

There members and five visitors answered the roll call. Collection $1.40.

The meeting closed with prayer by our pastor, after which a social half hour was spent, every delicious lunch, served by the ... which was enjoyed by all.

OBITUARY

MRS. JAMES MILLER

At the Hotel Dieu, Kingston, on Wednesday night, Mrs. James Miller, of Bethany, passed away after an illness of several months.

Her passing, although expected for some time owing to the serious nature of the malady, has cast a gloom over the district where she had spent her whole life, and the heartfelt sympathy of every one is extended to the grief-stricken husband, the two children, her father and brother.

The deceased was a native of the Township of North Fredericksburgh, being the daughter of Mr. Ben Huyck and the late Mrs. Huyck. Beloved in her home, beloved in the church, there is no one in Bethany who will be missed more.

An ex-president of the Ladies' Aid and organist of the Bethany Church, a great assistant in many departments of the Church's work, a splendid worker in the Sunday School, her passing will leave a gap that will be hard to fill.

During her long illness both at home and in the hospital, she bore it with Christian fortitude and was ready to accept the Master's call. She received the best of medical care and attention and every day enquiries were made by her legion of friends.

The remains were brought to Napanee and taken to her late home, the funeral service being held at the Bethany Church on Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. J. E. Beckel.

Besides her husband, two children Marion and Ronnie, are left to mourn also her father, Mr. Ben Huyck and her brother, E. B. Huck.

SAMUEL MARTIN

Mr. F. C. Martin suffered a bereavement in the death of his father, which occurred at the home of his son, Foxton, in Moscow, on Monday. The deceased, who was in his eighty-fifth year, was one of the best known residents of the Wilton district, having been a life-long resident of the district. About a month ago he suffered a severe stroke and owing to his advanced age, little hope was held out for his recovery. Several days ago he was taken to the home of his son, Foxton of Moscow. The deceased was a native of the township of Portland, and during his lifetime was a most successful farmer. He was thrice married, and besides his widow, he leaves to mourn his loss four sons; Elmer, of Evans Mills, N.Y.; Bert, of Camden East; Foxton, of Moscow; F. C., of Napanee, also two daughters, Mrs. Kenneth Lawson of Wilton and Mrs. Clarence Babcock, of Harrowsmith.

The funeral service, which was held from the residence of his son, Foxton, to the Presbyterian Church, Wilton, on Wednesday afternoon, was largely attended, evidencing the esteem in which he was held. The service was conducted by Rev. M. L. MacDuffie, of Wilton.

HUGH McCRACKEN

There passed away, on July 13th, 1939 at his late residence, Glenvale, in his 73rd year, Hugh McCracken. The deceased suffered from a fall, but had not been in the best of health for some time and only took to his bed the Wednesday previous to his death, passing away the following Sunday evening at nine o'clock.

He was born in Camden Township, on May 19th, 1867, and the eldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCracken, of Camden. He was married to Agnes Glover, who survives him with an only daughter, Mrs. Harold Vanorder, Murvale, and several grandchildren; also four brothers and three sisters, Mrs. F. Leonard, and Wallace, Gladwin, Mich.; Archibald, Roblin; Mrs. Ed. Dodge, Selby; Belle, Gladwin, Mich.; Rev. Wilson, Sydenham; Albert Toronto.

The funeral was held from his late residence, Glenvale, Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock to the United Church, and was largely attended. Interment took place in Cataraqui Cemetery.

Sincerest sympathy is expressed for the bereaved widow and daughter, also brothers and sisters, as this is the third member of the family who has passed away within a year; a sister, Martha, of Gladwin, Mich., and a brother in Oakland California pre-deceased him.

BASEBALL

GIBBARD'S 11 — MAPLE LEAFS 6

On Saturday last the Gibbard Automatic Baseball team defeated the Adolphustown Maple Leafs, at Adolphustown, by 11-6. There was good mud and hail on both sides, with plenty of errors and plenty of hits.

Dickson started on the mound for the Leafs, but was replaced in the second by Cum. Daverne, after allowing six runs. He held the winners to a nine win scattered hits and if was no fault of his that they scored four in the seventh to clinch the game.

Ray Allison did the receiving until the seventh when he received a bad smash in the face, which forced him to retire and Dickson replaced him, P. Allison going on third.

Doug. Fraser was back in the box for the Wood-Workers and issued a stellar game. In spite of the fact that he has not pitched for nearly a month, he had sixteen strike-outs and allowed only twelve hits. Scrimshaw was behind the plate and caught faultlessly.

The Leafs were the first to score, sending in two men in the first, but, Gibbard's came back with six in the second.

The home team rallied in the fourth and tried hard to overcome the lead, but J. Allen was caught trying to stretch his single into a two-bagger. Dickson struck out and Pollard grounded to Miller after three runs had been tallied. Gibbard's collected four in the seventh, Bentley's double driving Stewart home and Fraser's single sending Bentley to third. Fraser stole second and both he and Bentley scored on Gibbard's single through short after Allison passed Dickson's throw to home. Gibbard scored on Miller's single, but the latter was caught taking second for the third out.

Bentley scored again in the ninth, when Fraser sacrificed him to third, and Gibbard singled down the third-base line. Allison played to Pollard, letting Bentley in. Gibbard was forced out at second on Kinkley's single and Scrimshaw struck out for the third out.

IT TAKES BRAINS

"It takes more brains to be a farmer than to be a High Court Judge" asserted J. Lockie Wilson, speaking at a gathering of Provincial Fairs Judges at the Dominion Experimental Farm, Ottawa, recently. There never was a greater need for co-operation between the scientist and the farmer than today," he also stated, adding "the most scientific business to-day is farming."

Will be in Consulting Room, June 1, 1930 over the amount in store last year at the same date, and an increase of 34,97 per cent in the production of butter in cities. Creamery butter in store June 1, 1930, amounted to 10,706,625 pounds; dairy butter in stores, 581,625 pounds.

Cheese in store the same date amounted to 6,471,234 pounds, or 27.43 per cent less than last year.

The export of cream and milk to the United States has practically ceased for the month of 66 cents per imperial gallon on cream came into effect on June 15 and that the cream formerly exported is now being made into butter.

Creamery butter production in the Prairie Provinces shows a steady increase over last year—increases during May were: Manitoba 20.5 per cent; Saskatchewan, 7.7 per cent; Alberta 15.1 per cent over May of last year.

BUILDING THE SILO

In building a good silo the principal points to be considered are: The walls should be impervious, strong, smooth, and wind resistant, observes the Architect of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. Attention should also be given to such points as durability, convenience, appearance, resistance to fire and frost, simplicity in construction, and low cost—both initial and upkeep. There are three principal types of silo —the monolithic concrete, the stave and the trench—and their construction presents no particular difficulties. Complete specifications and detailed instructions with respect to the construction of silos of these types are available without charge in pamphlet No. 110 New Series, now available through the Publications Branch of the Department at Ottawa.

INCREASED TOBACCO OUTPUT

Canadian farmers, almost entirely as a result of research work done by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, are now producing practically all the fine tobacco required by Canadian manufacturers, and it is of a better quality than the more expensive of the tobaccos hitherto imported from the United States, observes Dr. E. S. Archibald, Director of Dominion Experimental Farms. In an ever widening field tobacco production is fast attaining a position of first importance in agriculture.

SILO NOTES

Some general principles with respect to silo design are noted by the architect of the Federal Department of Agriculture:—

The larger diameter silo costs less per ton capacity than the smaller, both being the same height.

Of two silos of the same diameter the higher gives a greater capacity per foot height than the lower.

The greater percentage of mouldy and poor silage is found nearer the top than lower down as the weight compresses the silage and tends to exclude the air.

In cold weather from 1½ to 2 inches should be fed per day in order to prevent loss by spoilage.

The foundation of the silo should be broad enough to prevent appreciable settling in the ground and deep enough to rest upon soil unaffected by frost.

WATCH BEEF GRADING

The beef grading policy of the Dominion Livestock Branch is not only providing a ready service to the Canadian consumer and producer in clearly identifying the true qualities of beef, but is also attracting attention in the British market. The Imperial Food Journal, a recognized authority on market conditions in the Old Country says: "The introduction of beef grading in this way should be a valuable aid and protection of the public, and should tend to strengthen the demand for the better qualities of beef. This should tend to advance the raising of better grades of cattle and the finishing of animals before they are sent to market. The importance of overseas attention to this question is obvious."

DAIRY NOTES

The latest summary of conditions in the Dairy industry by the Dairy and Cold Storage Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture affords some observations of interest:—

Pasteurized butter graded during June this year amounted to 150,262 packages, an increase of 18,162 packages over the same period last year. For the year to date the 1930 figure at 380,511 is 1,024 packages ahead of last year.

Cheese graded during June this year totalled 266,176 boxes, or 15,444 boxes less than last year. The total for the year to date at 317,425 boxes is below the 1929 figure, there is 85 boxes in the number of boxes grading "special" this year.

There was an increase of 245.66 per cent in the volume of creamery butter in cities during June, to June 1, 1930 over the amount in store last year at the same date, and an increase of 34.97 per cent in the production of butter in cities. Creamery butter in store June 1, 1930, amounted to 10,706,625 pounds; dairy butter in stores, 581,625 pounds.

Cheese in store the same date amounted to 6,471,234 pounds, or 27.43 per cent less than last year.

SODAS FOR SAILORS.

New H. M. S. Nelson Equipped With Fountain.

H. M. S. Nelson, the newest addition to the British navy, is equipped with a soda fountain. Aside from the armament, she has many other points of interest which would surprise the tars who sailed the seven and a hundred years ago.

In her domestic arrangements the Nelson sets a new standard. When going to sea she takes along 1,600 gallons of rum; 150,000 pounds of flour; 42,000 pounds of sugar; 7,000 pounds of tea; 43,000 tins of condensed milk; 20,000 pounds of frozen meat; 40,000 pounds of vegetables; 5,000 pounds of tobacco, and 10,000 pounds of soap. In addition she carries large quantities of fresh meat and other consumable stores.

The catering department of the Nelson is equal in its equipment and organization to that of a first-class hotel. The men's meals are prepared by a staff of expert cooks in kitchens that have all sorts of modern electrical appliances. In the bakery all the work is done by machinery and the food is not handled.

The mess decks where the crew live are lighted by scuttles instead of artificial light which is used in most warships. Every section of the crew has its own bathrooms.

There are comfortable recreation rooms supplied with papers and magazines for the use of the men who are off duty, and there is a well stocked general shop at which the men can buy whatever they need. Moving picture entertainments are provided for them and there is a fairly large chapel.

FILMING THE INDIANS.

National Museum of Canada Taking Pictures of Indian Ceremonies.

The chiefs of the Blackfoot Indians near Gleichen, Alberta, approve of the motion pictures which are being taken of their tribe for the National Museum of Canada, according to Mr. J. H. Gooderham, Indian Agent for these Indians.

The museum archaeologist visited these Indians for nearly a week in October, 1928, and took some 800 feet of motion picture film, but as the Sun Dance is given only in summer, he could not take the most interesting ceremony of any plains Indian tribe. He again visited them for six days in October last, securing many specimens.

"Seeing is believing" with the old Indians, states Mr. Gooderham, who says that the museum postcard, showing exhibits which was sent to him to show to the Indians "will do much to make clear" the museum work "and the object of the archaeologist's visits." In a few years the old Indians will be dead, and, as the young men are more interested in the latest crops, threshing combines, elevators, auto trucks, and radio than they are in the old dances and rituals, if such ion picture records of these are not soon taken the chance will be lost forever.

West Indies Fruit for Canada.

Canada will become a great market for the fruits of the West Indies, said Wilfrid Lawson, of the Department of Justice, in the course of an address to the Canadian Club at the National Museum, Ottawa. Mr. Lawson took the children on an imaginary aeroplane flight to the West Indies and old Panama, destroyed by Henry Morgan in 1671. He showed them beautiful lanes in shades of the old cathedral tower, the only bit of the city now remaining, the walls of which are fifteen feet thick. Canada has no such ruins to attract tourists to her railroads, steamships, hotels and national parks, only such things as the steep gables, most of which, he said, are now retiring and neglected, on our Pacific coast. Not being of antique, this art disappears rapidly.

The pictures of women carrying loads on their heads while the men rode donkeys amused the children. Local many other scenes and customs in the West Indies. Places of historic interest as well as many beautiful bits of scenery were explained to the children.

Ears for Ships.

A little instrument a thousandth of times more sensitive than the human ear may be the means of saving many human lives and a great deal of the expense of shipping delay caused by fog.

It is a toy navigating compass and sound indicator, resembling a miniature of wireless receiver and Xray apparatus. Recent tests were highly successful.

By means of a faint whistle on the receiver and pin points of light on a screen, the instrument indicates the direction, distance, and characteristics of fog signals.

It is also claimed that the apparatus can be carried in airplanes, be used for locating distant airships, and for detecting raiding airplanes. When used in conjunction with a sound ray it will show the position of the sea-bed and locate sunken ship.

Lifeboat to Aid 'Planes.

The world's fastest and largest lifeboat, built for the Royal National Lifeboat Institution, was launched from Messrs. John I. Thornycroft & Co.'s yard at Hampton-on-Thames, it England.

She is the first lifeboat to be specially built to help airplanes coming down at sea. She will have a speed of about 12 knots and will be stationed at Dover.

Whose "Remarks."

The track supervisor received the following note from one of his track foremen: "I'm sending in the accident report on Casey's foot when he struck it with the spike maul. Now, under 'Remarks,' do you want mine or do you want Casey's?"

Not In the "City."

The Tower of London is not in the City of London, the boundary of which stops short at the west wall of the old fortress.

GRENFELL'S WORK.

Labrador Showing Prosperity Since Introduction of "Tredex."

It is nearly forty years since Dr. Grenfell, as he then was, heard of the hard life led by the other folk on the Labrador coast. He was then working for the Royal National Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen in the North Seas. He left that work to act as a pioneer of similar work in Labrador and has devoted his life to its people ever since.

Writing for the annual report of his association on board the Maraval, a little power-driven hospital schooner, Sir Wilfred tells of his volunteer crew. The skipper is a Boston lawyer —a Bowdoin graduate; the mate a Yale man from New York; the deck hands, Princeton and Dartmouth men; the cook is a Philadelphia wool merchant who had some experience in cooking at sea in his youth, and two Groton boys make themselves generally useful. Sir Wilfred maintains that his own work and that of his helpers is not to be looked on as "work" but as "fun," for there is no fun in the world which comes up to that of doing a thing just because it wants doing.

The association has, during the last few years, put into operation an industrial department. This is to give work among others to women of the coast so that they may have a measure of, even if not independence. The articles made include silk hooked-work rugs, and grass baskets, while ivory work, and toy-making are carried on. Sir Wilfrid appealed for gifts of old silk stockings which, when unravelled and dyed, forms the material for the silk rugs. For the standard size mat, 26-40 inches, some 60 to 80 pairs of stockings are required.

In many other ways Sir Wilfrid is extending the work which he loves. Labrador salmon, he said, can compete with the finest Scots and Irish fish. Sixteen leading chefs in London chose Labrador salmon as the best out of 16 unclassified specimens. Furs of Labrador, too, were to be stocked with reindeer which were now in request as a source of meat supply.

SWAN-UPPING.

Practice of Marking Beaks of Swans an Old Custom.

The hundreds of graceful swans that add so much to the charm of the river Thames are the property of either the Dyers' Company or the Vintners' Company, or the crown, and these send their respective "markers," wearing distinctive liveries, to examine the marks on the beaks of the older swans, and to mark those of their offspring in a similar fashion.

Swan-upping on the Thames dates from the sixteenth century. It used to be carried out from city barges, manned by double banks of rowers, and later from launches towed by horses. In other parts of the country the custom is still more ancient, and the Public Record Office has a roll, dated 1496, showing the upping marks used by various owners in the eastern counties, including those used by "the bayly of Tott." The mark of "Burney" and "Cotton" are seen on various inns, is said to be a corruption of the Vintners' mark.

For Shell Swept Areas.

A mechanical war horse has been produced by a British manufacturing firm which will solve the problem of rapid transportation of troops over shell swept areas. It is surprisingly mobile; can turn round in a space its own length, ford a stream, provide the latter is not too deep, pass through barbed wire entanglements, and climb a bank up to 45 degrees slope.

It is known as the Carden Lloyd, and should put an end to the use of horses in warfare. It holds two men and can draw a trailer designed to carry four men in comfort. It can dodge obstacles, run to cover, or follow a zigzag course to escape fire with the greatest ease. It is quite fast and is equipped with a special machine gun, and, as it stands only half as high as a horse, its movements cannot be detected even in very open country.

Nation-Wide Lecture Plan.

A nation-wide campaign to be conducted through the utilization of educational motion pictures is being planned by the National Council of Education.

For some years the museum has conducted a course of free lectures for school children, and adults in separate days, and now it is planned to extend the course to every other country through the distribution of films.

Already the museum has formed the nucleus of a motion picture library, including films to represent possible emergencies willing to pay the cost of shipment.

Pinced 4,225 Families.

The Canada Colonization Association, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has placed on land in Western Canada, 4,225 families. The acreage occupied by these settlers totals 1,063 at a total purchase of almost $3,000,000. During the past year the association has placed 1,210 families on 122,441 acres. Its operations cover 20 districts in Alberta and Ontario as well as the Prairie Provinces.

School for Butchers.

Started only five years ago, as the outcome of an evening class attended by about a dozen prospective butchers, the Smithfield Institute of London, England, now has over 850 students. The object of the institute is to teach youths the intricacies of the meat trade.

Have You Heard These?

A correspondent asks if a person of an amateur can take good photographs. The answer is in the negative.

A moneylender has written a play. He is said to have maintained the interest to the end.

Lecturer (in loud voice): "I venture to assert there isn't a man in this audience who has ever done anything to prevent the destruction of our vast forests."

Man in Audience (timidly): I've shot woodpeckers.

Cohen, walking along the street, met his friend Isaacs, bound in the opposite direction.

"Ah, ha!" said Isaacs, "I know ya! you are going dis way for."

"You don't," said Cohen, "I am going dat way."

"Bet you ten shillings I do," said Isaacs.

The wager was accepted, and Isaacs went on: "You're in search of a cheap looking building. You'll take the place, stock it with goods, insure the whole thing, and then some day there will be a fire."

Cohen looked thoughtful for a moment, and thenspilled ten shillings from his pocket. He handed the money to Isaacs.

"You see, Cohen, I vas right after all."

"No, you vasn't right. But the idea is vorth it."

The Modern Girl is simply hopeless, says a writer. But not hopelessly simple!

Thieves forced open a safe in an Edinburgh shop with a pair of scissors. Shear genius.

Insects ruin many a picnic, complains a writer, especially when they forget the corkscrew.

SURVEY EXTENDS

The economic survey of the apple industry throughout Canada, which was inaugurated May 26 in Prince Edward County, Ontario, has been extended to include the apple growing districts of Nova Scotia. Work in this Province started June 24th. The survey is being conducted by officers of the Agricultural Economics Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. New Brunswick and Quebec will be the next areas surveyed, and later the apple districts of British Columbia will be studied. When field data with respect to the production end of the industry has been gathered attention will be given to transportation, storage, and marketing methods.

EUROPEAN ELM BLIGHT

The importance of the work done by the Plant Inspection Service of the Dominion Department of Agriculture is shown by the fact that although the European Elm Blight has been rampant in the Continent of Europe for some ten years new it has not yet made its appearance in Canada. Elm Blight was first noted which will solve the problem of rapid transportation of troops over shell swept areas. It is surprisingly mobile; can turn round in a space its own length, ford a stream, provide the latter is not too deep, pass through barbed wire entanglements, and climb a bank up to 45 degrees slope.

THE PRODUCTION OF TIMOTHY SEED

At the Dominion Experimental Station, Kapuskasing, Ontario, an experiment has been conducted for a period of years in order to compare the yield and quality of timothy seed produced from seeding broadcast in combination with red clover, broadcast alone, in rows 12 inches apart, and in rows 24 inches apart.

The plot seeded with a mixture of timothy and red clover was cut hay the first year and saved for seed the second; the idea being that red clover would have largely died out and consequently the stand would be mostly timothy.

The seed produced the second year from the plot that was sown with red clover and timothy has usually been more or less of a mixture, as a percentage of the red clover remained in the plot. On the other hand a good crop of hay was obtained from the mixed plot, during the first year and the seed harvested the second year can in most cases be satisfactorily separated with a good fanning mill, as these seeds differ considerably in size and weight. BATH AND GYMNASIUM ON NATIONAL TRANSCONTINENTAL TRAINS

A bath room where the traveller may enjoy the luxuries of bath or shower; a gymnasium where he may work out "the kinks" which may have been caused by a day's travel; a barber shop with all the latest appliances and appointments of the modern beauty parlor, and valet service to ensure that the traveller may leave the train fit and ready for anything, these are part of the services provided by the installation of new bath-room and barber shop lounge cars on The Confederation of the Canadian National Railways.

In keeping with its policy of providing "firsts" for the use of its patrons, the Canadian National Railways have introduced many new features in the new lounge cars, of which twelve are being placed in service on this train for the comfort of trans-continental tourists. The miniature gymnasium, with its Swedish massage and other electrical exercisers, is the first of its kind placed on regular service by any railway. In addition to the cars has a buffet from which and drinks and sodas may be served; a combination radio and gramophone set with loud-speaker and headsets; the barber shop with appliances for both men and women patrons, and the entire lounge section fitted with Vita-Glass windows to provide the passengers with the beneficial violet rays while they are travelling. The Confederation operates from Toronto and Vancouver, and the cars are being placed in service as quickly as they are received. Master carbuilders pronounce them the finest piece of railroad equipment yet turned out in Canada. They are finished with a specially selected English silver harewood, with chairs and settees of solid Honduras mahogany.

Upper left, the bath and shower compartment; with exercisers; Centre, the main body of lounge, and lower right, the barber shop in the new lounge car.

A GIRL PIRATE

Chinese Pirates Seized and Looted Japanese Steamer in Broad Daylight — Held for Ransom.

Led by a young female with bobbed hair, Chinese pirates recently seized the Japanese steamer Dell Maru, and robbed the passengers, and when the ship was at sea revealed themselves as a gang of desperados, armed with revolvers. Three Indian guards on board were shot, one seriously.

The Dell Maru, which is owned by the Osaka Shosen Kaisha, left Swatow at four o'clock. She carried 148 Chinese passengers.

As is usual in these waters, stringent precautions had been taken against capture by pirates disguised as harmless Chinese passengers. Strong steel grilles enclosed the steerage part of the ship, and shut the bridge off from any sudden attack. Indian guards were also posted at the approach to the bridge.

All these precautions, however, proved useless when the woman leader of the pirates gave the signal for the attack.

Thirteen of the Chinese steerage passengers, armed with revolvers, at once leaped from their hiding places and attacked the ship. Headed by their woman leader brandishing two revolvers they rushed towards the bridge. The three Indian guards, taken unawares, were ruthlessly shot down.

The steel gates of the grille were quickly smashed, and in a moment the desperadoes swarmed up the bridge, overpowering the second officer, who was on watch.

At the same time as this attack took place the deck lookout parties of pirates appeared in the engine-room, where no resistance was offered. In a few minutes all was over and the pirates were in control of the ship.

Under the threat of instant death the officers of the Dell Maru were forced to steer their ship to Bias Bay, where so many ships have been pillaged in recent years. Throughout the journey the woman leader of the pirates, who was well dressed, kept constant watch.

The Dell Maru reached her destination, and anchored in the Sanchia inlet, where the pirates looted the vessel in broad daylight. They also robbed the passengers and ship's officers of their valuables, and it is believed that their total haul amounted to $3,000.

At half-past eight the looting was over, and the pirates took the boat ashore in two of the ship's lifeboats.

They also took with them four deck passengers, wealthy Chinese business men, belonging to Shanghai, whom they are holding for ransom, and threaten to kill if the ransom is not paid.

The ship then proceeded to Hong Kong, where the wounded men were taken to hospital.

KEY TO MIRACLES.

Amazing Feats Are the Result of Animal Psychology.

"For really strange sights we recommend a visit to an institution in Moscow, where you can see a wild cat mothering a tiny mouse; a domestic cat fostering a brood of rats; a wolf playing with a ram; a bear that operates a water-pumping system; birds that jump on the muzzle of a gun as soon as it is fired; and dogs that 'talk' to their masters.

These amazing feats are the result of training by Vladimir Durov, a Russian who has devoted years to the scientific study of animal psychology. Animals, he says, have as much sense as human beings do almost anything with them, and he suggests this as the key to many of the miracles recorded by history, including Daniel in the lions' den.

Durov has taught wolves to tear sheep, turned a gentle dove into a vicious creature, and taught a chimpanzee to write.

During the war several of his trained seals were used as mine-scutters. Equipped with a mouth attachment of razor-blade knives, they sought mines under water, and with a few slashes rendered them ineffective. Actual photographs testify to the truth of this.

Newspapers 2,000 Years Old.

"Newspapers" in the form of large stone tablets have been discovered during excavations at Ostia, in Italy. One is said to record the death of Pompey in 49 B.C., and the will of Julius Cæsar with his bequests to the people of Rome.

Because of his despatches from the war in Gaul, Cæsar is often called the father of journalism, but it seems that Cicero, born in 106 B.C., has a greater claim to this distinction. Cicero used to post in the streets of his villa at Tusculum a record or journal of the passing events of note, with a list of births, deaths, and marriages. From a letter of Cicero's it is known that he used a system of abbreviated writing.

Brave Swedish Woman.

"The Lifeboat" has an article on a Swedish woman who is a regular member of a lifeboat crew. Miss Naemi Sjoberg lives at Enskar, and goes out fishing with her father, the lifeboat coxswain, in all weathers. Shortly after a lifeboat was stationed at Enskar one of the lifeboatmen left the place and no other man could be found so Miss Sjoberg has taken his place. In Great Britain many women help in the work of launching, but there are no women in the crew.

MYSTIC GEMS OF INDIA

THE HOME OF VALUABLE AND RARE STONES.

Wisest Savants Have Not Been Able to Determine Origin or Solve Mystery Which Surrounds Priceless and Uncanny Stones.

India is the home of valuable and rare gems, and even in this modern age, and scientific enlightenment, the wisest savants have not been able to determine the origin or solve the mystery which surrounds many priceless and absolutely uncanny stones.

There are diamonds, says Vishnu Re Kandihar, in an article in the New York Herald-Tribune, that seem to weep when the moon is full; there are pearls from the head of the King Cobra which make rain; there are rubies, scarlet purple in tint, which cure blood poisoning; there are emeralds which remove skin diseases; gems wonderful to behold and almost impossible to value. But these are held secret, hidden carefully for generations in cleanite vaults, the entrance to which is known only to the heads of the old families who are proud to possess them.

Some of them come to light on rare occasions, when an old palace is pulled down to make room for a factory, or a poor agriculturist comes upon a hidden store in a new plot of ground which he is trying to bring under cultivation.

A few months ago a common-looking antique necklace, belonging to the royal family of Tanjore in South India, was sold in the bowker-peth or Bankers Lane in Madras. The purchaser, desiring to give it as a present to his daughter-in-law on New Year's Day, gave it for resetting.

The Jeweller found that the diamond, hanging as a pendant, was a very peculiar one, brought it back to the owner and suggested that it should be reset as a ring. It weighed five and one-half carats. The owner kept it to consult other Jewellers.

On examination it was found to contain wonderful properties. It was generally of a bluish tint, but during the day it took on a rosy shade. The moment it was brought under the direct rays of the sun, however, it turned full blue. When taken into a dark room it gave out no light at all. It was sent by the owner to open the safe and was astonished to find the whole safe flooded with brilliant moonlight. The diamond was illuminating the whole interior of the safe. He lifted it up and found that the wad of cotton wool on which he had placed the jewel was dry.

It was found that the stone lost its lustre when the mugg gruxer and would not give any light during the day. Tradition has it that there are jewels filling the tanks and pond stones which glow in darkness only when the sun and moon is shining. The Jewellers of the Indies given a story of how Krishna, the eighth incarnation of Vishnu, had to climb a bear demon for the sake of a sun stone.

From Ceylon comes the wonderful elephant pearl. "Until I examined this jewel myself," said Dr. Joseph Pearson, director of the Colombo Museum, "I had been under the impression that the difference in these pearls in Oriental literature were more of a kind of mythological legend than reality." M. G. Rodriguez Borgia, Ceylon, the possessor of this unique gem, had taken the pearl to the director for his opinion.

It weighs twelve carats, has shining brilliant hues with creamy golden tint and is supposed to be 2,000 years old. The pearl was examined under a microscope and was found to have the basis of ivory. All the old tests of Indian jewels were tried, and it came out triumphant under them all.

The storm pearl is said to drop from the skies in a first cloud burst and is of the color and size of the pomegranate seed, glowing like a flash of lightning and makes the possessor immune from storm accidents or dangers of electrocution.

Tradition says that the cobra jewel shines in the night and that the cobra feeds on the toads and mice and insects that are attracted by its light. Therefore it takes it out and puts it on the ground, lying concealed beside it and preys upon the rodents which come near. He swallows it again and goes back to his hole. The jewel is said to melt and drop into poison when he is angry and so it is difficult to get, but there are instances where such jewels are found.

In the Poona district, 200 miles south of Bombay, a rich Zamindar obtained one such, and he has the property of curing all snakes' bites. It is said to be round only when there is poison in the bite and fails off when the poison has been obtained.

H. W. B. Moreno, member of the Legislative Council of Bengal, Calcutta, is the proud possessor of a ruby, which contains under its shining surface the image of a dark man, dressed in white purgee (the national headdress of the Hindus) and clad in white robes. The face is dark brown and the closer one looks at the image the more luminous does the face appear.

The King Thebaw, of Burma, had to flee possession a wonderful pair of earrings made of rubies, containing under each their glowing serpentines. These were stated to have the power of curing all blood poisoning. King Thebaw tried to take the ear of his death.

The Maharajah of Bodi has in his possession an emerald cup the depest green tint. All skin diseases are cured by using the water kept in that cup for three hours in the sun.

A chief in Bombay has a mortar and pestle, carved out of whole sapphires and gives the medicines made therein as a cure of anaemia. In Travancore State there is an image of Ganesha, the Elephant God, cut out of a ruby and the image of Narayan, or Vishnu, cut out of a blue sapphire.

A LABOR AUCTION

Farm Hands in France Still Sold at the Market, But They Get Sole Money.

A labor market, where farm hands are auctioned off to the highest bidder, still exists in France.

Unlike the slave markets of old, French farm laborers willingly take part in the annual auctions. There is nothing inhuman or forced in their sale of their own bodies for a stated period of toil, for they get the sole money minus a fee for the auctioneer.

As witnessed at the annual "Foire aux Valets," or Workman's Fair, at Chateauroux, the farm hands consider it a banner day of the year because it brings new employers, new surprises—and often more money.

On the day of the fair each autumn the laborers come in from the farms to the central town in seach of new employers for the coming year. Except in the minority of cases where the workers are satisfied with their former employers, nearly all seek new places each year.

Many of them are engaged before the actual auction starts. Others prefer to wait until they are placed upon the auction block and the farmers who are bid for their services for a period which is usually set at eight months.

If the worker is young and physically well built he mounts the platform with pride. He flexes his muscles in a manner intended to impress the watching prospective employers of his high value as a farm hand.

The laborers especially try to make an impression upon the farm owner whom they know to be good masters. They know and carry the favor of the farm owner who does not work his men too hard and who furnishes them with comfortable quarters and good food.

The show of prowess is highly amusing to sightseers who gather in the square to watch the proceedings. The laborers are dressed in their best. The old men, who feel the years slipping away and wish to hide the fact, from would-be employers, put their hair and straighten up their shoulders to appear young and more powerful. If they succeed in impressing, they are sure to obtain a couple of hundred francs more for their services than they would otherwise.

In 1929 the auctions showed that the average hire price for a period of eight months has advanced from 200 to 1000 francs over the previous year. Women as well as men are sold, although feminine labor brings only about half the price of male.

A first-class laborer, sold on the auction block for eight months' toil, is worth about $120 or $125, while second-class workers, those who are slightly weak, old, or notoriously lazy, bring about $100 for the period. Master laborers are worth about $85 for the period, while the price for male farm cooks varies according to their skill and reputation for good cooking. Farm girls, even the prettiest, seldom hire for more than $50 or $60.

Whence Came Slang.

What has tripe done, either now or in the past, to make it the most contemptuous, unsympathetic term in American rhetoric? asks a writer in Harper's Magazine. What, in short, is it that causes so many words, unrelated in themselves, to leap out and take hold on the withering epithets of scorn and abuse or as glittering symbols of affection and respect? Why "spinach," "prune," "lemon," and "applesauce," and why, on the other hand, "corker" and "brick?" Why "he's the berries" as a term of esteem and "Give him the raspberry" as a term of contempt? Why, for that matter, both "good" and "bad" "egg"?

The most cursory study of the nature of slang must very shortly reveal the basic facts—first, that the apparent origin of a slang term is very seldom its real one; and, second, that the gift of a slang word often, not, as a rule, from anything in its own nature but from some aspect that it holds for a certain group of persons at a certain time.

Paid Servants to Attend Tree.

The stately elm which stands in the Andrew Haydon Park, Ottawa, is the largest known tree in Allegheny Co., U.S.A. It boasts a circumference of 22 feet and height of 125 feet. Too, it probably receives more care than any other in this district. For in her will, Jane Bayne, who died nearly a decade ago, set aside a large fund, stipulating that it should be used to perpetuate the elm which had been the property of her family for generations. These facts come from Borough Councilman C. A. Sainis of Bellevue, who has to look after the tree as part of his civic duties. Every year tree surgeons are paid several hundred dollars to keep the plant in a healthy form. The tree stands in a brick pit to allow it "breathing space." Holes are dug each year and fertiliser poured down on the roots. As near as the best tree experts can reckon, the age of the elm is over 300 years.

Truck's Striking Force.

An automobile or truck weighing only 3,000 pounds and going at a speed of forty miles an hour has a striking force of not less than 2,700 tons. This warning has been issued to automobile drivers by the Massachusetts Safety Council. "It does not this point more accurately," the council continues, "such a car going forty miles an hour strikes with sufficient energy to toss a rock weighing one ton eighty feet high."

Mexican Investments.

American investments in Mexico amount to approximately $1,195,000,000, according to an estimate made by the Department of Commerce. The greater part of it is invested in oil properties, mines and railroads.

Mrs. Rozen's face was jammed into the windshield, causing facial injuries and she also suffered a severely injured knee.

ESCAPED PRISONER RECAPTURED
Wilfred Levoie, the 17-year-old boy who a few weeks ago stole Clayton Cranston's car, from John Watson's garage in Napanee, and who escaped from the yard of the local jail last week, was captured in Renfrew early Tuesday morning and brought back. Provincial Constable D. B. Vagar, of Enterprise, had put in a call to the various towns and cities and receiving a tip that the prisoner was in the north country, proceeded to Denbigh, thence to Vennachar, Plevna and Lavant, learning that a man resembling the description of LeVoie, had left a car at Lavant, and knowing that a car had been stolen from Redden's Garage, Tamworth, early Wednesday morning, Officer Wagar went to Lavant and learned that the boy had purchased a ticket for Ottawa. LeVoie proceeded by train as far as Renfrew and got off the train at the station, and returning again after a short interval. His return was disastrous for him, for immediately upon his arrival back at the station he was placed under arrest again. He appeared before Magistrate Graham on Thursday on a number of charges. The charges and sentences were as follows: Theft of a suit of clothes, one year; theft of gas and money from Scanlan's garage, one year; theft of Redden's car at Tamworth, one year; breaking and entering Redden's garage, five years; escaping from gaol, two years. These sentences are to run concurrently, so that the prisoner will serve in all, five years.

Runions, Agricultural Representative, who acted as judge, the gardens were of a very high quality, eighteen of the twenty-five gardens scoring over 90%. Demonstrations will also make an exhibit of garden produce at the Sills-ville and Anderson School Fairs, to be held in September.

FREE SHOTS ON Local Sport

We were very sorry (though not very surprised) to see in the account of last week's ball game between the Gibbard Athletics and Kingston Ponies that "Gibbard, Kinkley and Sweet died out."

* * *

However, on investigation it turns out that it was a typographical error and that three young men appeared on the local's line-up at Adolphustown Saturday.

* * *

The account should have read "filed out" although in reality they did "die out."

* * *

Ray Allison, the Maple Leaf's veteran back-stop, suffered an unfortunate accident in Saturday's game when Fred Bentley crashed into him at the plate, in the last of the seventh.

* * *

Bentley's shoulder struck the catcher's mask and injured his nose.

* * *

This is Allison's second smash in the face this season.

* * *

Afterwards a player who blocks a baserunner is taking his own chances.

* * *

"Red" Miller, the local's lanky shortstop, had to be taken out in the seventh, too, wrenching his ankle while attempting to steal second.

* * *

One thing, the umpires are very slack in calling, is illegal delivery of pitched balls. Apparently a twirler can get away with anything he has the nerve to try whether it is a balk, walking into the box, or, as in one case, pitching seven innings from a hole two feet ahead of the regular box.

* * *

This gives the pitcher a very unfair advantage over the batter.

* * *

The battery of Fraser-Scrimshaw was practically unbeatable Saturday.

* * *

Doug. had no less than sixteen strikeouts, fanning every man on the team except D. Daverne, at least, once.

* * *

He nabbed everything in sight and allowed very few pass-balls, in spite of a split thumb.

* * *

In the sixth, the locals pulled a play which hasn't been seen here for some time.

* * *

The Leafs were at bat, J. Allen stole second on the first pitch to Sheppard, Scrimshaw whipped the ball to Johnson, apparently to catch Allen.

* * *

But Twin pegged the old apple back to Scrimmy who caught A. Allen coming from third.

* * *

It was a nice play, well-timed and well played, by two old timers who had worked it often years ago.

* * *

Everybody and his horse will likely be at Odessa Saturday, when the two leaders battle for first place.

* * *

It will likely develop into a pitching duel before it is over and should be worth seeing.

* * *

The locals return game with Kingston Ponies had to be postponed indefinitely.

WEDDING BELLS

At Grace United Church, Toronto, on Saturday, June 21st, 1930, there was united in marriage by the Rev. William Marshall, Miss Beatrice Edna Cretsman, of Creighton Mines, to Mr. Delbert Pringle, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. John Pringle, of South River Road, Napanee. Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple were served with a buffet lunch at the home of friends of the bride and groom.

After a social evening was spent together, the happy couple motored to Napanee to spend their honeymoon with his parents and relatives, also his sister, of Kingston.

HAM — CREWS
An attractive wedding was solemnized at the home of Mrs. J. W. Crews, of Trenton, on Wednesday, July 16th, at 11 a.m., when her daughter, Ethel Elizabeth, became the bride of Mr. Franklin Neilson Ham, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Ham, Bath. The ceremony was performed by Rev. George Nickle, of Toronto, uncle of the bride.

The bride, who was unattended and was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Kenneth W. Crews, wore a peach crepe ensemble, with beige hat and corsage accessories and a shower of roses. The wedding music was played by Miss Eleanor Ham, A.T.C.M., sister of the groom, and during the signing of the register, Mrs. Robert Waldron sang "Dear."

After the ceremony about forty guests sat down to a dainty luncheon, served by five young friends of the bride. The esteem in which the bride is held was shown by the number of fine gifts from her friends.

ODESSA W. I.

The July meeting of the Women's Institute was held in the library, on the second instant, with a good attendance. The president presided and opened the meeting in the usual manner. Several letters were read, including one of appreciation for flowers to a sick friend. The roll call brought forth several splendid answers to "Loyal Quotations," every member having a quotation.

Miss Lillian Aylsworth gave her paper on "Current Events," which was concise and well chosen.

The meeting was patriotic in character and some excellent papers were heard.

Mrs. Albert Dawson gave a paper on "Loyalty to Country."

"Breathes there a man with soul so dead
Who never to himself hath said:
This is my own, my native land?"

It was crowded with splendid thoughts. "Loyalty is the love of and devotion to one's country. It is the spirit which prompts us to obey its laws to support and defend its rights and promote its welfare. One thing, we know, our country will be strong or weak, noble or less noble, as we make it. Of course, a selfish love of country isn't loyalty. We must include others; as we cannot live without other countries. It is not the great men who shine for a time like a comet, that make our country great but the common people, who like the stars, are on duty all the time, working, training their families to be loyal and true, who add most to our country's strength and who are the backbone of every nation. We cannot all be great, but we can do our part, as loyal citizens if we but live up to our institutions." Tit for Home and Country.

Loyalty to the Home Circle was the subject of a paper given by Mrs. J. H. Roberts. The best evidence of a loyal citizen are love, sympathy, charity, faith, intelligence, thrift. A town is not the public buildings and banks, but its citizens. If we have the best citizens, we have all that is necessary to make a prosperous community. Our children need our example, from that we expect [illegible]

CANADIAN HOSPITAL SHIP FOR ARCTIC

Canada has again blazed the trail in the Arctic by providing a fully equipped modern hospital ship for use in the Canadian Arctic. The ship, called the "Medico", is a 33 foot cabin cruiser type. At present it is on its way to Aklavik, North West Territories, which will be its base of operations. Its operating base will make it the Medico the most northerly situated hospital ship in the world. The ship will be used to convey patients from any place that can be reached by boat to the hospital at Aklavik. Dr. J. A. Urquhart, N.W.T. doctor at Aklavik, will be in charge of the ship's operations.

The craft, which was built in Edmonton for the N.W.T. branch of the Department of the Interior, left Fort Simpson on the Mackenzie River bound for Aklavik, a few days ago.

BETTER BUSINESS TONE EXPECTED TO FOLLOW ELECTION

Irrespective of whether or not the outcome of the election meets the approval of the individual, there is a nation-wide relief that it is over and that the country can resume business on as broad a scale as home and foreign economic conditions will permit.

An election campaign, with its attendant uncertainties, invariably affects business. It makes a bad business period worse and a good business period poor. There is the uncertainty as to what platform policies leaders will embrace to lure the voter, and then the uncertainty of the effect and time of the application of such policies.

Very seldom in history have the policies of even a new ministry been so revolutionary in nature or so sudden in application as to throw the economic machinery out of gear, but, despite that fact, "business" is a decidedly nervous institution that appears willing to shy at any possible innovation.

There is no question but that business in Canada has been badly out of gear this past eight months; and in "business" may be included the basic industries of agriculture, mining and lumbering, as well as industries based upon our raw products, or upon imported materials.

Indications are not wanting, however, that a swing towards better times is in prospect. Most parties were more or less in accord on many items of policy in which should aid employment, and employment is the fundamental factor in the economic life.

Those who pose as authorities on economics in the Dominion are unanimous in their opinion that, during the piping times of 1927-29 and early 1930, they do see improvement in the horizon. The disturbing factor, perhaps, is that the outlook for the black-type industry is the cautiously optimistic one. There is the matter of [illegible] and crops and [illegible] that has to be considered in this case a universal depression [illegible] of unemployment [illegible] for sixteen years. During [illegible] short time for a new thing [illegible] and it is the introduction [illegible] application of cheap labor and the application of necessary to attract investors in such commodities as Russia.

An improved condition is only the [illegible] of time, and as soon as the Government [illegible] as soon as the [illegible] of the [illegible] are removed.

PARLIAMENT WILL BE CONVENED EARLY IN OCTOBER NEXT

Canada's next parliament will be convened under the premiership of Hon. R. B. Bennett, about October 1, to begin the implementing of Mr. Bennett's pledges to curb unemployment and to divert a material proportion of importations of manufactured goods from foreign markets to Canadian factories.

As a preliminary step to take the slack out of unemployment it is probable that, in cooperation with the provinces, a considerable programme of public works will be authorized. In fact, as soon as Mr. Bennett's Government is organized and accepts office, it is expected announcement will be made that money will be appropriated by Governor-General's warrant to assist the provinces and municipalities, as was done in 1921 and 1922. At that time the Government provided close to two million dollars to aid the unemployed.

Even an extensive program of public works, however, can only be a temporary palliative—a sort of a lifting of the country by its own bootstraps. The permanent remedy envisioned by Mr. Bennett is the upbuilding of industry within the country through the manufacture of our raw materials for the world in Canada and through the manufacture here of hundreds of millions of dollars worth of goods now imported.

Where manufactured goods cannot be economically produced in Canada, it is Mr. Bennett's creed that we should buy them from nations which are ready to grant Canada trade advantages for our wheat and other products.

All this will involve a very material readjustment of our tariffs. An effective countervailing duties enacted last session will be repealed. The British preference will be subject to revision, items under that heading which effect Canadian industries like woollens will be altered, while others will be made more effective through a better system of appraisal. It is also the intention to [illegible] the transfer of our [illegible] to British sources.

[illegible] Mr. Bennett [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] with Mr. Bennett [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

THEY WORK TOGETHER

One of the most interesting things disclosed by the latest report on the work of the Illustration Stations conducted by the Dominion Department of Agriculture is the value of fertilizer in crop production. Taking the potato crop in the Maritimes for purposes of illustration, the yield in 1929 as shown by the average of five stations, was 287.2 bushels to the acre where a mixture of 10 tons of manure and 750 pounds of fertilizer were used as against a yield of 223.8 bushels for manure alone, and 231.8 bushels for fertilizer alone. But more significant are the figures with respect to marketability of product. Where manure and fertilizer were used together 250.1 bushels to the acre were marketable, and only 28.1 bushels were unmarketable; where manure alone was used 84.7 bushels were unmarketable; and where fertilizer alone was used 42.7 bushels were unmarketable. Remarks beneficial to potato production were provided in greatest volume by a combination of manure and fertilizer.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE RUNNING HOSPITAL

During the past six years excellent work has been done by the Women's Institute in the Peace River country and as the present time the Fairview Women's Institute owns a hospital which was established in 1924. It is the only hospital owned and operated by a Women's Institute.

At a time when Canada's high maternal death rate is a much discussed problem at women's meetings, it is interesting to note that this society has carried on an attack against maternal death by opening a hospital. For many years the need of a hospital in the frontier settlement was a serious handicap. The nearest was 60 miles away in the village of Peace River and in wet weather and winter the roads were practically impassable. The railway was then an unfulfilled dream. The very fact that Fairview was an organized municipality was a hindrance for very little help could be expected from outside. It was too far away and too much of an uncertain financial responsibility for any large outside voluntary service organization.

But in 1924 some of the pioneer women, banded together since 1917 in the "Fairview Women's Institute" in the small settlement of Waterhole, decided to take the initiative, for the women were the greatest sufferers, especially in maternity cases. At first a cottage was rented and one of the members, a wife of a soldier settler with four years' experience overseas nursing, took charge and was dependent on the fees of the patients for her salary. The venture proved so successful that at the end of six months the cottage was purchased. Extensions have been gradually made and it is hoped soon to have a ten bed hospital. The hospital is now on the approved list and receives the usual grant of 50 cents per day per patient.

Last year 176 patients were admitted. There were 35 babies born there, 40 major operations and 25 minor, performed. It is the proud boast of the Institute that there has not been one instance of maternal mortality.

People "All Nerves" In The Summer

The summer months are the most dangerous to children. The complaints of that season, which are cholera infantum, colic, diarrhoea and dysentery, come on so quickly that often a little one is beyond aid before the mother realizes he is ill. The mother must be on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they do come on suddenly to banish them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during hot weather as Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the stomach and bowels and are absolutely safe. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville Ont.

WHY PULLETS PAY

It is a pretty well established general principle that pullets pay better than hens as egg producers, and the reason for this is readily apparent in figures reported by poultry experts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

"Mr. F. C. Elford, the Dominion Poultry Husbandman is authority for the statement that it takes the first sixty eggs a hen lays to pay the cost of its keep, and any hen that only lays sixty eggs is nothing but a bull of expense. The application of this observation is better appreciated when in the light of official records of egg laying contests which show that the present average annual production of selected layers is only 122 eggs in the pullet year. Throughout farm flocks generally there are still far too many birds kept whose egg laying ability is quite unknown and entirely a matter of guess work.

Why keep old hens? Mr. Elford's records show that the average profit over cost of feeding for a hen is $1.66 a year, while the corresponding figure for the pullet is $2.34 a year, or put in another way, the average cost of producing a dozen eggs through pullets is 20 cents, while through hens the cost is 35 cents.

But even more interesting is the detailed comparison of returns from pullets and hens over a period of years which is afforded by studies recently completed at the Lennoxville Experimental Station. Over a period of ten years, the pullet flock averaging 141 birds at a cost of $2.42 per bird to produce an average of 169 eggs per bird, which selling at an average price of 50 cents per dozen gave a net profit over cost of feed of $4.56. In contrast with this is the production statement over a period of eight years from an average flock of 78 hens. It cost $2.15 a year average to feed the hens which gave an egg production of 109 eggs per bird, which selling at the average price per dozen of 50 cents produced an average profit over cost of feeding amounting to $2.15. In other words the pullet flock produced twice as much profit as did the old hens.

This suggested one very interesting point, when is a hen old? The poultry experts find that with the first of each succeeding moult the egg producing ability of the hen shows a marked decline. This is particularly true with respect to the heavier breed types, the White Leghorn being the only exception to the general rule. During the pullet, or first laying year, the hen is at her best. After the pullet year she is more valuable as breeding stock than as an egg producing proposition, and is better out of the flock than in it.

WHEAT PRICES STILL UNCERTAIN

Future wheat prices, in the opinion of officials of the United States Farm Relief Board, are uncertain. Washington dispatches indicate. It is noted that so weak was the wheat market this year that any factor that would ordinarily tend to raise prices has been practically unfelt, whereas factors that ordinarily decrease prices have influenced the market to a serious extent.

It is estimated that this year, with the assistance of the United States Government revolving fund of $500,000,000 for farm relief 320,000,000 bushels of American wheat will be taken off the market in an attempt to stabilize prices. Such attempts, so far, have had little influence in keeping up prices but Farm Board officials are still optimistic.

ACROSS AFRICA BY AUTOMOBILE

R. V. Bingham Returns to Canada to Address Canadian Keswick Conference on Features of His Unique Trip

To travel across Africa by motor car from Lagos to the borders of Abyssinia is a feat that has been accomplished by few people, even in these days of modern travel. One of the few is Rev. R. V. Bingham, well known throughout Canada as General Director of the Sudan Interior Mission and President of Evangelical Publishers, Toronto and the Canadian Keswick Conference, Perrydale, Muskoka.

Mr. Bingham left Toronto last October. A car awaited him at Lagos, and in this he made his remarkable journey through the heart of what was formerly known as "the dark continent," but which is now bridged and roaded for hundreds of miles and in a few years will be as safe for motorists as the roads of Ontario are today—safer, perhaps, as there is no need yet for traffic policemen in Central Africa. Five times Mr. Bingham has visited Africa in connection with the mission work he was instrumental in establishing there some thirty years ago. But this is the first time he has used an automobile. Crossing Africa in record time he entered Abyssinia during the recent turbulent period in the history of that nation, but was unable to proceed by car, this mode of travel being prohibited. The trip to the capital (Addis Ababa) was made by mule train and occupied five weeks!

"Writer Meets Pygmies"

Amongst his many experiences was his contact with the race of pygmies who inhabit the solitudes of the great Ituri forest. It was of these same people that Stanley wrote, when describing his historic expedition to find Livingstone. Today there is a splendid road through their domain, and the natives are becoming accustomed to contact with white men, although they are still hard to reach, owing to their exceeding shyness. Mr. Bingham write: "They have no desire whatever to be turned away from their own mode of life in the everglades of Africa. With their bows and arrows and their hunting knives these little men will tackle the largest denizens of the forest. The fierceness of the lion, the strength of the wild elephant, have no terrors for the pygmies, who are expert hunters and will overcome all that comes in their way in their natural home."

It is possible today, Mr. Bingham says, to motor practically across the continent, a distance of between 3,000 and 4,000 miles. With careful planning, one may stop either at an hotel or rest house every night— if nothing goes wrong with the plans. There are gasoline stations, though there are neither so numerous or ornate as in Ontario. The price charged for "gas" is considerably more than in this country—indeed, at one point Mr. Bingham's party was charged $2.00 per gallon!

Africa a Land of Animals

Despite the inroads of civilization, Africa still remains a land of wild, natural beauty, of romance and adventure. Monkeys still chatter in the tree tops, as she speeds along the fine Government highways. The hippopotamus still rears its snout in its great rivers. The lion and the elephant still stalk through the long grass that borders the highways. Zebras may still be seen in immense herds on the broad plains and deer of all species are still found in abundance.

Mr. Bingham is now on his way back to Canada. After spending a short time at Mission headquarters, 266 Bay Street, Toronto, he will leave for Ferndale, Muskoka, to tell his interesting story to guests at the Canadian Keswick Conference, which meets between July 6 and August 24. His addresses will be illustrated by moving pictures taken by him during his wonderful trip across Africa.

AEROPLANE NOISE CURBED

Aeroplane noises will soon be a thing of the past, aero engineers here declare. Canadian and American officials who have been co-operating in an effort to solve the problem of excessive aeroplane noises, now state they have almost solved the problem, only a few minor details remain to be investigated.

Inclusion of cabin, equipment of the engine exhaust with mufflers and the employment of geared propellers are the means so far recommended.

The engine noise can be reduced by muffling, and the most effective principle in use in designing the muffler is to make it a good cooler of the exhaust of gases. Having attacked the source of the noise, the final method is to insulate the cabins.

By these means it is expected that aeroplane travel will become more and more popular. Noise, it is explained, has been one of the chief obstacles to comfort during travel by air.

Don't Starve The Teeth

Teeth have to be built out of foods that are rich in phosphorus and calcium. Many children take into adult life teeth that are defective, unfit for the job that nature intended. Shredded Wheat with milk helps develop sound teeth, good muscles and good bones. It is rich in the bone-making salts. The crisp, crunchy shreds make chewing necessary and that develops healthy gums and good digestion.

INSECTS TO CONQUER MAN?

DISEASE SPREADERS

Scientist Thinks Seemingly Marvellous Intelligence of Insects Is Pro-ceeds From Instinct, Not Reason.

Once this earth was overrun by reptiles as terrifying as any fire-breathing dragon of mythology. One hundred feet long, thirty-five feet high, weighing fifty and sixty tons, these monsters of the earth's early aeons were hideous and ferocious. We know that they actually existed, for every good museum has one or more of their gigantic fossil skeletons realistically strung together.

Reptiles dominated the Mesozoic period, stalking in the swamps while a new group of weak and small creatures led a furtive life in the highlands. The reptilian mountains of flesh and scaly armor and teeth and claws had completely microscopic brains and, due to this and to climatic changes, they died out and the weak creatures developed into mammals ruled the earth. In time man, the highest form of mammal, appeared in the world, subduing all the brute creation by his gradually growing intelligence.

Insect Farmers, Builders

Will man, in turn, be subdued by some other form of life? asks a writer, who visualizes insects, of all things, as possible competitors with the lords of creation. In submitting this fantastic possibility, a member of the Smithsonian Institute in Washington states that the dominant forms of life are those which are independent of temperature and have exceptional means of locomotion. Insects possess to have these qualities to a considerable degree, and, moreover, to have brains which, in proportion to their bodies, are colossal and endowed with what looks almost like reasoning power.

Some insects make slaves of others and in a few cases these slaves would disappear but for the altruism of their masters. Insects are also marvels of seemingly intelligent effort. The spinning ants have learned the use of leaves as needles and thread. Caterpillars and bees have been known to use a pebble or stick to smooth earth over a buried caterpillar. Dr. Clark, of the Smithsonian, describes ants which cultivate fungi with as much skill as man shows in cultivating crops. Wax, mud and paper cells reveal a knowledge of construction materials, some of which are produced by chemical alteration of substances found in nature. It is said that the wasp's nest showed man how to make writing material. Anti-lions build pitfalls and spiders build snares. Aside from elaborate webs the spiders build turrets and hinged doors.

A Book On The Bee

Termites, bees, ants and wasps live according to their own social systems. A great variety of insects have learned to clothe themselves. Property rights are not unknown among them. Masterlinck wrote a fascinating entire book on "The Life of The Bee"—a book which so interested Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Canada's new Prime Minister, that we heard him discuss it for nearly an hour with three friends at luncheon in the Ranchman's Club, Calgary, several years ago.

"One commonly hears it said," remarks Dr. Clark, "that insects' attributes are instinctive . . . and an insect cannot change its habits. But this is not quite true, for they can change both form and habits if faced with new conditions . . . The improvement in man's transportation facilities offers insects a unique advantage. They board a train, ship or airplane just as human passengers.

Pests Cost Millions

Man guarantees an even distribution of pests. Fruits are imported from tropical countries. Garden products are distributed widely. And occasionally, as in the case of the gypsy moth, an experimenting scientist is responsible for the introduction of a pest. Leopold Trouvelot allowed the gypsy moth to get out of his laboratory at Harvard. For twenty years it was unseen. Then came the terrible plague in 1889 when sufficient became so acute that State and Federal aid were necessary. In Florida the Mediterranean fruit fly ruined crops, closed banks and kept 5,000 men out of work. In California the San Jose scale afflicted man and his crops. In about ten years between 1880 and 1890 it crossed the continent and began devastating the Atlantic seaboard. Growers now pay $20,000,000 a year to keep it in check.

Threats of Disease

But the real threat of insects toward man is disease. In W. D. Pierce's "Sanitary Entomology" 27 pages of fine print are devoted to the mere listing of such diseases spread by insects. Yellow fever and malaria are but two of thousands of diseases, it seems, which insects may use against man. Remember the house fly and how he spread typhoid until science stepped in and baffled him. Thus against the menace of insects man is employing his mighty weapon, intelligence. In this connection a scientist in the U. S. Bureau of Entomology does something to explode the idea that the brains of bees and flies can ever successfully cope with that of mankind. "The bee community," says he, "or the fly community is far superior in its organization to the best organized human community, but insect society will never evolve to anything higher than a more perfect beehive or a more perfect anthill, except through the development of individuality, and individuality cannot go far in a strictly communal society."

The facility of bees, wasps, etc., to distinguish form and color, etc., declares the scientist, is merely a general instinct to do with food collecting and has no relation to reasoning power. The idea of radio communication between insects, he scouts as ridiculous. Furthermore, although he has experimented upon an insect at work might imagine the creature to be endowed with almost superhuman intelligence, the idea of it as an organism equipped with a reasoning brain is apt to disappear when sometimes a mere fragment of the insect can be observed in movement. Independent not only of the brain but of the rest of the body provided that the ganglionic centre and the nerves are intact.

THE NATURALIST

Pardoe looked up from the printed page and out to the garden where pale winter sunshine only seemed to emphasize the leafless trees and barren beds. The pathway and lawn were dotted with happy sparrows; on the inverted coconut shells great and blue tom-tits led in acrobatic pastimes with confidence born of the knowledge that no other birds could share their precarious feeding places.

Beyond the garden lumbering rooks stalked about the field, picking scraps of food and occasionally rising in trained aerial squadrons, wheeling in curious manoeuvres, and settling down to resume their dignified survey of the ground. From the vantage-point of a frost-whitened chimney-pot a starling sang a song that was like a memory of budding spring.

Pardoe bent again to his newspaper. "Not even Pardoe," stated the review, "writes of Nature with the wonderful depth of understanding evinced by Hilari Cole." For a minute or two Pardoe sat still; then he rose and went into his study. Beginning to search for one thing, he lost himself in the pile of papers from the file. First reviews, then lengthier cases, followed by long, enthusiastic notices when his hour of victory had arrived. At length he came upon the cutting he was searching for, and he smiled. History was repeating itself. "Not even Vartress shows a more intimate acquaintanceship with Pardoe's life than Pardoe," stated the twenty-year-old critikon. This had been Pardoe's greatest triumph, for Vartress was the finest nature writer living until this cutting heralded the swing of favour to another. Pardoe wondered what had happened to the man whose name had faded. No thought like that had crossed his mind twenty years ago. Why did happen to men who passed on?

He went into the hall, slipped on hat and coat, and opened the door. Beyond the preliminary fluttering of wings at the sound, the birds did not move; they seemed to recognize Pardoe as a benefactor being who need not be feared. Pecking some grain from one of the capacious pockets of his shabby overcoat, he held the food in the palm of his hand while the birds fluttered round or settled on his wrist until it was all gone. He did not attempt to touch them; it was sufficient for him to have their bright eyes so near his own, to feel the confident clasp of their tough little feet.

Only the two robins which came daily to his breakfast table allowed him to stroke their feathers, though there had been a magpie, whose broken leg he healed with small splints, which loved to sit on his shoulder, suffering him to rub his bright plumage with his drab-moulded hair.

He passed out of the garden and went towards the woods. The air was crisp with the last of frost; the dead bracken lay like a carpet of dull gold at the feet of the bare trees. The wood was a small, private one made free to Pardoe by the wealthy landowner to whom it belonged. It was too remote and small to be worthy of the guns of the great man's friends, and the footstep of the naturalist was one of few to disturb it. Bright eyes watched the strange, rather grotesque figure who brought food to scatter, for Pardoe knew that wild creatures, like men, are won through their stomachs. Occasionally little calls rang through the wood from creature to creature, possibly sounds that here passed a friend, or so Pardoe liked to think.

He seated himself on the lichened log, shaded into mellow colours by moss and age, scattering the food he had brought on the ground. Scraps of shy, fluttering life flew down, wary at first, but soon pecking confidently, almost at his feet; rabbits went scurrying to their burrows or performed careful toilets before their homes.

It was dusk when the dreamer arose to go home. The air was redolent with the musky smell of decaying leaves and moist earth; all sound had ceased, no bird voice broke the brooding silence and the shadow of the wood was like a robe of peace about him. On the way his foot encountered a small object, stooping he picked up the dead bird. It was still limp, perhaps had died while he was in the wood. For a minute or two he fondled its head with his fingers, then he placed it under the shadow of the hedge and passed on.

Still and small, the melody of his voice silenced for all time, its purpose in a scheme that moves the planets and the amoeba fulfilled. One thing Pardoe knew; no matter how it died, it would have sung almost to the end. He had seen birds suddenly falter in flight, fall, and though how stricken or by what even his knowledge had never enabled him to discover; he had known them to be stricken even by fierce foes in the act of song. All creatures fulfilled their purpose to the end; that was the law.

His own hour was passing; like the old parrot robin deposed from its favourite haunt by some strutting male of its own brood, he must give way to the new-comer. That, also was the law, but he must go on to the end. Birds sing whether they have an audience or not; Pardoe could only express his song of life in print, but he knew, even as he entered his study and seated himself at the desk, that only the power that had stilled the dead bird could stay his pen. — Hoole Jackson.

CANADA LIVING UP TO TREATY

Progress in extending protection to birds migrating between Canada and the United States is being made by both countries, according to a report issued by the Department of Agriculture.

The establishment of five bird sanctuaries and one public shooting ground in important wild fowl areas of four Canadian provinces during the past year, indicates that Canada is fulfilling her obligation under the migratory-bird treaty, which protects birds migrating between Canada and the United States.

FISHERIES FURNISHED INCREASE IN VALUE

Fisheries production in the prairie provinces in 1929 went beyond the four million dollar mark for the first time. The total marketed value of the fish caught in the commercial fisheries of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, last year, was more than half a million dollars greater than in 1928 and was not far short of being twice as great as in 1924.

In the calendar year 1929 the figures for marketed value totaled $2,864,162; in 1928 they were $2,538,897; and in 1929 they amounted to $4,056,280. There has been steady progress in the prairie provinces' fisheries in the past few years and with new fishing waters being opened up year by year and transportation facilities improved and extended the prospects are that even more marked progress will take place in the years that are just ahead.

An increased catch, increases in market value in each of the provinces, though principally in Manitoba, were noted in 1929. This meant increases in the number of fishermen and increases in the value of the equipment employed.

Total catch in three provinces in 1929 was approximately 567,000 hundredweight, as compared with about 441,000 hundredweight in 1928, the number of men engaged in the fisheries was 7,500 in round figures, an increase of more than 800 and the value of the equipment in use was $1,986,000 or almost half a million dollars more than in the preceding year. So far as varieties of fish are concerned, whitefish continued in first place in point of marketed value of catch, $1,404,000, although in Manitoba pickerel held the lead with a value of about $980,500.

While there has been marked fishing progress in the prairie provinces generally in the past five years, the greater gains so far as the marketed value at least is concerned, have been in Manitoba and Alberta.

In both provinces the annual value of the fisheries production has considerably more than doubled since 1924. In that year the marketed value figures for Alberta were $339,107, while in 1929 they were $732,214. And in Manitoba, there was an increase from $1,232,563 in 1924 to $2,745,205 last year. In Saskatchewan the increase has been smaller, the 1929 total being $572,871, as compared with $462,492 five years previously, but expansion is continuing in the province as new waters are coming under fisheries development. Extension of the fisheries northward of Saskatchewan is one of the most notable changes that has been occurring in the industry in the past few years.

TREE PLANTING CAR RENEWS SUCCESS

The tree planting car of the Canadian Forestry Association, now on its 12th annual tour of the prairie provinces, carrying on its mission of interesting, encouraging and instructing the farmers and the people in the smaller towns of the west in the planting of trees and shrubs for wind-breakers shelter and the beautification of homes, is now in Alberta.

On March 1st the car started out and has covered over 2,000 miles in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, holding 191 lectures in the 97 towns visited with a total attendance of 26,500. From the number attending, the interest shown, co-operation of the interested parties and the results obtained, the 1930 tour of the tree planting car has, from the very start, been an outstanding success.

One of the most interesting things noted on the present tour is the large increase in the number of farmers attending, many of them driving from 10 to 20 miles to see the moving picture on tree planting and secure information with regard to the various problems on trees and shrubs, with which they are faced. Twenty-five stops will be made in Alberta.

CANADIAN CONSUMES FOUR POUNDS OF TEA

The average Canadian consumes approximately four pounds of tea a year and the average Englishmen consumes 9.15 pounds, according to a report of the Department of Commerce. The United Kingdom ranks first in consumption among non-producing countries and during later years there has been a steady upward trend. Per capita tea consumption in the United States has been showing a downward tendency and the average consumption there is three quarters of a pound.

New Zealand shows an average consumption of eight pounds while in Australia it is seven pounds. In Holland the average is 2.6 pounds used per person and in Germany .19 pounds and France was the lowest with .08 pounds.

CONTINENT'S AGE AVERAGE RAISED

America is growing up. The day when this continent was a young Man's land is behind. Latest census statistics reveal that whereas 70 years ago only 9 per cent of the people were over fifty years of age, today 16 per cent are older than that.

While the advances made by medical science have been a factor in this condition, life expectation has not been increased to such an extent as these figures seem to indicate. But the decline in the birth rate and the immigration have much to do with the matter.

In 1900, 50 per cent of the population of Canada and the United States was under twenty years of age. This percentage has now dropped to below 40 per cent. The decline in the birth rate has largely instrumented here, statisticians point out.

This state of affairs will inevitably have an effect on the industrial life of the continent, it is predicted. Those industries, which cater to the young people of more than fifty years will find it increasingly difficult to find the people they desire and their pay rolls.

WEDDING BELLS

TACK — GRAHAM

At the parsonage of Trinity United Church, Napanee, on July 19th, at 8:00 o'clock, there were united in marriage by the Rev. Harry Pawson, Miss Nelle Graham, eldest daughter of Mr. William Graham, Napanee, to Mr. Ernest Tack, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Tack London, Eng.

The bride, who was attended by Miss Elsea Lloyd, wore a powder blue, chamo-suede silk ensemble, with hat to match and carried a shower bouquet of sweet peas, fern and gardenias.

The groom's mother, Mrs. William Tack, was present at the marriage, she being in Canada on a visit for the occasion. The groom is a native of England, but has lived in Canada for the past five years. The esteem in which the happy couple are held was shown by the number of gifts from their friends, among which was a beautiful tea set of dishes, given by the people of Selby Church, which the bride and groom gratefully accepted.

The happy couple will reside in Napanee.

SMITH — OLIVER

On Saturday, August the second, at twelve o'clock, there were united in marriage, Vyvien Bernice, daughter of the late Malcolm and Mrs. Oliver, and William Everett Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Smith, of Napanee. The ceremony took place at Smith's Falls, the Rev. Edward Hamil Costigan, curate of St. John's Church, officiating. Miss Louise Smith, sister of the groom, and Dr. T. Hugo Gleeson, were in attendance. Only the immediate relatives were present at the marriage service.

The charming little bride wore a becoming ensemble, her crepe gown, hat and shoes being of delicate grey, with a chic, short wrap of rose velvet, and she carried an armful of roses. After the wedding breakfast, Mr. and Mrs. Smith left on a motor trip to Ottawa and Montreal.

Later they will take the Saguenay River trip before returning to their new home in Bowmanville.

PERSONAL LIBERTY COSTS MUCH IN TERMS OF NATIONAL HEALTH

But Public Health Official Pushes Publication and Education to Co-operate in Urging Public to Protect Itself From Disease.

(By JOHN BURKE INGRAM)

"This, we have been brought up to believe is a free country, which means among other things, that duly accredited citizens are free to be as foolish as they please. For example, they can—excepting in enlightened districts, or when there is a smallpox scare—refuse to be vaccinated.

"They can refuse to have their children immunized against diptheria, and so many of them do, that this absolutely preventable disease kills 1200 Canadians a year, and makes a total of 13,500 seriously ill. If they live in a district where the water and milk supplies are not rigidly safeguarded by a competent public health department, and where their friends and neighbours are dropping off like flies with typhoid fever, they can kill refuse to accept the immunity to this disease which inoculation against it provides. They can ignore the fact that this inoculation against typhoid fever, which disease killed more soldiers in the Boer War than bullets did; is so effective that in the Great War not one Canadian soldier died of typhoid.

"They can—however, I can go on like this straight down to the bottom of the column. The point of my plaint is that this because people can't be forced to take the trouble to be healthy, they must bepursuaded to do it. And the peculiar situation that exists today is that it doesn't seem to be quite anybody's business to do the persuading. Consequently, thousands of Canadians are dying unnecessarily every year, long years ahead of their time, of diseases which could be prevented. True, much valuable work is being done by public health departments. But even they are prone to function too coldly—to fail to combine the heart of humanity with the head of science, with the result that while their function excellently, and save many lives, it is almost without the knowledge of their beneficiaries the taxpayers, and assuredly without their warm and hearty co-operation.

Need of Public Education.

"I think that the need for public education as regards health, and the advisability of public health departments going out of their way a bit to win popular support, for their work can seldom been more lucidly and admirably and forcibly advocated than by Dr. A. J. Douglas, M.O.H., of Winnipeg, in his presidential address before the Canadian Public Health Association's annual meeting in Toronto in May of this year.

"Given room," he said in part, "there are a number of matters connected with our profession and which it is difficult to obtain a sympathetic and encouraging hearing from the public.

"It is not I think because the people as a whole are unwilling to countenance new and sometimes rather revolutionary things but is due to unwillingness to approve ongoing things they do not understand is often because they have had nobody to instruct them or that the instructions they have received have not been given in a convincing manner, with arguments driven home by irresistible facts and demonstrations. Bacon expresses the idea in the following words: 'The work of science is to substitute facts for appearances, and demonstrations for impressions.'

"To obtain the greatest success in our work there must be an aproused public sentiment. Public health reforms laws and regulations cannot run far ahead of public opinion and knowledge without encountering opposition or inertia which will clog progress. Any health revolution in which the public does not have confidence or to which the majority of people are defectively informed is not capable of adequate enforcement. Darwin once said: 'No sanitary improvement worth the name will be effected, whatever laws may pass, or what ever powers we confer on public officers, unless you create an intelligent interest in the public mind.'

"The importance of gaining the sympathy and support of the public for the objects we hope to attain is a point I should like to emphasize today. We are met here from all over the Dominion. When we go to our homes and resume our duties it should be an object of each of us to endeavour to instruct those whom we serve. People should be told in language as little technical as possible, what we are trying to do and why we want to do it. We should disseminate information through the medium of public addresses, the radio, the press and by any other means that offers. The press has been generous in allowing space for health news. No part of our educational campaign is more vital than that devoted to demonstrating to members of governing bodies the necessity of adequate appropriations sufficient not only to hold the ground already gained but to widen the scope of our endeavours and increase our usefulness.

Money Spent on Health, Good Investment.

"It is sometimes difficult to convince those holding the strings of the public purse that money spent for health purposes is necessary. There is nothing to strike the eye. No great change takes place immediately. To prevent epidemics is not so spectacular as to stop them. To keep people from becoming ill is not so conspicuous as curing them. Legislators must be shown, and this should be done well in advance of the time that budgets are to be considered. It has been well said that a community can have as much health as it is able to pay for.

"It is important that any information we give out, or any measure that we may advocate shall be of proven efficiency and no unsound theories nor procedures which are still in the experimental stage be recommended for general adoption. There is no much mis-information about health subjects current today that we should be careful not to sponsor anything that is not as certain as anything can be in this all too uncertain world.

"We have reached the stage now when the lives of people are well protected through the provision of pure water, milk and food, through child welfare, through sanitary disposal of human and other wastes, and through better control of communicable diseases.

"Further gains in future will not take place by teaching individuals to protect themselves but by educating people how and how to avoid it, by trying to make every person a health officer for himself and his family.

"Private organizations are much interested in public health. They give freely and enjoy at their own expense lectures, moving pictures, radio addresses, and have many practical accomplishments to their credit. It is my opinion that we should do what lies in our power to co-operate with and assist, locally where there are such, and in accord with sound practice. Such are often able to reach sections of the public with which official agencies cannot get in touch.

"I should like to emphasize the importance of enlisting the support and sympathy of the medical profession. Its influence is great and any health measure which meets with opposition from even a portion of the physicians in a community suffers a severe handicap; also any health administrator who has not the confidence and who does not receive the co-operation of the doctors in his area cannot be as efficient as he would be if these doctors believed in him and assisted him. Medical societies have been and are of great value through putting the seal of approval on new procedure and combating the efforts made by certain people to discredit things whose worth has been demonstrated. What has been said here of the medical profession might also be applied to the nursing and teaching professions."

No Beaver Next Week.

The witness was certainly no chicken, and the young barrister thought it would be to his advantage to get her rattled.

"And now, madam," he said, "I must ask a personal question. How old are you?"

"Young man," she replied, "it isn't more than an hour since the Judge there objected to 'hearsay evidence.' And I don't remember being born, and all I know of it is hearsay."

FREE SHOTS ON Local Sport

The tug-of-war between Grace and St. Andrew's at the United Church Picnic last Wednesday was one of the toughest contests ever seen around here.

Neither one could pull the other, it was just a case of who could hang on the longest.

Some of the race-horse trainers who travel all over the country and have been watching tug-of-war for years, say they never saw anything so close and never expect to again.

The picnic was a whale of a success all the way through and in all probability next year, all the churches will combine for one big day. This would create more competition among some lines of sport which were somewhat one-sided this year.

The game Odessa won Saturday 3-2 was a hard one for the locals to lose.

However, it was good close ball with mighty few errors on either side, and some nice hitting.

The locals could not seem to connect with O'Neil's pitches at all and he was chiefly responsible for their win although his team backed him up well.

The exhibition between Kingston Foxies and Gibbard's Monday was rather a weird affair.

Both teams used three pitchers but all were hit alike.

There were enough hits, errors, strike outs, runs, etc, for three games.

Things looked black for the locals when the tally stood 16-8 at the end of the seventh, but they rallied and rolled up nine runs in the last two innings against the visitors' three, to end it 17-15.

BASEBALL

"And twas a famous victory;" which was witnessed by one of the largest crowds of the season, when on Wednesday afternoon, Adolphustown defeated Adolphustown Maple Leafs by the score of 20-11. The general opinion is that the Maple Leafs would make good golfers, as they are generally looking for the ball, and while thus occupied the Adolphustown boys could score around. During the first inning, the Leafs scored six and Adolphustown five, and of course, they thought the game was won, and began to cheer. Well, it was just too bad. In the second, Adolphustown scored The fourth brought in three for the Leafs and four for Adolphustown. On the fourth, Dickson worked out a cross-word puzzle and scored a lonely run, while Gallagher, J. and also Rombough, B. Prout and Gazzard each brought in runs for Adolphustown. During the fifth the Leafs did a lot of swinging, but didn't even make first base. By this time, The Adolphustown boys thought it was time to get in some action, so Rombough made first and B. Prout came up and, after a long wait, he began to think he would have to have a walk, however, over went the ball which Bill sent over in the grain fields, bringing in a run or homer, the first one of the day. Garrinton, who for each followed with base hits, bringing the score up to sixteen. In the sixth, the Leafs got a man on base but no further. For Adolphustown, J. Prout and Rombough each made a run, and old Bill followed with another homer. In the seventh, D. Davern actually made a run. but it was such a shock that none of the others ever survived enough to make bases. Rombough scored for Adolphustown in the eighth and as far as the Leafs were concerned the game was over. We understand that one of the Leafs made the remark that in C. Davern they had a star pitcher with an iron arm, but we notice that after Prout made the homer in the fifth, he gave the box over to Dickson. One must remember that Bill's weakness is home runs. C. Bygate, the star second baseman, came all the way from Picton to play for his Adolphustown boys—he may be small, but he is the same as a magnet to the ball. B. Prout and Rombough as pitcher and catcher, played their usual good game. Loyst at first and Lavack on third are stops for everything, and how they enjoy themselves when the girls gather around to assist them. Garrinton, Frost and McCrudden gave good support as fielders. It was too bad for A. Allen when he walked off the base and waited for Prout to touch him out. We noticed a few weeks ago, a report in the paper, of the game when Adolphustown played Maple Leafs that it was said that the Adolphustown boys could not play a quiet game. Well, the only game that argued on Wednesday, were the Leafs, when they tried to umpire as well as play the game. However, the Adolphustown boys were quite capable of making decisions. The girls backed the boys and instead of being heard and not seen—they are heard and then seen.

THE LATE S. CASEY DENNISON

The flag on the Town Hall was flying at half mast, last week, as a mark of respect for the passing of one of Napanee's established businessmen and public servants. Mr. Casey Dennison passed away at his residence on Centre Street on Friday, August 10th, after a lingering illness. Some time ago Mr. Dennison was taken with a stroke. He made a good recovery but never got completely better. And from the early spring he has been confined to the house. The end came quietly early in the morning he slept away.

The late Mr. Dennison was born in Richmond Township in 1867, where his father was a prosperous farmer. When about twenty years of age, he came to Napanee and associated himself with his uncle, Mr. Robert Dennison, who was then opening up a general store in the north end of the town. He and Mr. Dennison carried on successfully and soon won an enviable position in the community. And then the senior partner to the firm, died. Mr. S. Casey Dennison succeeded to the business and managed it until failing health forced his retirement.

The qualities of business acumen and honesty which had made him a success in business, were recognized by his fellow citizens and elected him to the town council for about eight years; of these he served two as reeve and one term as mayor.

When about twenty-three years of age he married Miss Martha Rose, of Selby. To them were born two children, Mrs. Ray Hartwell, of Napanee, Mr. Clarence, also of Napanee. Mrs. Dennison died early in life, and Mr. Dennison later married Miss Minnie Ellis, of Belleville. To them were born one son, Mr. Harold, who along with Mr. Clarence, now manage the business. Three four children, along with his wife, survive.

Mr. Denison besides being a well known business man was an interested worker in the Church. For many years he was a trustee. He was as well the president of the adult Bible class for a long time and up until his death.

The funeral was held from his late home on Centre Street. It was conducted in private manner by Mr. Woodger, pastor of Grace Church, and Mr. J. P. Wilson, an old friend of the family. The private funeral cortege proceeded to the church, where a large number of citizens paid a fitting tribute to the memory of the deceased. The pall-bearers were members of the Board of Trustees and E. J. Corkill, Public School Inspector. Large numbers of floral tributes spoke of the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

Special features will make the 1930 Belleville show more attractive than ever this year. Special attention has been given to the Horse Show and there will find this department of more than usual interest. FORMER NAPANEE COUPLE CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

67 Years Married

Mr. and Mrs. Burrows, who celebrated their 67th anniversary of their wedding, resided in Napanee during the time of his inspectorate of Lennox and Addington. On retiring they moved to Toronto, and reside at 78 Chelsea Avenue.

Although Mr. Burrows is 89 and his wife 86, their great-hearted and altitude toward life indicate a permanent target at which present day married couples can shoot. In 1863, when the Burrows' nuptials were performed, young folks usually got married when barely out of the adolescent period. Fred was 21, and his wife was 18, and last Friday was their 67th wedding anniversary.

Appointed by Ryerson

Mr. Burrows was born in Toronto, and for ten years was a teacher at the Bath Academy in the Bay of Quinte district. At the age of thirty he was made public school inspector for Lennox and Addington counties. He was the youngest of the first seventy-one inspectors to be appointed in Ontario by the late Dr. Ryerson, and is now, he believes, the sole survivor, which he attributes to the fact that the other seventy men were much older than he was. Pregoud to Dr. Ryerson's establishment of inspectorships there were township superintendents who supervised public education in the province.

Thirty-six years after, his promotion as inspector in 1871, Mr. Burrows retired, and since that time he and his wife have been living quietly in their native city.

Four of their seven children are still living. Alfred, the only one located in Toronto, is head of the geological staff of the provincial bureau of mines, George is a medical practitioner in Maribank, Ontario; Arthur is in Vancouver, and their only surviving daughter, now Mrs. W. Sexsmith is also in Vancouver. The two last named, owing to the distance, were not at their parents' home for this anniversary, but both sent congratulations and best wishes to the worthy couple.

Pupils Pay Him Honor

Mr. Burrows regrets that most of his former pupils are scattered over the globe, but he always took an interest in everyone who came under his choice, and has kept track of as many as he possibly could. On Friday (today) at 4 p.m. at the house on Chelsea Street to offer respects to their old master.

The anniversary was very quiet, anything in the nature of a party or reception being deemed superfluous. "We have had our silver, golden and diamond weddings, what more are there?" asked Mr. Burrows.

He still takes an active interest in the affairs of the country. Present day conditions in general are much different from those of his youth, but he is optimistic and finds little fault with anything.

Douglas' Egyptian Liniment is remarkable in its quick, effective action. It relieves instantly burns, sprains, toothache and neuralgia. Invaluable for sore throat, croup and quinsy.

PRINCE EDWARD MAN REPRESENTS ONTARIO AT WATERWAY CONVENTION

At the recent convention of the Great Lakes Harbor Association, Mr. Newman also represented this province. The Milwaukee Journal of August 8th, reports his address to the convention:—

"Mr. Newman, president of the Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce of Ontario and president of the Ontario hydro-electric commission, gave a splendid address on Canadian views on the waterway. He asserted it to be of the greatest importance to Canada and the 20 middle western states of the United States.

"With the present unemployment situation in both countries," he said, "there is no field as practical and profitable for employing surplus labor as for both governments to undertake certain parts of the waterway project at once, while negotiations for other parts are under way.

"Both political parties in Canada are pledged by their leaders to the immediate development of the St. Lawrence waterway. Canada never would have built the new Welland canal if it had not expected the deep waterway to be completed to the ocean. Canada's interest in the waterway and the Dominion over ownership of the water power to be developed were settled when the improvement of the beauharnois section was turned over to a Quebec private company.

"U. S. Should Pay"

"The only question to be settled now is the division between the United States and Canada of the cost, of improving the international section. Unofficially it has been said that in view of the expenditure of $302,000,000 by Canada on the waterway with the completion of the new Welland canal, compared with $43,-000,000 by the United States, the latter country ought, in fairness, be expected to develop the international section. An offer to do this must come from the United States, as it cannot be suggested by Canada. Canada will accept any reasonable proposal for the development of any part of the waterway.

"By the International Treaty of 1910, all canals and waterways along the boundary between the United States and Canada must be free to the ocean commerce of both countries for ever. The fourth St. Mary's canal, which will be opened to traffic by Canada September 1st, is as free to American as Canadian ships."

At the business meeting, Mr. Newman was appointed vice-president of the Association for the coming year.

WEDDING BELLS

CLARK — WINTERS.

On Thursday, July 17th, at 2 p.m., the home of Mrs. W. J. Winters, Viscount, Sask., was the scene of a pretty wedding, when her second daughter, Evelyn, became the bride of Mr. Lionel H. G. Clark, of Regina. To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Miss Wilma Winters, the bride was escorted to a beautifully decorated arch by her great-uncle, Mr. Gilmour Winters, of Regina. She was preceded by her two nieces, the Misses Eileen and Iona Hamilton, daintily gowned in pale green and pink crepe-de-chine, who carried baskets of roses. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. W. Downer, of Saskatoon.

The bride's dress was a charming model of white georgette and silk lace, while she wore an attractive corsage of orange blossoms and pearls and carried a bouquet of roses and fern. The register was signed by Mrs. G. O. Wood, of Boston, Mass., sister of the groom, and Miss W. K. Winters. Following the ceremony the guests partook of a daintily prepared luncheon. The table, centred with the bride's cake, was decorated in pink and white. The toast to the bride, proposed by Mr. J. S. Hamilton, was ably responded to by the groom.

The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome wrist watch; to the pianist, a silver mounted compact. The bride's gift to the groom was an onyx ring with raised gold University crest, and to the flower girls, signet rings.

In the evening Mr. and Mrs. Clark left by motor on an extended tour to the Coast, and will return to their home in Regina where the groom is a member of the staff of Collegiate staff.

The bride travelled in a dress of zinnia georgette, a sand coat and hat, with shoes and purse to match.

The happy couple were the recipients of many lovely gifts.

Address and Presentation

On Friday evening, August 8th, about ninety friends and neighbours met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Milligan, to spend a social evening before their departure to their new home in Newburgh. During the evening, Rev. D. A. Johnson read the following address, and Mrs. James Dougal made the presentation of a silver tea service, a silver platter, together with a sum of money.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Milligan, Muriel and Eleanor:—

We are met here tonight to express our sorrow at your approaching departure from our neighborhood, and our appreciation of your life-long service in the community and the church. You have been good neighbors, ready to lend your aid in case of need and to cheer and comfort us in our hours of sickness or misfortune. You have all been willing workers in the church, regularly attending its services and giving liberally your time, your talents and your money, that the work of our Master may be established and extended. Our good wishes follow you to your new home. While we feel our great loss by your removal, we are glad that the hard work you have done on the farm has earned you the privilege of taking life easier for the future, and we trust you have many happy and useful years ahead of you.

Please accept this silver tea service and platter as a small token of the esteem and love of your Centreville friends.

Signed by,

CENTREVILLE FRIENDS.

In reply, Mr. Milligan, on behalf of his family, thanked their many friends for the beautiful gifts presented, and wishing them an enjoyable evening, extending an invitation to one and all to their new home.

Lunch was served and all joined in a pleasant evening of entertainment.

SHE DID

When Lou awoke she realized it was a "special day." Then it dawned on her. It was her sister's wedding anniversary! A glimpse of her telephone reminded her that her sister was a great Long Distance user. She'd appreciate being congratulated by telephone. Lou was right. 34

Jack: Why did you break with Alice? I thought you were crazy about her?

Jim: "I am, but I decided I couldn't stand it so live with her folks.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Mr. Crowe was a devout church-goer. The young minister of his church was also devout, but easily embarrassed. Imagine the consternation of Mr. Crowe and the delight of the congregation when the young devine solemnly said at a prayer meeting: "And now, will Brother Pray please crow for us?"

burdened with rheumatic pains. Four bottles of Sargon drove every pain out of my body, my entire system has been rebuilt and I've gained 5 pounds in weight.

"Sargon Pills relieved me of constipation and stimulated my liver to normal action without nausea or upsetting." — William O'Neil, 146 Maria Street, Toronto, retired business man.

Sargon may be obtained in Napanee, at Hooper's Drug Store, who has been awarded the exclusive Sargon agency for this town.

SILLSVILLE-CONWAY W.M.S.

The Sillsville and Conway W. M. S. met at the home of Mrs. Harold Keogh on Thursday p.m. last, with a good attendance. Opening hymn No. 20. Roll call answered to by passages from the Scriptures. Minutes read and approved. Stewardship by Miss VanDyke. Temperance by Mrs. Merritt. "How the Work is Progressing in Japan," by Mrs. G. Phipps. Hymn 22. Reading by Miss Betty Haight, entitled "Wisdom" by Edgar a Guest. Duet by Mrs. W. Haight and Miss Betty Haight, "Jesus, Tender Shepherd, hear me."

This being Young People's meeting, there was quite a number present. We were very pleased to have our new pastor, Rev. Saunders and Mrs. Saunders with us at this meeting.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction, after which the young people served a dainty lunch.

OAK LAKE SUMMER SCHOOL

(By Rev. R. M. Patterson)

Oak Lake, near Shirley, and July 21st to 26th, 1930, will long be remembered by some ninety-five young people, who assembled there for one week of worship, study, fellowship and fun. The weather was all that could be desired and the location is beyond expression in its loveliness, both of beauty and of quiet restfulness along with its inspiration, for here the stately oaks, as well as the peaceful lake echoed and re-echoed with shouts of joy and laughter, or joined in the responses of the noble ideals of the message and purpose of the Saviour of the world. Here was reproduced something of the geographical setting of those scenes about Galilee and also there was vividly portrayed those early days of the church when the disciples filled with a new vigour and spiritual power could say "Silver and gold have we none, but such as we have give we unto Thee. In the name of Jesus Christ rise up and walk."

From nine o'clock in the morning until ten thirty we joined in worship and study, trying to discover the secret of this early church power, and from ten-forty to eleven-thirty we were led by K. Mackara (Mike for short) a native of Japan and a student of Japanese conditions, both social and religious.

This was followed by an hour of study in methods of work and Young People's problems, led by Miss Netanis Semmens, Miss Pearl Fletcher, Revs. H. B. Neal and Alfred Poulter, which brought us to 12.30 and dinner.

After an hour's rest and quiet, a program of sports and recreation, both on land and water was carried out under the direction of Rev. D. M. Stinton and his committee.

After supper, wood being gathered for a daily camp-fire, everyone, including visitors and friends, gathered about the camp fire and were led in lively songs and rounds by our President, Rev. R. H. Rickard, of Oakwood. Thus, from song to song gradually changing from mere fun and sport to those melodies of heart and soul we were led to meditate on steps in the Christian life until as a result of the challenge on Friday night, and a consecration and communion on Sunday morning, we realized some thing of the spirit of Christ, when He visited His home town of Nazareth, where in the synagogue He read "The spirit of the Lord is upon Me, because He hath annointed me to preach the gospel to the poor. He hath sent me to heal the broken-hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering the sight of the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord."

With these thoughts and purposes in our hearts, we separated on Sunday and Monday to go back to our tasks and daily responsibilities, there to meditate upon this week of inspiration and helpfulness and to dream of another week in July, while we, in the meantime, hold high the torch of life, love and opportunity, that if possible we and others may share in that greater, nobler and more inspiring school of 1931.

The officers for 1930-31 are as follows:—

Hon. President—Rev. A. J. Wilson, Napanee.

President — Rev. W. J. H. Smyth, Wellington.

Vice-President — Rev. J. Gladstone, Mc. Kee, Little Britain.

Secretary —1 Rev. J. Verner McNeily, Keene.

Musical Director — Rev. R. Rickard, Oakwood.

Business Manager and Registrar — Rev. R. M. Patterson, Janetville.

Guard Baby's Health

The summer months are the most dangerous to children. The complaints of that season, which are cholera infantum, colic, diarrhoea and dysentery, come on so quickly that often a little one is beyond aid before the mother realizes he is ill. The mother must be on her guard to prevent these troubles or if they do come on suddenly to banish them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during hot weather as Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the stomach and bowels and are absolutely safe. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ontario. 34eng

THE WORRY-SAVER

Mother spent a few weeks every summer visiting relatives. The family managed to "get along" somehow, but it wasn't easy. Mother started to telephone home every so often to ask about things and to offer suggestions. It certainly helped matters and relieved Dad's mind of a lot of worry! 34

Smith was standing before the judge for having injured his wife.

Judge: "You maintain that you threw your wife out of the second story through forgetfulness?

Smith: "Yes, we used to live on the ground floor and I clean forgot that we had moved.—Lustige Kolner Zeitung (Cologne)

People "All Nerves" In The Summer

What to Do if You Find Yourself in This Condition

The sort of thing that specialists call nervous debility is the run-down condition caused by over-work and household worries. The sufferers find themselves tired, low-spirited and unable to keep their mind on anything. Any sudden noise startles and sets the heart palpitating violently. They cannot sleep well at night; their hands tremble and legs seem unable to support them. Such a condition is indeed pitiable.

Doctoring the nerves with sedatives is a terrible mistake. The real nerve tonic is a supply of good red blood. Therefore the treatment for nervousness and run-down health is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which promptly build up and enrich the blood. The revived appetite, the strengthened nerves, improved spirits and new energy which come after a course of these pills will delight every sufferer.

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. 34eng

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Cecil Nelson, who departed this life August 17th, 1929.

Some may think we have forgotten,
When at times they see us smile;
But they little know for their comfort
That the smile hides all the while.
We miss him in the home, we miss him,
As it deeply another year.
In our lonely thought of thinking,
Thoughts of him are always dear.

Sadly missed by Father, Mother, Brothers and Sister. 34ap

VARTY LAKE GIRLS' CAMP CLOSED JULY 19

A new group of campers have lately returned from Varty Lake to report the best of good times at the County United Church Girls' Camp.

Below are selections from their daily camp paper, which was one of the features of the evening programme. The following editorial was the leading article of the first edition of "Notable News."

"The Spirit of the Cedars Speaks From The Top of the Tall Hemlock"

A year in the life of a great tree is but a short span of time. It adds but a thin ring to the trunk's circumference, and but a few inches to its spreading branches.

The seasons come and go—summer's heat and winter's frost—and there the monarch stands in all his majesty apparently unchanged to human eyes.

The monarchy of cedar grove is the is the great hemlock that stands in the midst thereof, from the top of which I, the Spirit of the Cedars, take my stand and sound forth my annual welcome to the girls of Varty Lake Girls' Camp. I have watched carefully over the grove during your absence, and have not permitted any evil thing to befall it. I have brought again the warm, sunny days and the calm, peaceful nights, and reproduced the music of the waves, whose songs were hushed during the long cold months of winter. I have kept everything in preparation for your coming, and have longingly awaited the day when again your youthful songs and rippling laughter would cheer the silent heart of the old hemlock.

I regret that you have not returned in larger numbers; for there's room for many more, and I have heard whisperings on the breezes that pass this way of girls who would gladly come but the gods were not propitious.

However, I notice many faces that have been here before and hear many voices that have made these avenues ring with their gladsome shouts upon other occasions. It rejoices the heart of the old hemlock to hear your voices and see your faces again.

Oft, in the stilly hours of last night, when slumber's chain had bound all good sleepers, and those whose consciences were free from guilt, I heard a few familiar voices, one saying, 'There's a bear out there!" another replying: "No, it's only a dog."

To those who have not been here before let me say you are as welcome as the gentle breezes that play hide and seek among our branches. We all bow our heads to you and are pleased to make your acquaintance. Just make yourselves at home. Everything here is yours to enjoy, and all the cedars unite to make you happy and glad. And when you go from here at the end of your ten days' stay, may you all be able to vote that this was the most enjoyable holiday you ever had.

The Spirit of the Cedars is pleased to listen in at your camp fire programme, and to give you inspiration in the preparation of your skits and stunts. If ever any of you are in need of help, just go down to the shore where the wavelets are lapping on the stones, and sit in the quiet shades of our over-hanging boughs, and soon your minds and hearts will be stirred with a great inspiration.

And now I, the Spirit of the Cedars, speaking from the withered and broken top of the Old Hemlock that stands in the midst of the grove, must bring my address of welcome to a close, which I do in these words:

Welcome, Girls, to Varty Lake.
And to this Cedar Grove;
May each her contribution make,
Helping Camp Spirit to create,
While among these trees you rove.

Editorial Efforts

And later in the week, another editorial appeared on our front pages:—

To wake at morn and hear a little flash of the lake—wind in the trees—
To watch at dawn the earliest sunbeam rise.
The mist crowned, towering, peaks
And glide down to the lake—
Oh! That is life!

Real life is what we are enjoying now in God's great outdoors, with its blue canopy and white clouds, cool cedars, sparkling blue waters and a carpet of cedar leaves. The beauty and loveliness of it all fills our souls with a peacefulness which makes an excellent background for Bible study and missionary talks.

We learn how missionaries become missionaries, and the struggles and trials which they have in the foreign fields; but we also learn how worthwhile their struggles are.

After our studies, and pleasant pastimes,
Under the stars, the beckoning stars.

When the end of the day has come,
You know the content of a dreamless sleep.

And the thought of a day well done.

Wednesday, July 16th, was the date of the annual sports day. For a week's best to allow you to read the account of the day as it appeared in "Notable News" that evening.

"National Athletic Meet"

The 1930 presentation of the British Empire Games began on July 16th, on a beautiful plateau situated hundreds of feet above the cedar grove and deep lake waters. For months the competitors had anticipated the contest with the keenest interest. On the morning of the great day two officials, the Camp Director and the Camp Proctor, crawled out to the centre of the lake in stingy atmospheric conditions, at 5:00 a.m. Much to their relief, the moon disappeared, the stars twinkled themselves out, and Old King Sol finished the inside his appearance in orthodox fashion.

During the forenoon, some contestants indulged in rubber-stretching "try-outs"—much to their trainers' disgust. So from then until 2:30, not a soul appeared on the track. Promptly at 3:00 p.m. the Lord High Whistler, blew his fine whistle, and thousands of spectators gave vent to a mighty cheer as the contestants trotted out of the dressing tent. They were in splendid condition, and their trainers were justly proud of them.

Four-no hours and a half, those sun-tanned athletes pranced and raced over the field of fair play. All the races were keenly contested—and the usual number of dark horses appeared. Some betting enthusiasts were cleaned out of their entire savings, the loss totalled at least a million, and nobody knows who got the money. We didn't.

During the performance, the Tigers, under the able leadership of Helen Shetler, challenged Helen Babcock's Imps. An interesting battle ensued—there was heavy slugging on each side, the players were inspired by resounding applause, and if they did their mightiest. One or two unavoidable errors occurred, but the quality of the playing was very high. Score 16-4.

A score or more of Mermaids disported themselves in the briny deep, and guided headstrong sailboats over the course. We saw them dive, held our breath while they floated under the waters and cheered again as they reappeared some minutes later.

Altogether we had a gorgeous day. Here's wishing the best of luck to the British Empire Games of 1931!

On the basis of 5 points for each first place won: 3 points for each second and 2 for each third. The winners of highest honours on the total of all sorts were:—

First — Marion Cooke.
Second — Lois Stalker.
Third — Helen Shetler.

In the poets' corner we find various sentiments, both solemn and humorous. Here are a few of the pen's wanderings:—

"A Wedding in Fairyland"

On the day Queen Mab was married,
All the bluebells loudly pealed;
And the winds, their music carried,
Over village, moor and field.

Rushes whispered, starlings chattered,
"Here's the bride! She does look sweet!"
While the cherry blossoms scattered
White confetti at her feet.

Marigolds gave all the money
For the dowry of their queen,
And the bees supplied the honey
For the wedding feast at e'en.

Dew-filled kingcups gleamed with splendour
Healths were drunk, old vows were kept,
And the willows, who were tenderhearted,
Like Old Ladies, wept.

All the guests declared the wedding
One which they would ever forget—
For descriptions, see the heading
In the Fairyland Gazette.

"Midnight Meditation Overheard"

Three girls in a double bed—
Roll over, roll over.
Each one to the other said:
Roll over, roll over.
Turn out the lamp, pull off your sock,
Get into bed please don't talk;
Miss Rockwell will hear, and in she'll stalk.
Roll over, roll over.

I lay awake during all last night—
Roll over, roll over—
The thunder thundered with all its might,
Roll over, roll over.
The bed was hard, though 'twas made of hay,
The whistle blew at break of day.
I'm sleepy now, that's why I say:
Roll over, roll over!

My pencil is lowered, the sum was so hot—
Roll over, roll over.
I smudge; go fishing, the boats were hired;
I fell in the lake and my feet got mired
I hiked ten miles, I'm just dead tired.
Roll over, roll over.

I walked into a nest of bumble bees—
Roll over, roll over.
My hat disappeared in a fitful breeze.
Roll over, roll over.
I hurt my ankle and how it pains!
Mosquitoes are buzzing as loud as trains.
Roll over, roll over.

I'll be scared blue and white if it rains.
Roll over, roll over.
What wouldn't I give to be back at home?
Roll over, roll over.
I see a spider! My pillow's gone!
Roll over, roll over.

(The Poet's advice)—
Well, even if all things are true,
Pull in your chin, don't feel so blue
You all like camp, you know you do;
So, Roll over, roll over.

Good-Night

Sleep sweetly in this quiet place,
Oh thou, whoe'er thou art,
And let no mournful yesterdays
Disturb thy peaceful heart;
Nor let tomorrow scare thy rest,
With dreams of coming ill;
Thy Maker is thy changeless Friend,
His love surrounds thee still.

Forget thyself and all thy cares,
Put out each glowing light—
Angels are watching overhead—
Sleep sweetly. Good Night.

Good-Night!

Farewell

Farewell, farewell to Varty Lake Camp.
Farewell, farewell to many a tramp;
Farewell to the whistle by which we wake;
Farewell to our dips in a sparkling lake.

We've all been happy and all been gay,
And sadly regret the parting day,
But we'll take with us dear memories
And a thought of our camp, which never tarnish.
We'll always remember our good times together
And all our nice meals, we're sure to remember.
Let's all join together in wishing our leader
The best of success during the year.
Also to our dear Camp Mother, say
We wish her many a happy day.
Farewell, farewell to our Varty Lake
As we all our departure soon will take.
Farewell to the pleasantest holiday
Farewell till we came again some day.

THE CARETAKER

I am burdened with Thanson's canary.
I'm minding the kitten of Hecta,
And the bull pup that Robinson's chary
Of sending away to the vets;
They hasten away to the sea.
Since I have to go on the duty of feeding
The chickens in front of the door.

Chained firmly to town by my labours,
I'm easy and obvious prey
For all of my numerous neighbours
Who know I'm not going away;
Intent upon things to smoothe them.
They hasten away to the sea.
First dumping (I cannot refuse them)
Their livestock on me.

They will bring me a gift to requite me

"No, dear," was the irritating sweet answer, "not always."

COLONEL KILLED BY MAN-EATING TIGER

Details of a thrilling battle between an Indian Army officer and a tiger, in which the former was so terribly mauled that he died after three days of agony, were received in London recently.

The tiger's victim was Col. W. H. Hastings, D.S.O., former Acting-Commander of the 10th Jubbulpore (Central Provinces) Infantry Brigade, and his death occurred at Raipur, 180 miles from Jubbulpore, on May 28th.

As he lay dying he gave an account of the struggle to a friend, who gives the story facts as follows:—

"Col. Hastings had been out shooting about 20 miles from Nagpur. On May 23 he met a tiger in a ravine and fired at it, wounding it. After breakfasting he tracked it for nearly two miles, having only a servant with him.

"He came to a rocky hill and willingly directed him to the cave. As he walked towards it the tiger charged, roaring and snarling.

Leg Broken

"Col. Hastings's two shots at four yards range missed, and he fought with the butt end of his rifle, but the beast got him, biting him on the ankle and below the knee and breaking his leg.

"The tiger then sat a few yards away and once approached, but the Colonel's servant was standing by and probably kept it off by his presence. The servant helped him away to a tree, from where he could fire shots, but he did not register a hit.

"The tiger, after growling and hitting stones, went back into its cave.

Good-Night

"Hastings made a makeshift stretcher and carried the Colonel two miles to the jungle track. No one could drive his car, however, and he had to wait, with no treatment, until the following day.

"Infection had then set in, and although everything possible was done, it was of no avail, and he died 72 hours after his struggle with the animal.

RAW FOOD FOR GOOD HEALTH SAYS MEDICO

"If you want to enjoy really good health, you must eat food that has not been cooked." This was the advice given by Sir Bruce-Porter, in an address recently. "There is only one vegetable that you can cook without destroying the vitamins," said Sir Bruce, "and that is cabbage."

"Teach the children to spend their pennies on apples rather than sweets, but don't tell them to eat apples because they are good for them. Make it a question as to whether father has butter or margarine to give him energy and let the child have the butter.

"The mode of dressing has a lot to do with health, and in this respect women are a lot more sensible than men. I hope they will not allow modern designers in Paris to get them to revert to those long things trailing in the dirt."

NOTICE

TO OWNERS AND OPERATORS OF MOTOR VEHICLES

FINANCIAL RESPONSIBILITY LAW

A New Measure for Safety on the Highways in effect SEPTEMBER 1st, 1930

THE amendment to The Highway Traffic Act, known as the "Financial Responsibility Law," will come into effect on September 1.

PURPOSE of the LAW

The purpose of the Financial Responsibility Law is to further encourage safe driving of motor vehicles, in the interest of the public as well as of owners and drivers.

WHAT the LAW will ACCOMPLISH

No motorist is affected by this Law until he brings himself within its provisions. It will not impose any obligation upon those who drive safely and obey The Highway Traffic Act, and who, in case of accident, pay judgments rendered against them for injury done to persons or property.

HOW the LAW will OPERATE

Upon conviction of an operator of a motor vehicle for any one of the offences named below, his driver's license and all motor vehicle permits issued to him will be suspended until such operator or owner gives proof of his ability to compensate financially those whom he may endanger in the future.

The OFFENCES

The following are the offences named:

(a) reckless driving, if any injury to person or property occurs in connection therewith,

(b) racing on the highways, which is prohibited by The Highway Traffic Act,

(c) exceeding the speed limit, if any injury to any person or property occurs in connection therewith,

(d) failing to remain at or return to the scene of an accident and to furnish the names and addresses of driver and owner and other information to render all possible assistance, if directly or indirectly a party to the accident,

(e) driving a motor vehicle on a highway without holding a driver's license,

(f) any criminal offence involving the use of a motor vehicle, including driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated,

(g) any offence against public safety on highways as may be designated by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council.

NON-PAYMENT of JUDGMENTS

If the holder of a driver's license or owner's permit fails to satisfy a judgment rendered against him for damages on account of injury or death of, any person, or on account of damage to property to the extent of $100, occasioned by a motor vehicle, within 15 days from the date of judgment, such license or permit shall be suspended until such judgment is satisfied to the extent of at least $5,000 for injury or death of, any one person and, subject to that limit, for any person so injured or killed to the extent of at least $10,000 for injury to, or death of, two or more persons in any one accident, and to the extent of at least $1,000 for damage to property of any person resulting from any one accident, and until such person gives proof of financial responsibility in case of future accident.

OFFENCES OUTSIDE ONTARIO
By Drivers Licensed in this Province

For similar offences committed in other Provinces or States of the United States and reported to the Registrar of Motor Vehicles of Ontario under reciprocal arrangements, the Minister of Highways shall suspend the driver's license and owner's permit until that driver or owner has given proof of financial responsibility in the same manner as if the offence had been committed in Ontario.

PROOF of FINANCIAL RESPONSIBILITY
Amounts and How to Give

Proof of financial responsibility shall be given in the following amounts by every driver and in the case of an owner in the same amounts for each motor vehicle registered in his name—

(a) at least $5,000 for injury to, or death of, any one person and, subject to that limit for each person so injured or killed, at least $10,000 for injury or death of two or more persons in any one accident.

(b) At least $1,000 for damage to property of others resulting from any one accident.

Proof of financial responsibility may be given in any one of the following forms:

(a) The written certificate filed with the Registrar of Motor Vehicles of any authorized insurer that it has issued to the person named a motor vehicle liability policy or policies which at the date of the certificate is in full force and effect.

(b) The bond of a guarantee insurance or surety company licensed in Ontario, or a bond with personal sureties approved as adequate.

(c) The certificate of the Treasurer of the Province that the person named has deposited with him a sum of money or securities for money approved by him to the amount or value of $11,000 for each motor vehicle registered in the name of such person.

PUBLIC NOW PROTECTED by INCONTESTABLE INSURANCE

In the event of damage being done by the owner or driver of a motor vehicle to another person or to property of another person, and such owner or driver holds an insurance policy to pay the legal liability of the insured for such damage, and if through misrepresentation upon the application for such policy or in the event of a breach by the insured of any term, provision or condition of the policy which would relieve the insurer from liability, the insurance company must nevertheless under the Safety Responsibility Law, pay the damage to the person injured up to the limits named above, but in such case the insurance company has a provision in their policy may have the right to recover from the person insured the amount or amounts so paid in liquidation of the damages for the injury he has done to the persons or property of others, including interest and costs.

REPORTING of ACCIDENTS

Every person in charge of a motor vehicle who is directly or indirectly involved in an accident, if the apparent property damage exceeds or is damage apparently exceeding $50, shall report such accident forthwith to the nearest provincial or municipal police officer and shall furnish such information or written statement concerning the accident as may be required by the officer or by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.

MUSIC LOVERS SHOULD FIGHT CANNED MUSIC

The music lover and not the musician should lead the fight against canned musical music, Joseph N. Weber told the delegates to the 35th annual convention of the American Federation of Musicians recently. His statement was made after Judge William Day had advocated the boycotting of "canned music."

Mr. Weber said that every lover of music should fight against the art of music being debased. "Through the demands of the people of this continent this question will be settled, maybe not this year or next, but certainly within a short time. It is a cultural fight and must be won in the name of culture and not through selfish interest because a few musicians lost jobs," he continued. He said they should protect machines which are driven silently to give a few people money at the expense of many which would make a nation of listeners instead of a nation of music producers.

One of the most effective vermifuges on the market is Miller's Worm Powders. They will not only clear the stomach and bowels of worms, but will prove a very serviceable medicine for children in regulating the infantile system and maintaining it in a healthy condition. There is nothing in their composition that will injure the most delicate stomach when directions are followed, and they can be given to children in the full assurance that they will utterly destroy all worms.

IS BABY TEETHING?

Teething time is a time of worry to most mothers. The baby is nervous; fretful; feverish. His little gums are sore and red. Diarrhoea or constipation colic and sometimes convulsions set in — neither baby nor mother can sleep.

These troubles can be quickly banished, however, during this period. Baby's Own Tablets, concerning which Mrs. Louis Gerish, Tweedsmuir, Ontario, says:— "I have used the Tablets for all my babies while teething and have found that they relieve them."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all druggists or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ontario.

FARMER HAS GRIM FIGHT WITH BEAST

Springbok, Cape of Good Hope —(C.P.)—A fight to the death between a man and a leopard is described by farmers coming here from Nigramoep, about 50 miles away.

A farmer named van Zyl, accompanied by three colored men and ten dogs, set out on an expedition to find a mule which had strayed. They had just arrived at a defile between two rocks when suddenly a huge leopard emerged and sprang at vanZyl. The attack was so swift and unexpected that the colored men and the dogs took flight immediately.

Van Zyl fired one shot, but the bullet only grazed the leopard and infuriated it the more. The man failed to keep his body by dodging around the rock; the leopard was too quick for him. Van Zyl made desperate attempts to reload his gun, at the same time fighting off the leopard with terrific blows from the butt.

Then it was a hand to hand struggle in which the man's hand and leg were torn open, and he almost fainted from loss of blood. In a moment of good luck he was able to slip another cartridge into the gun, and his fumbling fingers found out the pain left me and I fired at close quarters, entered the leopard's mouth and shattered its head.

Van Zyl sank to the ground in an exhausted condition. He was practically unconscious when he was later discovered by an old colored man. Carried to the hospital, his wounds were treated and he is reported to be progressing favorably.

CANADIAN FOREIGN TRADE SHRINKING

Preliminary figures on Canadian trade for the first three months of the fiscal year, 1930, April, May and June, show a heavy shrinkage in trade values as compared with the same period in 1929. In addition, the unfavorable balance of trade for these three months reached the record total for the past two—ber of years of $52,264,603.

This is explained by a decline in wheat exports of approximately $36,000,000 and wheat flour of another $5,000,000 while all along the line in the export trade either quantities or values fell off. Fish, furs, meats, cheese, sheep and lambs, wood pulp, newsprint, automobiles and parts, and unmanufactured sugar all showed declines.

The greatest part of the heavy decline in the trade figures is explained by the fall in wheat exports, which compared with export for the same month last year, the figures show a decline of 36 million bushels from 117 million to nearly 81 million.

BATH WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The August meeting of Bath Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. D. Sheffer, with an attendance of nineteen. The roll call was replied to "How to make a Christmas Gift." Two new members handed in application.

We regret to hear of the loss of one of our members, but truly wish her all kinds of happiness in her new home.

Business arising from the minutes was dealt with: Only one tender for Elm Beach School was submitted and the members felt they could not afford the amount, but if the trustees want the walk, they are willing to pay half. Money was sent Mr. Runions, to help defray expenses of the coaching classes.

Rev. Mr. Swayne was called on and gave us a very interesting talk on "the cause and cure for divorce."

Splendid thoughts were given, especially to parents and their duty in bringing up their children. The spiritual as well as the moral side of their nature should be properly developed, and it can only be done by saying "Come."

Mrs. Stevenson gave a splendid series of current events.

Mrs. A Ruttan gave a very interesting paper on "An Ideal Home."

Our district president was present and gave us a very interesting and timely talk on Institute work and co-operation in the branch, district and province. She stressed the great need of pasteurizing the milk.

A vote of thanks was then tendered to our speakers in very favorable words.

A candy contest was held; judging by balm, Mrs. B. Hamilton's candy proved to be the favourite, and she was presented with a dainty dish.

The hostess then served lunch and played a couple of delightful selections of music and after a very social half hour the meeting adjourned.

The September meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. H. Collins. A real good programme is in preparation and everybody is welcome. At the close of the August meeting it was decided to hold a dance and frolic in Bath, on August 25th. Don't forget the date.

Persian Balm — Invaluable to the whole family. To the child a soothing, healing balm. And to the father, a splendid hair dressing and cooling shaving lotion. Persian Balm tones and refreshes the skin. Makes hands delightfully soft and white. Indispensable to dainty women. AGONY OF NEURITIS

A Story of Intense Suffering And Relief

"Do I recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills? Yes! You may believe it," said Mr. John H. Jamieson, of Wallaceburg, Ontario.

"For five years I suffered day and night from neuritis. The agony was terrible. I lost control of my arm and shoulder and my hand became shrivelled. Nothing helped me till I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Even then the improvement was slow and I took ten boxes before I was on the way to recovery. After that, though, relief was rapid. My hand gradually came out; the pain left me and I could sleep in peace. That was two years ago and I have not had a twinge of the trouble since."

Sufferers from neuritis, neuralgia or rheumatism should try this common-sense method of banishing these troubles by enriching the blood and strengthening the nerves with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville ,Ont.

CRIPPLED CHILDREN'S WORK

Report By The Napanee Rotary Club For Year Ending July 1, 1930.

At the regular weekly luncheon of the Napanee Rotary Club on July 15, the retiring President, Mark P. Graham, gave a report on the Work of the Crippled Children's Work, carried out through the past year. As the public, to a large extent, furnish the funds for carrying on this work, it was decided to place a statement in the Press so that the citizens of the County of Lennox and Addington might have some idea as to the work that is being done and how their money is being spent.

The Rotary Club is only the medium through which this work is done, the members of the Club who take the credit to themselves and their only wish is to give credit to the people who make this most worthy work possible.

During the past year, twenty three children, young men and young women have received attention. In all eighteen cases have been most successful, one partly successful, two still doubtful as to final results and two with no results. A number of cases were of a minor character but without the attention they have had, the children would have been rendered a development and been handicapped for life.

Following is a statement of each case visited under a number giving the Township from which the child came, the amount spent on each case and results.

No. 1. — From Richmond Township. Crippled feet; cost $245.18. Most satisfactory results. Can scarcely tell that the child was ever crippled.

No. 2. — From South Fredericksburgh. Crippled in limbs and feet; cost $210.05. Splendid results, boy now working.

No. 3. — From Adolphustown. Defective eyesight. Glasses used; tonsils, adenoids; cost $36.25. Satisfactory results.

No. 4. — From North Fredericksburgh. Eye trouble; cost $21.00. Complete recovery.

Nos. 5 and 6. — From Napanee. Tonsils and Adenoids. Two small children, one day in hospital; cost $3.50. Satisfactory results.

No. 7. — From Camden. Mental trouble; cost $5.00. No results.

No. 8. — From Napanee. Re-fitting and repairing artificial limb. Satisfactory results; cost $48.80.

No. 9. — From Camden. No use of arms nor legs. In hospital thirteen months. Slight improvement but results not satisfactory to date; cost $912.30.

No. 10. — From North Fredericksburgh. Epileptic. No results; cost $65.00.

No. 11. — From Richmond. Diseased bone in foot. In hospital for six months; satisfactory results and will be completed in a short time; cost $322.85.

No. 12. — From Napanee. Defective eyes, diseased tonsils adenoids. Satisfactory results; cost. $14.75.

No. 13. — From Napanee. Appendicitis. Complete recovery; cost $33.03.

No. 14. — From Richmond. Diseased legs and feet deformed. Many other complications. Five operations, not completed. Will be completed in about two weeks, with most satisfactory results. Cost $481.70.

No. 15. — From Ernestown. Both legs and feet deformed. Could not walk. Now able to walk without aid and has been able to take a position. Cost $297.20.

No. 16. — From Richmond. Deformed spine. Fitted with a proper back support brace; cost $94.90.

No. 17. — From Napanee. Crippled foot. Will be satisfactorily completed within the next two weeks; cost $63.10.

No. 18. — From Napanee. Tonsils and Adenoids. Satisfactory results; cost: $15.75.

No. 19. — From Napanee. Tonsils and Adenoids. Satisfactory results; cost $3.50.

No. 20. — From Napanee. Pneumonia. Complete recovery; cost $33.75.

No. 21. — From Napanee. Epileptic. Possible future results; cost $42.25.

No. 22 — From Napanee. Crippled foot. Will be practically perfect when completed; cost $34.50.

No. 23. — From Ernestown. Spinal trouble and crippled foot. Not completed. Results doubtful.

In addition to these, disbursements of a donation of $104.25 was made to the Santa Claus Fund, $5.00 for toys, for child in Hospital at Christmas time. Donation to institute family $50.00, and incidental expenditures of $40.36, making a total expenditure for the year, of $2253.86.

The results is very much indebted to Hospitals and Doctors. The Hospitals make a special rate for Rotary Club patients and in many cases Doctors have given their services without any charge. In extra difficult cases The Surgical Institute has low charge for their services.

There are four cases still in hand to be completed which will be finished within the next thirty days. The Club has about $500.88 left in this fund and when these cases are finished there will be very little money left to carry on this necessary work.

In making a survey of the different cases, it will be noted that the patients come from many parts of the County. This work is carried on for all children throughout the County, where the parents are unable to bear the expense themselves.

To carry on this work it is necessary that immediate steps be taken to raise funds. Arrangements are now completed for a drawing for an automobile. Tickets are on sale by all members of the Club and at outside points. These tickets are sold at 50 cents, three for $1.00, or seven for $2.00 They entitle the holder to an interest in the drawing for the automobile and also admits the holder to the Annual Hallowe'n Frolic which will be held at the Armories on the evening of October 31st.

In view of the splendid work that has been done and the necessity of carrying it on, the Rotary Club feel confident that the wholehearted support of all the people of the County. A little from each one will enable us to continue this work and from the present outlook it would appear that there will be an urgent call for assistance during the coming year.

NEVER ALONE

Mary's family doesn't like the idea of her working, and in a letter to her she tells of her husband, "He has been very kind and considerate of me every day and never leaves me alone. I am very much pleased with my husband. I am very much pleased with my husband. I am very much pleased with my husband. I am very much pleased with my husband. Really, Timon Gibbs,

FASCINATING LINKS IN CANADA'S HISTORY

"One flag, one fleet, one throne." Is a sentence with meaning in it for true Canadians. The flag in itself is meaningless, but what is stands for is deep and interpreted only by a man true to his country. The flag meant a great deal to the men in the trenches in the Great War and the Dominion Archives has in cases flags which would recall various experiences to the veterans of 1914-18.

Worn and stained is one British flag which is a cherished possession of the Archives. On it is this caption: "This flag was made by the citizens of Vincennes to welcome the Canadians." It was the first British flag put up and was hung in the city hall with the French flags.It was used at the reception of H. R. H. The Prince of Wales, General's Currie and Watson, the 4th Canadian Division who took the city.

Another Canadian flag which is tattered and shows marks of shells has this description appended to it: "This flag was carried by Lt. J. L. Carter, 1st Canadian Pioneers, through the Great War and was twice hurled with him."

This flag was flown from the Hotel de Ville, Mons, November 11th, 1918, and was carried by the Canadian troops into Germany" is the proud caption which accompanies another flag in the same case.

A Canadian flag which did not come through the Great War but is also closely woven into existence is one which was carried with the Canadian Arctic expedition of 1913-18 by Dr. Rudolph M. Anderson. Chief Southern party.

READY HELPERS' CLASS PICNIC

Presentation to Mrs. Roy Kendall

On the afternoon of August 6th, about forty members of the Ready Helpers' Class, of Trinity Sunday School, motored to Bama Scout Camp, for a picnic at the cottage of Mrs. Walter Exley. After a most enjoyable afternoon, supper was served on the spacious verandah overlooking the Bay of Quinte. During the supper hour, Mrs. Roy Kendall, one of our members, who is shortly leaving to live in Charlottetown, P. E. I., was presented with the following address and a pair of silver candle sticks:—

Dear Mrs. Kendall:— It was with sincere regret that we learned of your intended departure for Prince Edward Island. Two short years ago you entered our church as a stranger, but within that time you have shown your shining worth as a member of the Ready Helpers' Class.

We now feel that we are losing a valuable helper as well as a comrade, who radiated brightness and happiness. It is well for any community to have such people in their midst — and we know that what is our loss will be another's gain.

We can assure you that we wish you prosperity and happiness in your new field of labour.

Kindly accept this little gift as a token of our esteem and affection.

Signed on behalf of the Class,
MRS. T. M. ASSELSTINE, President.
Miss LAURA ROCKWELL, Teacher.

Mrs. Kendall, although completely taken by surprise, replied feelingly with a few well-chosen words.

Mr. Robinson, superintendent of the Sunday School, then thanked Mrs. Exley, on behalf of the Class, for her great kindness and generosity in entertaining the class at her cottage. He also paid tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Kendall, both of whom will be greatly missed when they leave Napanee.

AQUATIC CLUB REGATTA SPLENDID SUCCESS

The officials of the local Aquatic Club are to be congratulated on the success of the regatta, held last Wednesday afternoon. There was a good crowd present, which took advantage of every place that afforded a good view of the sports.

The following is a list of the events and winners:—

Two-Mile Swim for the Jack Adams Cup — 1st, G. Anglin, Kingston, 29 minutes; 2nd, W. T. Stevens, Toronto; 3rd, H. Savage, Napanee; 4th, Miss Cassidy, Kingston.

Inboard Handicap — R. Moore (Odessa) first; Fee-All — Dart, Foster, Belleville.

Junior Swim — 1st, G. White, Napanee; 2nd, C. Hearns, Napanee; 3rd, G. Joy, Napanee.

Class "A" Outboard — J. H. Fitzpatrick, Napanee.

Canoe Tilting— G. Barnes, Napanee. The feature of the meet was the outboard free-for-all with all class "C" boats entered, namely Boulter's, Peterboro Cyclone," Art Kimmerley's, Boyd Martin S. "Bullet, "Oh Yeah," and Moore's Peterboro "Water Dart," from Deseronto.

All were powered with 22 h.p. Evinrudes.

Bunny Detlor was driving the Water Dart and was the first boat to drop out. He made too wide a turn at the buoy and skidded into the weeds with the result that his muffler blew off and the motor burst into flame. Some quick work soon put it out and in about twenty minutes he was going again to finish a poor second.

Charlie Boulter was piloting Kimmerly's "Bullet" and was on the way home when his motor quit — with a plugged carburetor. This boat could not be started and had to be towed home.

Bernard Boulter was driving his father's Peterboro-built century designed "Cyclone" which has turned out to be a remarkably successful combination this year. When the other boats broke down Boulter hovered around as not to take advantage of them, but when he finally saw that they could not he readily started he finished an easy first. His time could not be taken because he waited for the other boats in hopes that there could be a close finish.

Harold Anglin, of Kingston, had little difficulty in winning the two-mile event. There was a close race for second place when Stevens just nosed Harold Savage out. If Savage would learn the Australian Crawl, such as Anglin and Stevens used, he would make much better time. However, he made a remarkable showing for his experience, and the stroke he was using.

Hughie Fitzpatrick's "Tillie the Toiler" had no opposition in her class but was awarded the prize. This hull showed surprising speed with only a 7 h.p. motor and had she entered in the free-for-all would have finished an easy second. However, her owner decided that she was so hopelessly outclassed, having only one-third the power of the other entrants, that it would be useless to start her.

Similar regattas will likely be held next year and in all probability will be in the bay, where the sea-fleas can race to better advantage.

OBITUARY

HARRY E. JACKSON

Much sympathy and regret was expressed by the many friends of the late Harry R. Jackson, when it was learned that he had passed peacefully away on Thursday July 31st, at his home in Enterprise. Mr. Jackson was the son of the late Reuben and Annie Jackson and was born in Enterprise in 1881. At the age of eight years he removed to Verona with his parents, returning later and learning telegraphy under Mr. McEwen, who was then agent of this place. He was a trusted employee in the service of the C.N.R. Railway for twenty-six years, acting as agent in Stoco and Camden East and Dane in the latter place for nine years in Enterprise.

Mr. Jackson was an ambitious man despite his ill-health, and was highly esteemed in the community for his sterling worth, ability and good will, and was ever ready to extend a helping hand when called upon.

The many beautiful floral tributes showed the esteem in which the deceased was held. The pall-bearers were the following boyhood friends and neighbors: Wesley Mellow, Byron Crook, Guy Fretwell, George Fenwick, Edwin Wilson and George Nelson.

The funeral, which was largely attended, was held from the United church, Enterprise, August 2nd. The service was conducted by his pastor, Rev. D. M. Stinson, who took for his text: Ps. 1 am With You Always". Interment was made in Riverside Cemetery, Napanee.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Maude Bruton, of Napanee, to whom he married seventy years ago; one son, Donald, his mother, and sister, Mrs. James Bates, of Montreal.

DORLAND

Last week was a very busy time. — Nearly all the farmers finished cutting and a number of threshing machines are working in the vicinity.—On Monday evening, the official induction of Rev. Harold Roberts as pastor of this circuit took place in the church here. Rev. A. J. Wilson, of Napanee, president of the conference, conducted the induction service. Rev. J. E. Beckel, of Tamworth, addressed the congregation. Rev. R. C. Tait, of Campbellford and Rev. R. W. Street, of Morven, also took part in the service. The attendance at the Women's Institute meeting held at home of Mrs. P. Bygott on Wednesday afternoon, was very large, owing to other conflicting dates. Mrs. Ch. Lott entertained the Young Ladies' Aid on Friday afternoon. Arrangements were made for holding a social evening in the school room of the church on Tuesday evening, August 26th. A short programme will be given and plans will be discussed for the undertaking of some necessary repairs and alterations to be carried on about the church. It is hoped that the trustees and others interested will be present.—Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Magee and son, Keith, Mrs. F. E. Foster and daughter, and Mr. Robert Foster, visited friends at Milford on Sunday.—Mrs. Birdie Rombo spent the week end with Miss Josephine Coutts.— Mrs. Blake Humphrey is visiting friends at Collins Bay.— We were glad to hear that there was some improvement in the condition of Mr. J. R. Johnston, who is seriously ill.—Miss Audrey Rutsan is suffering from injuries received to her arm while playing ball.

NAPANEE FAIR OPENS A FOUR DAY PROGRAMME

The Napanee Driving Park never looked better than it did yesterday, when the Annual Fair opened. It is doubtful if Ontario can produce a lovelier place to hold an annual town fair than the Napanee Driving Park. Added to the natural charm of the location, the place was resplendent in bunting, flags, lanterns and gaily decorated booths of all sorts. The management has gone to great pains to have everything in readiness for the opening day. And the way in which the various events were run off showed endless care and an accurate knowledge of handling fall fairs and large crowds.

The weather was perfect and the horse races and baseball in the afternoon had perfect conditions. A complete account of all prize winners and exhibitions will be given next week.

He stared round at the class, but nothing but blank looks met his gaze. "Surely Bert—" he began in question like that? You, Smith," he said the teacher, "what kind of riches did the writer mean?"

Smith hesitated a moment, then: "Ostriches, sir," he replied.

Napanee Annual Fall Fair

What has come to be known, in the town and county, as fair week, was held last Tuesday to Friday, the weeks, preparation had been made and only those who are on the inside know the vast amount of work of a detailed character, that is necessary to make the wheels all run smoothly during fair week.

This year, the general impression was that the exhibits were more numerous and of a higher order than ever before. One of the noteworthy features of the Fair is the growing interest that firms outside the town are taking in it, as a medium of bringing before the public their particular brand of merchandise. More outside firms than ever before had exhibits in the central building.

The Palace, A Place of Artistic Effects.

The main building known as the palace, was gaily decorated with bunting and streamers. Down the centre were the fruit and flower stands, adding charm and a showy beauty to the scene, while arranged around the sides were the various exhibits. Of late years there has been a decided improvement in the manner in which the exhibitors display their wares. It is not sufficient that they show them, but they strive to make the finest display possible. Among those who exhibited, one noticed, Percy Vine, with a full line of electrical appliances. The Gibbard Furniture Stores, with the goods for a full line of furniture and household goods; Haines' Shoe Store had an excellent showing of leather goods. The Dominion Experimental Farms had a splendid showing of feed for chicks, and a moving exhibit, educational in character, dealing with egg production. Alongside this was a dignified and graceful exhibit of marbleware, by the Napanee Marble and Granite Works. On the north side of the building the Commonwealth Products had a full showing of roofing and allied products. R. Light showed a wide range of wood products. Boyle & Son came with a varied assortment of hardware, and right next door was D. B. Wilson, with a special show of radios. The Alabastine Company was showing the wonders which can be accomplished in the home form of decoration material. The Hydro had a most attractive display of all sorts of appliances of an electrical character, and the Beattie Washing Machine Company showed how easy the washing can become when the housewife is provided with their product. The needlework exhibit and the show of drawings and paintings, completed a very good demonstration of the arts and crafts of the county and town.

Live Stock

The livestock exhibit was diverse in its showing. Some of the exhibits were not so numerous as last year, while in others there was a larger showing. There was a notable increase in the number of those showing harness horses; sheep were down a little, while the hogs and cattle remained as in former years. It is noticeable though, that a very high class was maintained in all the live stock exhibits. The grain, agriculture and fruit were of a much better order than other years.

Poultry

The poultry house was well populated, over five hundred feathered specimens, ranging all the way from the big gobbler to the tiny bantum and pidgeon. They were well up to the standard of other years.

Automobiles

In the Automotive Tent, R. MacFarlane had a full line of Buicks, and a sixteen cylinder Cadillac. The Foster and Jones had a showing of Pontiacs and Wiseman's Garage exhibited Chevrolets.

Outside Attractions

The outside attractions which have come to be an established feature of the Fall Fair, was there, both new and old. The ever popular Ferris Wheel, Merry-go-round, the Dangler and the Switch, with many other ways and easy ways of extracting money from the curious and adventurous, was under the care and management of the Harry Lottridge Shows. They seemed to give every satisfaction.

The afternoon performance of horse races and ball games added much to the interest of the show. The evening performance before the grandstand and the concluding fireworks, assured the impartial observer that the patrons were well provided for in every interest and received more than their money's worth of entertainment and instruction.

The fair was fortunate in its weather. The days were perfect. Though that fact kept many of the farmers, who were in the midst of harvesting away from the grounds. The attendance, as a result, was slim in the day time. The added crowd at night hardly made up for the loss in the day time. The result is that the attendance is a bit below that of last year.

The following are the results of the horse races:—

TYENDINAGA EAST WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The monthly meeting of Tyendinaga East Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. W. Whittington July 16th and was exceptionally well attended. Mrs. E. A. Wright, of Odessa, gave a splendid talk on Institute work, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all. It was decided at that meeting, to have a lawn social, which was later held at the home of Mrs. K. Tucker, Empey Hill, a goodly number attending.

The annual picnic was held in Mr. W. Waddingham's woods. Those who were able to go, enjoyed themselves thoroughly.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Roy McMath, Empey Hill, August 26th. A very interesting programme is planned, it being Grandmother's Day.

ODESSA W. I.

The members of Odessa W. I. who availed themselves of the opportunity, report a splendid time at the August meeting, which took the form of a picnic at Mr. Maurice Lawlor's grove. It being a rather busy time for the farmers, there was not a very large crowd, but we were delighted to welcome friends from the Ernestown and Westbrooke Institutes After the sumptuous dinner and during the afternoon, everyone enjoyed the generous treat of ice-cream The children enjoyed the bathing and games of pass-ball. Some of the older ones enjoyed these pursuits also.

The sports were in the charge of Miss W. Clarke and Mrs. Bruce Smith. The results of the races were as follows:—

Girls, 2 to 5 years—1 Aimie Boyce, 2 Jeanne Smith.

Girls, 5 to 8 years—1 Marie Smith, 2 Corinne Graham.

Boys 5 to 8 years—1 Teddy Hagerman, 2 Allan Lawlor.

Boys, 8 to 12 years—1 Francis Lawlor, 2 Donald Priest.

Young Ladies—Miss Eleanor Kirk, 2 Miss Violet Hartman.

Married Ladies—1 Mrs. Roy Graham, 2 Mrs. Bruce Smith.

Married Men's—1Mr. Bruce Smith, 2 Mr. K. Priest.

A guessing contest was won by Miss Violet Hartman.

The September meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. E. Mabee, when Moscow Institute will be our guests and furnish the programme. The roll-call will be "Hints on the preservation of foods for winter use," with a sample.

Time to Duck: "Really, Bill, your argument with your wife last night was most amusing."

A NEW IDEA

Officials of the Dominion Livestock Branch are watching with interest the progress of the new system of marketing meat known as the "package meat" or "rapid freezing" method. It has already been successfully introduced in the larger retail distribution centres in the United States, and bids fair to revolutionize meat retailing methods in the British Market. By the new process cuts of beef, mutton, lamb, pork and veal are dressed in the packing plant, packed in individual cellophane wrappers and subjected to rapid freezing at very low temperatures. It is found that by "snap" freezing only tiny ice crystals are formed in the flesh of the meat, preserving all the fine qualities quite unimparied. The new system provides a serious threat to the future of that old familiar institution, the butcher shop.

CONWAY W. I.

A goodly number gathered at the home of Mrs. T. Manion on Tuesday evening, August 12th, when the regular meeting of Conway Women's Institute was held. After the usual opening exercises, conducted by the president, the minutes were read, which included a letter from Mr. Runions, acknowledging donation to the Cooking Classes. Also a letter asking for the co-operation of Women's Institutes in the enforcing of the Weed Control Act. Roll call was answered by the "Work I like best," and judging from the ready responses, we have no lazy women in our society; for which we are justly proud.

On motion, it was decided we pay our secretary a yearly salary. Mrs. Hill was elected delegate to the Kingston Convention.

Miss Elizabeth Sills' paper on Current Events was very concise and well chosen.

Mr. Elliott, Warden, was then called upon and gave a very interesting talk on the Old Age Compensation Act. Old age pensions are being paid in all provinces except Quebec. In Ontario fifty percent is paid by the Dominion Government, thirty per cent by the Ontario and twenty per cent by the County. This he did not consider a very fair deal, comparing it with some of the other provinces. As a member of the County Board, he cited different cases, some of the applicants being very deserving and others not so. Some $13,000 would be paid by the County this year, necessitating 1½ mills to the already high tax.

Everyone was pleased to have District President, Mrs. Wright, of Violet, with us and to listen to her most interesting talk on Institute work. Co-operation the key note in the home, the school and the community. Study the Canadian manufacturers; know them and learn to buy their goods, always, in preference. Canadians do not boast enough. Use the help from the Department by writing the Loan Library. Help in the enforcing of the Weed Act. Pasteurize all the milk and aid the crippled children. These were some of the thoughts we were asked to take home with us. Mrs. Wright, in concluding her remarks, quoted Rudyard Kipling's poem "If."

After a hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Wright, Miss Sills and Mr. Elliott, the meeting concluded with the singing of God Save the King.

After the serving of delicious refreshments, all departed for the several homes, having spent a pleasant and profitable evening.

PREFER CANADIAN HAY

The increase in popularity of Canadian graded hay in the Overseas market, coupled with an acute shortage in the United States, is the basis for the forecast by the Seed Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture of an increase in hay exports at advantageous prices this year. Canadian hay has secured for itself a high reputation during the past three years, and reports indicate that among particular customers it is preferred to anything grown in Great Britain. This is another case in which quality assured by government grading means much to the Canadian farmer.

had not appetite, my digestion was poor. I slept miserably and got up feeling as if I hadn't slept at all. My color was pallid and sickly-looking. Six bottles of Sargon filled me with new strength and energy, my appetite is fine, I do all my housework and walk many city blocks without tiring in the least.

"Sargon Pills didn't cause me the slightest discomfort, but they set my liver right and entirely corrected my constipation. My complexion has improved wonderfully. I'll praise this wonderful treatment as long as I live."—Mrs. Susie Butler, 117 Harvey Street, Toronto.

Presentation and Address

On the evening of August 26th, about fifty of the neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Pretts, Harvey, met at their home to bid them farewell before leaving for their new home in Napanee. A very enjoyable evening was spent, after which Miss M. Seeley read the following address:—

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Pretts:— It is with much regret we have learned of your departure from our neighborhood, after spending a goodly part of your lives in our midst. Your circle of friends is a wide one, being each and all of us will miss you. We feel that the vacancy you have left will be a hard one to fillbut we realize there comes a time in our lives when we must lay down the heavier burdens and let the responsibilities rest upon younger shoulders. We trust in so doing your health will be restored and you will spend many happy days in your new home.

And, Mrs. Pretts, we know your absence will be keenly felt and the presence you leave will be hard to fill. We will miss you in our Women's Missionary Society and Ladies' Aid, as you have always taken a keen interest in our meetings and helped in every way you could without hesitation. Also our Sunday School, to which you have given unsparingly of your time and talent. We younger members appreciate your training as you have instructed some of us from infancy. We trust that the feeling of friendship which has existed between you and ourselves will still continue and now, as a token of our esteem, we ask you to accept this electric lamp and piece of gold, as a remembrance. As you use it, may it remind you of the many pleasant times we have spent together, and in parting we wish that God's blessing may rest upon you in your new home.

Signed on behalf of your neighbors and friends.

CANADA IS VITALLY CONCERNED IN EMPIRE ECONOMIC CONFERENCE

The most important economic conference in the history of the British Empire is scheduled to take place in London during October and November.

The exact date of its commencement will be announced as soon as Premier Bennett can indicate, with some certainty the time of concluding the special session of the Canadian House.

An important, if not complete revision of the attitude of the United Kingdom towards tariffs is embodied in the proposals to be laid before the conference and the success or failure in securing acceptance of these proposals is, by common consent, mainly in the ability of Canada's new prime minister to sell his ides to the people of the Mother Country.

Success, or failure, in the endeavor is of the first importance to Canada and to other sections of the Empire, as well as to Britain Success means that through the working out of a system of mutually beneficial preferences, the British market, for wheat and dairy and food products, will be retained for Empire products, while overseas dominions will give to British manufacturers their markets for such goods as must be imported.

A century-old aversion in Britain to protective tariffs—particularly on foodstuffs—is the barrier which Mr. Bennett must break down to achieve his objective. There are indications that economic conditions are working in his interest; that the feeling is growing that cheap food is dear if there is no money to buy it.

Canada's offer is the promise to open the Canadian market to British industry—in non-competitive fields—on a basis which will stimulate industrial prosperity there, in return for preferential treatment by Britain for Canada's grain and other agricultural products.

The effort to sell the idea to the British people will be followed with the keenest interest by the farming populations of the Dominion Unless it succeeds the Canadian farmer will, within a very few years, be subjected to much more pressing competition from the 23-cent per day labor of Soviet Russia, where scientific farming methods are only now making their influence felt in production and where an area greater than that available in Canada awaits the plow.

Information reaching Canada indicates that Mr. Bennett's task is not as hopeless as it might have been even a year ago. Free trade in Britain has always boasted kindred advocates in labor, and, strangely enough, in the great financial interests. President Tom Moore of the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress recently returned from Europe to announce that in Britain he found among labor a decided trend in favor of protection. Almost simultaneously a conference of the foremost British bankers went on record as to the futility of Britain sticking to free trade while the rest of the world piled up tariff barriers.

Those influences may provide an opening for the thin end of the Bennett wedge. In any event the conference is fraught with the greatest significance to agricultural Canada.

ARCTIC TERNS ARE DAYLIGHT SAVERS

The graceful Arctic terns, some of which breed close to the North Pole and spend their winters not far from the South Pole, are without doubt the champion "globe trotters" and "daylight savers" of the bird world. Some individuals must make an annual round trip of about 22,000 miles from their breeding grounds to their winter quarters and return.

They also probably enjoy more hours of daylight than any other creature living; before they reach their breeding grounds in the Arctic, the Midnight Sun has already appeared, while during their sojourn in the Antarctic daylight is continuous.

Individual birds of this species make the longest flights known in migration. An Arctic tern, banded as a chick on the coast of Labrador, was found about three months later near Grandville, France. Another fledgling, banded at the same point, was found on the beach at Margate, about 15 miles north west of Port Shepstone, Natal, South Africa, about three months after it was banded, during which time it had flown not less than 6,000 miles.

$3,900,000 CROSS BORDER THIS YEAR

"The good roads, the fine hospitality of the Candians, the beautiful scenery and the quaint foreign atmosphere of parts of Canada, will always lure the traveller to the land of the Lady of the Snows," said Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary to the Treasury, who, by virtue of his office supervises the border patrols operated by the Coast Guard and the Bureau of Customs.

Mr. Lowman was basing his address on the work of the coast guard and in the course of it said that "some idea of the task of guarding our borders can be seen by recalling the fact that exclusive of the Great Lakes, the distance to be covered is over 4,500 miles. To be exact it is 2,839 miles along the Canadian border and 1,877 miles along the Mexican border."

"In proportion to population, more Canadian cars enter the United States than American cars enter Canada," he continued. "This is partly accounted for by the fact that many Canadians work in the factories on the American side and cross over and back every day. It is estimated that 25,000,000 people and 7,007,800 cars will cross the borders this year. Some attribute this enormous travel to the supposed American thirst for booze. The records show that less than three out of every 100 American visitors qualify as buyers.

BRIGHT EYES, ROSY CHEEKS

The Birthright of Every Girl.

Dull eyes means misery and weakness—a sure sign of a bloodless condition. Anaemic girls and women have dull, heavy eyes with dark circles underneath. The bright eyed girl or woman is always happy and well.

There is one way to make the eyes bright—to bring the glow of health to pale cheeks—that is to invigorate the body with new blood—rich, red, health-giving blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do this and they do it well. Concerning them Mrs. Robert Devitt, Brougham, Ont., says: "My daughter became so ill and nervous we had to take her out of school. She was pale and thin; her eyes were dull and the least exertion upset her. I began giving her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and in less than six months you would not know her. She gained in weight and strength and is now the picture of health."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FALL FASHIONS IN FOOD

(Barbara B. Brooks)

This is the tiem of year when Fall models appear in the windows of the dress shops. Skirts are longer, or shorter; sleeves fuller or tighter; neck lines, even or uneven; hems, regular or irregular. There are always some changes from the mode of the previous season, yet the clothes keep right on performing the function which has been theirs from earliest times—that of protecting the body from heat or cold. Exactly the same model could be worn winter and summer by adapting the weight of material to the temperature. But why not? Because women crave change and this is perfectly natural. Nature herself relieves the green of the hillside by dotting it with many colored flowers and by delicately shading the pale tints of Spring through the full colors of Summer and the vivid hues of Autumn until, with an eye for sharp contrast, she strips the trees bare and covers them with a mantle of white.

The same basic principles apply to food as to clothing. The primary function of food is to nourish the body—to keep it warm in perfect condition for growth and development, and to furnish the glow of health. People could draw up a chart showing the amounts of protein, carbohydrate, fat, vitamins, and minerals necessary for adequate nutrition, decide on the foods which will furnish them an then keep on eating these same foods day after day, month after month and year after year.

What is the matter with such a plan? Is is uninteresting. We want a change of food styles for the same reason that we welcome new colors, new fabrics and original cuts for gowns.

There is a wide range of choice in the fall foods. Fruits and vegetables are shown in beautiful colors and interesting textures. They can be made up very simply or in combinations which will furnish variety and interest.

Fresh tomatoes should be served as long as they are in market. For slicing or for salads peel the tomatoes and chill thoroughly. Tomato adds greatly to the flavor of many soups, sauces and casserole dishes. We are giving here some recipes for cooked fresh tomatoes.

Baked Tomatoes

Wash the tomatoes and remove a slice from the top. Score the centres of the tomatoes and season with salt, pepper and butter. Lay a slice of onion on top of each tomato. Place in a baking dish with two or three tablespoons of water. Bake in a moderate oven, (350 degrees F.) until tender.

Tomato Goulash

½ Cup salad oil, 2 onions (sliced), 2 green peppers (shredded), 2 pars corn (cut from cob), 8 tomatoes (cut in eighths), salt, pepper.

Heat the oil. Add onion and cook until a delicate brown. Add peppers and corn and cook five minutes. Add tomatoes and seasoning and cook until soft.

Scalloped Tomatoes

8 Large fresh tomatoes, salt, bread crumbs or corn flake crumbs, butter, grated cheese.

Peel tomatoes and cut into slices. Place alternate layers of tomatoes, seasoning, and crumbs in a casserole. Dot each layer with butter. Cover with cheese and bake for 30 minutes in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.)

JANE'S DILEMMA

As soon as Jane saw the calendar she realized with a sinking sensation that it was her aunt's birthday. A moment's panic before she saw the way out. A Long Distance call solved the problem and pleased her aunt more than any gift.

HERALDRY

Coats-of-Arms Reveal the History of Families and Their Claims to Fame.

Heraldry is regarded by many people as a quaint survival of mediævalism. As a matter of fact, in the crests and coats-of-arms of many of our noble families may one see to epitome the history of those families and their chief claims to fame, says an article in Toronto Saturday Night.

Every year the College of Heralds, which is the last authority in all such matters, has to devise new armorial bearings for newly-created peers. The object of the designer is to represent symbolically the claims of the new nobleman to honor. In the old days undoubtedly, the armorial device stood for some exploit on the field, but now-a-days, when the majority of honors fall to men who are strangers to war, the device is symbolic of some less romantic calling.

Donald Smith, a Scots lad, emigrated to Canada. For years his work ed without recognition in the service of the Hudson's Bay Company. But he was a man of unique character, and in time when the Canadian Pacific Railway was started he took a part in that great enterprise. In the end he was created Lord Strathcona. But he came of humble stock, if he had no armorial bearings, and these had to be devised.

The conventional emblems did not appeals to him, and the heraldic expert had to devise an armorial device which would tell in epitome the rise and achievement of this stordy Scot. In this way in olden days armorial devices were designed, and so, Donald Smith, Baron Strathcona and Mount Royal took under royal patent armorial bearings which told the story of his arduous life.

These arms show four men in a canoe, a hammer and nail, surmounted by a crest showing a beaver erecting at a tree. The supporters of this device showed a trooper of Strathcona's Horse on the one side and a common railway construction worker on the other.

To a remote generation, when the greeds of the family of Strathcona is lost in the mists of time this armorial device may seem as strange as are many of the old devices to us. But it puts on record for all time the great achievement of a man of iron so that the student, and his own descendants may point with pride to the patent and its device which sets the seal of worth on the achievements of a man who did great things.

In many of the coats-of-arms of famous families may be obtained a clue to their origins. Thus, for example Lord Cunliffe, a banker, took as supporters the two figures which "support" armorial bearings the Bank of England porters. Lord Ashfield, chairman of the Underground, has two electrifiers as supporters.

Lord Askwith, once famous as a settler of strikes, has chosen for supporters two doves. Lord Vimborne, whose forebears were commoner, engaged in the private trade of building, has embodied that circumstance in his supporters by making them a stonemason and a carpenter.

It is customary when a K.C. is made a master of the Bench of his Inn and Treasurer or Reader of it, to have his armorial bearings inscribed on the panels of the Hall of the Inn. But sometimes it so happens that the Bencher is a self-made man whose family has no armorial bearings. Sometimes, in such cases, the legal luminary applies to the College of Heralds for a "grant of arms." But in at least one case — that of Dr. Bihke Odgers, the celebrated authority on the law of libel and slander, the newly-elected Bencher elected to apply for a grant of arms. He was however, allotted a shield on the old oak panels of the Halls of his Inn, the Middle Temple, but the shield was left black. Perhaps more than any other shield in this ancient Hall that of the learned doctor who scorned official recognition of his worth stands out. It is a curiosity that it always pointed out to visitors—the blank shield without armorial devices, supporters or crest.

In this way history is made. Armorial bearings are meant to give us the clue to the origin and achievements of the possessor—and if that possessor blandly proclaims his origin as without knightly significance, his blank coat of arms speaks more eloquently of his worth than many fine, but meaningless heraldic devices.

OBITUARY.

After undergoing a very serious operations during the past month, in the Kingston General Hospital and improving nicely, Mrs. Elijah McQuaig, Selby, was stricken quite suddenly with a heart attack on Wednesday, August 20th, and although all the medical attention that could be had was at her bedside, the gradual—slept peacefully away. She bore all her suffering without a murmur, and was always ready to meet her friends and those who waited on her, with a smile to the last. Her death came as a great shock to the whole community.

The late Mrs. McQuaig, before her marriage, was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kirkpatrick, Napanee, and was born in Tamworth, where she spent the early part of her life, moving to Napanee with her parents about twenty years ago. For some time she was employed with the Rathbun Company. After her marriage she spent the most of her life around Selby, where her kind and lovable disposition won for her many friends, which was manifested by the beautiful flowers, not only from the surrounding district, but from other friends.

She leaves to mourn her loss her husband, two young children, Mildred and Ernest, also her mother and father, one brother, Arnold Kirkpatrick, and two sisters, Mrs. Fred King and Miss Florence Kirkpatrick.

The funeral, which was one of the largest ever seen in Selby in some time, was held at the Selby United Church on Friday afternoon, being conducted by Rev. H. W. Foley, of Selby, who was assisted by Rev. W. P. Woodger, of the Church, Napanee. Feelins reference was made by both ministers in the sad loss sustained by the family, friends and the district in which she had made her home since her marriage, also in Napanee, where her parents and sisters reside, and where she was exceptionally well known.

The casket, covered with flowers, was a conservative of family, relations and friends. Interment took place at River-side Cemetery.

THE CANADIAN DEPARTMENT STORES LIMITED

EXPECT TO FINISH SPECIAL SESSION WITHIN TWO WEEKS

A session of Parliament, which will set a new record for brevity, is planned by the Bennett Government, to implement Mr. Bennett's pledge to deal forthwith with the unemployment problem

While the date of convening the session cannot be fixed until it is known whether the return of ministers will be opposed in by-elections, it is the intention to bring the members together at the earliest possible date in September. The Speech from the Throne is expected to deal only with the business of the session, which is unemployment, and it is the decision of the Government that the entire session need not exceed two weeks in length.

Another suggestion was that a regular session be called and the House adjourned until after the New Year, as soon as emergency legislation was passed. This, it is understood has been rejected in favor of the two-week sitting for which every member will draw only the statutory allowance of $20 per day.

The legislation to be presented will include provision for co-operation with the Provinces and municipalities to forward public works which might otherwise be postponed for a year or two. A considerable expanded program of Federal public works is also indicated.

These courses are aimed at the temporary relief of unemployment, the broader policy advocated by Mr. Bennett in his campaign strives to reach basic conditions through agricultural and industrial encouragements. This hinges upon tariff adjustments of a contravential character and specific action will depend largely upon the course of events at the economic conference in London. Hence tariff adjustments, beyond probable suspension of countervailing duties, will not be taken up by the emergency session of the House.

Advance reports do not indicate that the Liberal party will put any impediments in the way of quick disposal of business to enable Mr. Bennett to go to the Empire Conferences. In fact, Mr. King has indicated his readiness to facilitate matters except where his party might find itself in conflict with the administration on vital principles of government.

MINIATURE GOLF SWEEPS CANADA

Other lines of business are being affected some adversely and some favorably, by the spread of miniature golf. From the manufacturers of golf clubs it is learned that orders for putters, the only club which is used on the miniature courses, are months behind and are the largest single item in the number of these courses which are being constructed is expected to make the demand for putters increase even more.

The moving picture industry is said to be feeling adversely the effect of the popularity of the new diversion. It is the claim of numerous moving picture houses that a noted decrease has been found in the number of paying patrons since this novelty has come into vogue. It is stated that the moving picture houses do not attribute the decrease in patronage to the general economic depression as much as to the growth of popularity in miniature golf.

It is also found that the miniature golf courses are tending to have a demoralizing effect on youth, much as do pool rooms and dance halls. It is said that the courses are usually located in an area where there is available ground adjacent and also the courses have been in favor in crowds a soft drink stand, peanut station or quick lunch will be constructed to get the trade from the course.

Miniature golf has undoubtedly in the particular liking of a number of Canadians throughout the entire country and the number of courses is increasing every day. The charge has come about within the period of a year.

Deceased was born in Ireland 78 years ago. He came to Canada when a young man and settled in Napanee. He was a carpenter by trade and followed that occupation for many years. For a few years he was in the flour mill and on Bentley's farm. He was a member of Napanee Methodist Church. His wife predeceased him by a few years. The funeral was held on Tuesday, at Cataraqui and interment was made in the cemetery there, in the family plot.

TWIN GIRLS ARTISTS.

Brought Up on Lonely Farm, Self-Taught, Successful Painters.

Miss Elizabeth and Miss Dorothy Alderson, twins, who live on a lonely farm at Nesahaun, Long Island, have developed a gift for painting.

They have had no special art lessons, but their work is so good that they have many commissions, and they occupy most of their spare moments from farm work in painting and sketching together.

Often they work on the same picture, sitting on opposite sides of the table, so that one has to paint upside down.

Twin "sympathy" helps to make this possible. I was told that when engaged in imaginative work their ideas coincide so exactly that without previous planning the result is just what each expected.

In appearance the twins are almost identical. Their hair is coiled in plaits around their ears and each has brown eyes.

They have exhibited with success at the Newcastle Art Gallery, the Northeast coast exhibition, and at various agricultural shows.

Saving Life at Sea.

Plans for an apparatus which, it is claimed, will make submarine and ship crews safe in the event of accident have been made by Mr. Joseph Kelly, a Liverpool stevedore. At a recent demonstration birds and white mice were submerged in a watertight compartment fixed to a model ship sunk in twenty-five feet of water, and were still alive after five minutes.

Mr. Kelly's plans consists of a watertight compartment fixed to the deck of a ship or submarine. This could be entered through a special man-hole and would be released from a sinking vessel and float on the surface. Supplies of oxygen and food would be carried.

Cooling for a Year.

A huge mirror which took nearly a year to cool down has been made in England for a large reflecting telescope. Weighing more than a ton and a half, it is sixty-nine inches in diameter and ten inches thick. Discs of glass of this size are difficult to get free from defects, and after the molten glass has been poured into the mould it has to be kept hot by electric heaters and cooled down over a period of many months.

Unhealthy Babyhood Days.

The Irish boys are almost as great in extent as those of Germany. While the latter are from 5 to 22 feet deep, the Irish variety often reaches 40 feet and are sometimes apparently bottomless. It has been calculated that each acre of bog contains 18,121 tons of peatstuff.

World Goods Exhibition.

Toronto in 1932 will be the scene of a world goods exhibition which will be of historic importance, and in which many countries will take part. Arrangements have been made to rent the plant built for an attendance of 150,000 people.

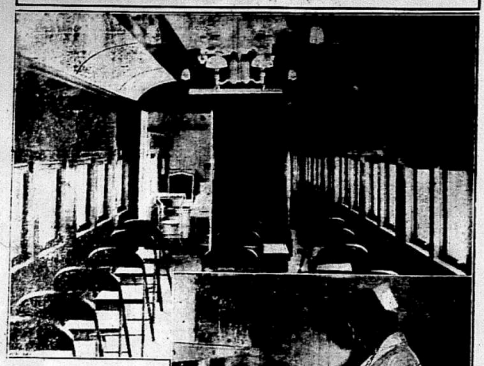
FIRST AID SCHOOL ON WHEELS



FOR the benefit of employees located from the larger centres, the Canadian National Railways have put into operation three travelling first-aid instruction cars. Fully equipped and in charge of competent instructors, these cars will travel to outlying points, bringing courses of instruction to engine men and train men, agents and construction and maintenance of way men who have ordinarily no means of obtaining the knowledge. One car will work in the western region of the railway, one in the central region and one in the Maritime Provinces. While their primary use is for instruction, they are, as well, travelling first-aid stations ready for use in emergency. They are the first cars of this type ever to go into service on a railroad in Canada, if not on the continent. Their Excellencies, the Governor General and Lady Willingdon, Colonel C. A. Hodgetts, Vice-President, and other members of the St. John Ambulance Association, who witnessed the first of the three cars, were much impressed by

THE WAY OF LIFE

By Bruce Barton

Laziness

There was one year in my life when it seemed as if everything went exactly wrong.

The resulting accumulation of worries and problems loomed up like a game of accumulation. It hardly seemed worth while to try to keep top of one of them because there were so many others on hand.

Wise old Talleyrand, when he could no longer see his way clearly through a difficult situation, used to take to his bed and give out word that he was ill. It was his experience that many difficulties solved themselves if one only let them alone for awhile.

Adopting his example, I went away for a couple of weeks and played golf. When I came back new troubles and problems had accumulated, but I was a different person.

I went down to the office, made a list of all of them, and decided to tackle only number one first. I cleared it up, ran down and started after the others.

An amazing thing developed. Some of the worst situations proved to be the easiest and just one of the whole lot turned out to be much like what I had given it credit for.

Laziness is valuable. I came to have learned it much earlier in life, for I had been given plenty of opportunity to practice the arts of concentration in such matters.

One of the tests those made as a rule every morning was for the bad news first. He said, if want to get the trouble over with. Then the evening is fresh. I never deal with anything that is new. When I pick up a paper I read the editorials first. Let it down until it's settled. Procrastination is a virtue.

An acquaintance of mine is a prominent operator in Wall Street. I asked him if were true that at different times he has taken tremendous losses.

"Lots," he exclaimed. "I've taken millions in losses. Any man who tries to get into life without taking losses will never make any money. The trick is to take 'em quick and forget 'em. Amateurs worry about them in advance and brood about them afterward. The cool and the broodingbreak their nerves."

The Book of Proverbs, which said pretty nearly everything, once more said — and much better — has this verse:

"The slothful man saith There is a lion without. I shall be slain in the streets."

Worrying about the lion, the slothful man is eaten by fear, which is a more terrible death.

The wise man steps out boldly. And more often than not the lion proves to be just a motion picture lion, with his claws cut short and his poor old teeth all gone.

Hurrying Flowering

There are some flowers that normally bloom late in the season and which often seem to require a severe frost to bring out the blooms. The cannas is one of these offenders, some types of this plant blooming much later than others To hurry them along, nip the main stem back about six inches and if they are well-developed plants, nip back some of the side shoots as well This practice will usually start the plants blooming in a week or ten days. A little pruning back of other rank growing annual plants may also be advisable in order to let in sunlight and hasten flowering.

Hastening Ripening

When staked tomatoes have gone to the top of the support, they should be nipped off in order to encourage them to form fruit and to ripen the fruit already set. Where the plants have not been staked, they should be opened up to the sun by removing a portion of the stems and about a quarter of the leaves. The same principle may be applied to other vine fruits, such as cucumbers, melons, pumpkins and squash which will set fruit more quickly from the heats during wet weather, if when the dew is on them, as brushing past the plants at this time will spread the fungus. Removal of the affected pods when first noticed will help check the spread. The diseased pods should be destroyed.

Gladiolus Care

No flower, with the possible exception of the dahlia, has come to the front so rapidly in recent years as the gladiolus The reason is obvious to any one who has grown it. It thrives in almost any soil or situation. It can be relied upon to flower freely every year. No flowers are better for cutting. If the spike is removed when the first blossom open up, it will keep for a week in the house. It is best to place the container in full light for an hour or two each day to bring out the color and an inch or so should be removed off the bottom of the stems at the same time. Change the water daily. For exhibition purposes, a hood is usually placed over the lower buds before cutting to retard development so that the buds will open as near as possible at the same time.

Harvesting Onions

As the onion tops wilt and turn yellow, they give signs of maturity. While the weather is hot and dry, they should be pulled up and laid on the ground in rows. A day or two later, they will be ready for storing in some place that is cool, if possible, but most certainly dry. It is advisable to sort well before storing, throwing out all soft and diseased specimens, and putting those with thick necks and tops that are not entirely shrivelled up in a place by themselves for early use. These will not keep as long nor as well as the others.

PLANTING FALL FLOWERS

August and September are the months in which to plant and re-set Iris, peony and similar bulbous flowers advise horticultural experts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Now is the time to plant the Bearded Iris or to take up and replant old crowded specimens. In doing this the young, healthy rhizomes should be replanted and the old central portions discarded. In planting the Iris the rhizomes should not be covered with earth, the should be left at the surface of the soil with the roots firmly embedded in the ground.

September is the month for dividing and replanting peonies. The old stools should be dug up, carefully divided, and replanted. When replanted, each division should have three or four eyes, they should be placed about three or four feet apart and just deep enough that the crowns are covered with two inches of earth. The soil in which they are planted should be dug deeply and richness assured by mixing in some bone meal and sheep manure. Too deep planting is one of the causes of the non-blooming of peonies

Other bulbous plants which may be planted about the end of September, include Tulips, Narcissus,—Chionodoxa, Crocus, Leucojum, (Snowflake), and Scilla Siberica.

VIOLET - SWITZERVILLE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The regular monthly meeting of the Violet-Switzerville Women's Institute, was held at the home of Mrs. Arnold Empey, Palace Road, on Thursday, August 7th, with a goodly number of members and guests, several new members being added to the roll.

The roll call, "Play, Sing or Pay," was answered promptly by the members, though a few fines were levied. Mrs. James A. McCormick gave a very comprehensive outline of the district annual at Conway and Mrs. N. Wilson, also a delegate, brought a few bright thoughts from the convention.

The house dress parade was a pleasing feature and many practical models were shown. The judges, three young ladies from Brighton Women's Institute, who were guests of Mrs. E. A. Wright, after careful deliberation, awarded the prize (a federation pin) to Mrs. James McCormick.

Special plans were made for a splendid "Grandmothers' Day" which is to be held at the home of Mrs. N. Wilson on Thursday, September 4th. A real interesting programme is to be given by the grandmothers.

Miss Freda Newman, of Picton, in company with her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Newman, was the guest speaker of the afternoon. They have just returned from a two months' sojourn on the continent, and Miss Newman, in her charming, easy manner, carried us along with her on an imaginary journey through the traffic of London, the Strand, along the circular winding streets of Piccadilly, Oxford Circus, etc. One is amazed at the traffic rules in London, and soon learns to appreciate the underground route, which is the speediest mode of travel in London.

The Prince of Wales welcomed the delegates at the Congress, in the Guildhall, at 11:00 a.m. The speaker graphically described the Houses of Parliament with its 1100 rooms and two miles of corridors; the terrace, where the lady M. P.'s are hostesses.

Miss Newman described the Coronation Chair, a huge, unpainted, high backed chair, underneath which is the stone upon which all the kings and queens of England have been crowned, and which is supposed to be "Jacob's stone from Bethel."

We also went, with our speaker, to Madame Tussaud's famous wax works gallery, and saw the many wax works models of the Royal Family, so realistically conceived, the little Princess Elizabeth in her bare feet, so natural indeed that one almost expects them to speak Leaders in sport, art, history, then the Chamber of Horrors, with its ghastly murders, etc., depicted the tableau of the murder of the two little princes, which was really perfect, with the light of the lantern on their sleeping faces.

The Tower of London, with its historic old background, where the children of England can see history lived. The Crown Jewels are here; crowns, swords, baptismal dish, etc.

Buckingham Palace was the most important point of interest, which the delegates visited at the invitation of the King and Queen. It was described by our speaker as perfectly beautiful and gracious. Permission was granted for the delegates to be shown through.

They were shown the King's Advisary Chamber, the Gold Room, rooms for visiting royalty and a carpet, described as 90 feet by 40 feet,—the largest seamless carpet in the world, which was made by convicts of India, for Paul's were also described, the latter newly renovated with its gorgeous carvings, paintings, etc, and the crypt, with Nelson's funeral wagon, a huge black waggon that took twelve horses to draw.

The delegates saw the R-100 float over London and at the same time fifty-four numbered planes were in the air. This was before the wonderful R-100 started on its history making tour.

In closing, Miss Newman, who described briefly, parts of Germany, Holland, etc. said that one could not be but struck by the beauties of the historic old land, but one touched one's foot on native shores of Canada with a new thrill and a warm feeling of thanksgiving for the many advancements, blessings of this homeland of ours.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Miss Newman and Mrs. Newman for the splendid lecture given and the gracious acceptance of our invitation, and the meeting closed with a social half hour over the tea cups.

The regular meeting of the Maple Leaf Women's Institute was held on Thursday, August 14th at the home of Mrs. Raymond Pretts at 2:30 p.m. After the usual opening and business, Mrs. Powell, of Napanee, gave a number of readings, which were very appropriate. Dr. C. M. Stratton gave a splendid address on "Study Thy Body and Know Thyself," which was very much appreciated by those present. A paper by Miss Hazel Cummings on "Plus Health, (How to get the most out of every twenty four hours) which was enjoyed by all. Current events by Mrs. Bert Pretts.

The appreciation of the meeting was extended to Mrs Powell. Dr. C. M. Stratton and all who assisted in the programme, manifested in the usual way.

The meeting closed by the singing of God Save the King, after which a dainty lunch was served by the committee in charge.

There should always be a bottle of it in the house.

CUTTING UP DOESN'T PAY

There is a good demand for Canadian cheese in the British West Indies, but development of cheese exports for that market depends directly on the packing of a cheese suited to the market, states J. A. Ruddick, Dairy Commissioner of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Dr. Ruddick spent several months in the West Indies last winter. The market there wants a small 25 pound cheese of the "Daisie" type about 12 inches in diameter, and also the cheese should be fairly "new", not more than one month old when shipped.

Some Canadian exporters, to meet the demand, have been cutting or splitting the regular size 80-85 lb cheese into three or four sections, covering the cut surfaces with paraffin or ironing a cap cloth on. As a result, when exposed to temperatures of 80 degrees F. or more, as they are constantly in the West Indian climate, these "split" cheeses are far from satisfactory. They become a soft loose mass, quite unattractive and hard to handle.

The "Daisie" type made, fairly firm and covered with a good rind, is much better suited to the market and its sale can be substantially increased if proper care is exercised in preparing it for a particular market. Quality counts in cheese as it does in other farm and dairy products.

It bars from the road the careless, irresponsible driver

Suspension of driving license will result from any of several offences against provisions in this Act designed to safeguard person and property on the highway. Safe, sane driving is necessary.

Also, suspension of driving license follows inability to pay for damage caused. Unless you are insured, you must be prepared to pay personally up to $11,000. Insurance is more than ever desirable.

There are many important points in this Act about which every motorist should know.

QUEEN'S SON, BROTHER AND UNCLE OF BRITISH KING, WON HIGH PLACE IN MILITARY AND GOVERNMENT CIRCLES

The British royal family is concerned about the health of one of its oldest and most celebrated members—the Duke of Connaught, son of a queen, brother of a king, and father-in-law of a king. He is entering the last of the Victorians, a one-time Inspector-General of all the empire's armed forces, and a former Governor-General of Canada.

But Connaught has passed his 80th birthday with little of the vigor that has sustained him through an unusual, by active life.

He not only is one of the last of the Victorians; he might be called the Victorian par excellence, for he is the son of the late Queen Victoria. He was born in the 12th year of her reign and saw her on the throne for 50 years more. He saw his brother, King Edward VII, rule for nine years. And he has watched his nephew, King George V, reign for 20.

The Duke always has been first and foremost a soldier. He seemed predestined to it. For when he was christened, his godfather was the first Duke of Wellington, one of England's greatest captains and the man who settled Napoleon's fate at Waterloo. Having such a godfather colored the boy's thoughts. His grandmother, the Duchess of Teck, wrote of being present at "Arthur's drumming lesson." At 6 he chose to be painted in the uniform of the famous Grenadier Guards.

When he got to be old enough to consider seriously what he should do in life, he still wanted to be a soldier. His oldest brother, Edward, was destined for the throne His next brother, the late Duke of Edinburgh, had chosen the navy. So the youngster just naturally turned to the army. At 16 he entered the Royal Military Academy at Woolwich. Two years later he passed out into the Royal Engineers. But shortly thereafter he transferred as a second-lieutenant in the Royal Artillery and from that into the Rifle Brigade, a celebrated corps with which he has maintained close relations down to this very hour. He was made a captain in 1871 at the age of 21. He became a major in 1875 and in 1876 took command as a lieutenant colonel. He became Colonel-in-Chief in 1880.

But he did more than step up. He saw active service and smelled gunpowder. In 1870 he was in Canada, under General Wolseley in the Red River expedition against the Peniata. In 1882 Arabi Pasha's revolt in Egypt took him there in command of the Guards Brigade He was in action at Malmuta and Tel-el-Kebir and was thrice mentioned in dispatches. Lord Wolseley privately wrote the Queen that her son had borne himself gallantly under fire He afterwards received the thanks of Parliament for his services in the field.

He undoubtedly owed a lot of his rapid advancement to the fact that he was a royal prince. But once having reached a certain high position, his royal blood and connections then became a handicap. He had held army commands at Bombay, India in the Southern English districts and at Aldershot. When the South African war broke out, he strongly desired to hold an independent command in the field. But his very royalty barred him.

His mother, the Queen, fearing for his safety, vetoed his aspirations and he had to be content with being Commander-in-Chief of the forces in Ireland. It was generally thought he was destined to succeed his great-uncle, the Duke of Cambridge, as Commander-in-Chief of the British army. The great statesman, Disraeli, in fact, advised the Queen to retain the supreme army command in the royal family. But the times were becoming more democratic and it was deemed wiser policy to promote Lord Wolseley as more representative of the British people.

Connaught was given consolation in the shape of a Field Marshalship in 1902. When the post of Commander-in-Chief was abolished and an Army Council established in its place, the Duke was made Inspector General of all the armed forces. As such he traveled widely, seeing the troops in Egypt, South Africa, Hong Kong and Malaysia Then he was made Commander-in-Chief of the Mediterranean forces. After that he left the army, convinced there was no further career there for him.

But soon a new call was made upon him. In 1911, he was appointed Governor-General of Canada and was one of the most popular this great Dominion ever had. This public career he shared with his daughter, Princess Patricia—known all over Canada as "Princess Pat," and after whom was named a famous Canadian Regiment which won glory for itself on many a field in France and Flanders. Owing to the outbreak of the war, the Duke served as Governor General for an unusually long period, only relinquishing the task in 1916.

He also performed two other jobs as representative of the royal family. He went to South Africa to open the Union Parliament and he went to India to inaugurate the Council of State and the Imperial Legislative Assembly. Since then he has almost withdrawn from public life, spending most of his winters in the French Riviera, where he is well-known for his soldiery bearing and democratic ways.

Singularly few anecdotes are told about him, but one thing he did in 1911 won him the regard of the British people. By the death of the then ruler of the Duchy of Saxe-Coburg in Germany, the Duke of Connaught found himself heir to the vacant throne. Without consulting assistation, he declined it. He was born a Briton and a Briton he would die.

HEAVY MORTALITY AMONG LAKE FISH

Discovery of reasons for deaths of fish is made extremely difficult, because investigators encounter "a multitude of causes all or most of which are closely inter-related." Little has been accomplished in the effort being made by experts to reduce the death rate of fish.

Wholesale deaths have recently occurred in some of the lakes but mass trouble is a recurrent condition and seems to be rather general for the lakes. There are differences, which may in turn be attributed directly or indirectly to many causes, such as the number of fish in the lake, food, supply temperature of the water, the physical and chemical conditions of the lakes, breeding grounds and season, age of the, parasites and mechanical injuries.

Investigations of this nature can not readily be isolated and attacked by themselves, as this nature can not accurate experimental methods, because of the multifarious inter-related conditions.

From the present standpoint of knowledge the loss of fish during the spring or early summer season seems to be inevitable and more or, less natural. Whether this can be avoided or be reduced, except in isolated cases, still remains a question. Little can be accomplished in most cases by investigating fish deaths in natural waters. Nevertheless, severe or unusual epidemics should be reported, so as to give some idea of the frequency of the deaths in different lakes, and to yield opportunities for such investigations of natural fish mortality, as can be made.

Mr Malcolm Corkill, of Napanee, who is specializing in animal biology at Queen's, is spending the summer grappling with this problem and inter-related ones among the lakes of northern Ontario.

FILM BATTLE OF MONS

The story of the Battle of Mons is likely, it is understood, to be made into a motion picture by Ontario Government cameramen, who are now in England arranging for the filming invasion of the French and Flemish battleground.

MODERN BUT LONELY

Joan was a "modern" and wanted to make her way in the city. She was mighty plucky and tried to conceal her loneliness. But parents seem to understand such things. They began to telephone to her regularly. The family kept in closer touch with her and Joan did not get lonely any more.

WHEN YOUR CHILD IS FEVERISH

Give Him Baby's Own Tablets

The health of babies and little children is subject to rapid changes. Thus the mother must be on her guard. At the first sign of feverishness Baby's Own Tablets should be given—this may avert a serious illness. Concerning Baby's Own Tablets, Mrs. Norman Lee, Uxbridge, Ont., says: "My little boy, now three years old, was

ANCIENT AND MODERN MAP MAKING

Herman Moll, whose name is known to all interested in the early maps of the world, was born in Holland and came to England in 1625. While in Holland he was trained in the art of map making and when he came to England he made individual maps of the cities of England and Scotland. A number of copies of his works are to be seen in the map room of the Dominion Archives and his maps and his early atlas, which was compiled between 1700 and 1720, are of unusual interest.

In an early map of North America, which is remarkably accurate for that early date, it is noted that he calls Florida Louisiana and other discrepancies are clearly depicted. In the same map he pictures California as an Island, a belief which was rampant at that date.

It is the pictures which accompany Moll's maps which have made them famous. They are valuable and have been copied for use as lampshades and even decorating rooms of houses. A view of the manner in which the fishing for, curing and drying of cod fish is made is one of the notable pictures of the guide. The verse is depicted as "How Round Lease" and is colored. Immediately it is seen that the habit of the fishermen is almost identical with the clothes they wore today, the long rubberboots and the short coat. Once again, I would not be without the Tablets as long as there are young children in the house."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers, or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

It is interesting for residents of Napanee, to know that one of their own former citizens, Mr Albert Close, is engaged in this unusual business today. Recently, he has completed a map of the fishing areas of the Atlantic coast. At present he is working in Scotland.

He is a brother of Miss Fannie Close, Big Creek.

CAN MAKE DRESSES SERVE ANOTHER YEAR

The styles, said the press reports to have been exhibited at the Winter exhibitions in Paris, are no noticeable departure from present styles in this country.

If women follow these fashions this Winter there is no reason to expect that the quantity of goods to be used in the manufacture of women's dresses will vary noticeably because of the change in the length of dresses

According to the press reports, sports dress remain unchanged, morning frocks are 12 inches from the floor, those for afternoon 8 inches and evening dresses are about ankle length

These styles are along the lines of the dictates of stylists during the spring exhibition and are not far removed from the present preference of Canadian women.

In addition to the distinguished visitors Ottawa society was invited as members of the Government.

Opening for the first time the residence of Canada's Governor General, the visitors from other points of the Empire, were effusive in their commendments of the beauties of the grounds of Rideau Hall.

Hon. R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister of Canada, and president of the Canadian Bar Association, was present, and Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Leader of the Opposition, was also among the guests. A number of members of the new cabinet were present including Senator G. D. Robertson, Hon. Maurice Dupre, Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Hon. Edgar Rhodes and others. Members of the diplomatic corps attended and altogether over 3,000 guests called at Rideau Hall.

MACE WAS ONCE WAR CLUB

Mace of First Upper Canada Legislature Taken Last to U. S. — Toronto Mayor Revived Use of Mace at Oxford

The other day a Labor M. P. in the British House of Commons laid profane hands upon that sacred symbol of authority, the mace. Almost to a man the House united in fierce denunciation of the action, and while with anger his own leader, Ramsay MacDonald, the Socialist Prime Minister, rose and moved for the offender's suspension. - This scene, said to have been the worst witnessed in the Mother of Parliaments in 300 years, has aroused much interest in the press of the United States where maces are unknown in the legislatures.

Plaything Made by Cromwell

Considering, editorially, the New York World remarks, however, that the United States has borrowed much in both form and substance from the British Parliament. It is true that the late President Roosevelt's custom of Speaker Nicholas Longworth, Speaker of the House of Representatives, uses a gavel instead of a mace. But it is also true that the title of his office harks back to Plantagenet days in England when the Commons chose a mag to speak for them to the King. The American sergeant-at -arms is a rather distinguished gentleman with duties corresponding to those of his, perhaps, more stately counterpart in the British countries. Congress takes dozens of precedent from Parliament. In this connection it is odd to reflect that the Governor of Massachusetts alone of all American State governors, is entitled to be addressed as "Your Excellency"—a hang-over from the days when George III's writ ran in New England.

Toronto Mace In U. S. A.

Though the United States has no maces in actual use, it cherishes several which were symbols of authority in legislatures of the great republic when Britain still ruled that land. The maces in question are of silver, one of which, dating from 1753, once lay upon the table of the House of Burgesses in old Virginia. Its mate, made in 1756, now reposes in a museum of South Carolina, in which state it was a real symbol of power until the Revolution. Still another mace in the United States is one which used to lie upon the table of the Legislative Assembly in York (Toronto), in the far off days when Speakers in Canada still wore ceremonial wigs. Both mace and wig were carried off as loot by the American invaders after the capture of Toronto in 1813. Both trophies may be seen in war museum at Annapolis, Maryland.

Maces Were War Clubs

Maces were at first, needless to say, merely strong clubs capable of breaking through thick armour. They were plain staffs, headed with flanged iron, a spiked ball or other ugly implement and often provided at the wrist with a thong similar to that used in the plebeian black-jack, to secure it to the wielder. Knights used maces to batter down their opponents. Ecclesiastics who were allowed to wear armour and to fight from horseback, but forbidden to shed blood, found maces most useful in battle. Bishop Odo of Bayeux, who came to England with the Conqueror, is depicted in the priceless contemporary Bayeux Tapestry as using a mace at the battle of Hastings.

The King's Sergeants

The earliest ceremonial maces, as they afterwards became, seem to have been carried by the sergeant-at-arms who formed the bodyguard of King Philip II of France. Richard I probably introduced them in England, in the 14th century a tendency toward decorating maces enriched with precious metals was noticeable, and after some objection in Parliament by the King's sergeants, who formed a monopoly of showy maces, the sergeants of York City corporation were granted the right in 1396. Other cities followed and by the 16th century, silver maces were numerous in England. By the beginning of the Tudor period the ugly death-dealing flanges began to disappear and the ceremonial maces to become purely ornamental.

Britain's Mace From 1649

The mace in the Commons and Senate at Ottawa and those in the Canadian provincial legislatures are patterned much after the mace in the British Commons which was lately treated with disrespect. The present British mace is not the "bauble" which Cromwell told them to "take away," but a staff, dating from 1649, was made when England was under the Cromwellian protectorate. At the Restoration the staff was given a set of its royal trimmings and equipped with kingly symbols. The mace as in Britain the mace is the emblem of the Speaker's authority as servant of the House, and is removed from its pegs on the table when the Speaker leaves the chair and the House goes into committee, or when the session is suspended. The massive mace with its crowned globe, the Speaker to the chair. The procession of the Speaker is a picturesque feature in all British legislatures, including Queen's Park.

Toronto Boy's Oxford Mace

In bygone times the mayors of Toronto were cocked hats, knee breeches and swords, and in times less remote, robes and chains of office, but maces never seem to have been part of the regalia. Some ecclesiastics, university chancellors and magistrates in Britain still use the medieval relics, however The Lord Mayor of London has a mace of gold and crystal and set with pearls. The head dates from the 15th century and the stem and mounts of the shaft are early medieval. The Mayor City of Oxford has six silver maces, one or more of which are carried before the mayor of mayoral appurtenances accumulated during the centuries. That reminds us that in 1925 a Mayor of Toronto man who became mayor of Oxford dug out one of the silver maces and had it carried before him as he went to church—an ancient custom which his predecessors had forgotten. Mayor Graves the Rev. John Carter, who had been educated at Upper Canada College and Trinity College, Toronto. His revival of ancient rites furnished the London papers with considerable copy.

Soft corns and warts are ugly, painful and irritating, Holloway's Corn Cure surely and surely with Douglas' Egyptian Liniment.

FASCINATING LINKS IN CANADA'S HISTORY

Original letters of the United Empire Loyalists and the banner of the Nova Scotia Loyalists has recently been acquired by the Dominion Archives and is a distinct asset to the splendid collection which they have of the early life. of the pioneers of Canada.

The letters were all written in 1789 and are by W. Sabatier to Governor Wentworth, on the subject of the Memorial; a letter with signatures to the agent in London and a letter of R. J. Uniacke, Speaker of the House of the Assembly, N.S., regarding the memorial.

The Memorial itself, is an interesting document and parts of it follow:

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty;

The Lords Spiritual and Temporal and Commons of Great Britain, in Parliament assembled:—

"The memorial of subjects of His Majesty's loyal American subjects, on behalf of themselves and others settled in the province of Nova Scotia, who have not hitherto received compensation from the county of government for their losses, either of property or profeslons, most humbly sheweth;

That your memorialists are distress American Loyalists most of whom have born arms during the late war in support of the British Government and all of them manifested their firm attachment to the crown of Great Britain on a variety of occons.

"That in consequence of their firm and uniform adherence to the cause of their sovereign they have been forced to relinquish property and profeslons in the colonies, all of which were ample competent to their support and take refuge in the Provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Canada, where they now reside."

The letter goes on to state that some of the men who are urgently in need of assistance were unable to forward their cases in the time limit which was set by the government and made this special appeal for consideration.

They explained that their wants were not unreasonable; they "wanted enough to enable them to cultivate lands, restore them and their families to comfortable subetance."

A picture which has become famous and of great value is the one of the beavers making their dams by striving to turn the course of the Niagara Falls and form a lake. Very few people know that the original drawing was made in 1700, by Herman Moll, who had drawn a map of the New England States, and Newfoundland, and the picture accompanies it. A copy may be seen in the map room of the Dominion Archives.

The inscription reads: "A view of y industry of y beavers, of Canada, in making a dam to stop y course of a rivulet (Niagara R.Ib), in order to form a great lake about which they build their habitations. They fell large trees with their teeth in such a manner as to make them come across y river to lay y foundation for y dam. They make mortar work up and finish y whole with great order and wonderful dexterity. The beavers have two doors to their houses, one to the water and one to the land side."

The map and picture are dedicated to Hon. Walter Douglass, Esq., constitutional captain general and chief governor of all y Leeward Ilands in America, by her late Majesty, Queen Anne, in y year 1711.

THE REASON WHY

Thin, Weak Children Need Baby's Own Tablets

Malnutrition, or inability to derive nourishment from food, is a common trouble with little children and is entirely due to stomach and bowel disorders. Another cause of loss of flesh and sleep is worms.

To correct stomach and bowel troubles and thus banish constipation and indigestion, break up colds and simple fevers; expel worms and allay the pain which accompanies the cutting of teeth, is what Baby's Own Tablets were designed for. They never fail to be of aid and can be given with safety to the youngest babe.

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

POWER DEVELOPMENT MAY HURT FISHERIES

Joint investigation by Canada and the United States to determine the effect on the fisheries of Passamaquoddy and Cobscook Bays, of the proposed development in that region will begin as soon as the Dominion Government is ready to proceed

It is proposed to develop electric power by the tides in these bays where there are fisheries of importance to both countries. In the year 1928 the catch was vauled at $5,800,000.

The investigation was proposed last year by the Dominion Government and a joint resolution of the Congress of the United States early half the expenses was approved.

RAILWAY ADOPT REDUCED RATES TO AID FARMERS

A radical program to aid farmers in territories where the industry is seriously depressed, has been made effective in immediate halfrates upon freight movement of agricultural commodities and livestock in the drought-stricken regions north of the Ohio River and east of the Mississippi. The announcement followed a conference between President Hoover and railroad officials, including Col. Alfred P. Thom, general counsel for the Association of Railway executives.

It was stated orally at the White House, in behalf of the President, that the reductions from the partially reduced rates in effect on agricultural commodities or livestock in other section of the country will report such reduction to his county agents and the latter will then approve the application to the local railway agent.

The arrangement has been worked out, it was said, to avoid any freight rate reductions where speculation is involved.

MR. AND MRS. TUSKEY HOST AT BIRTHDAY DINNER

Visit Their Son Claude at Walkerville Who Is Superintendent of the Orchard There

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Tuskey, Sr., of Wellington have returned home after spending two weeks with their son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Claude B. Tuskey of Walkerville. They also visited friends in Leamington, Sandwich, Windsor and Detroit. They enjoyed motoring over the wonderful Ambassador Bridge linking the great city of Detroit with the Canadian shore. This bridge was erected as a cost upwards of twenty-two and half millions of dollars. Its length is one and seven eighths miles and can accomodate as many as five thousand cars per hour as well as handling a bus service and providing a walk for pedestrians. The bridge is 152 feet above the Detroit River and from it one gets a splendid view over the cities below. Mr. and Mrs. Tuskey enjoyed motor trips almost every afternoon and evening to the many beauty spots nearby Walkerville.

Mr. Claude Tuskey is the manager of the Hiram Walker & Sons apple orchard. In the orchard are some peach and plum trees and smaller fruits but the majority of the trees are apple trees. This orchard consists of a hundred acres. Mr. Tuskey is very much interested in this work. In apple-picking time he employs from 90 to 100 men. In the spring and winter when weather permits these men are employed in pruning and spraying. Mr. Tuskey intends planting about forty more acres of a variety of fruit trees. He has Mr. Walter Stubbs engaged as foreman. — Picton Gazette.

How To Stop Food Souring In Stomach

Avoid Gas and Indigestion

It is gas, formed by fermenting food that after meals bloats your stomach, causing headaches, heartburn, dizziness, uncomfortable fullness and indigestion. Drugs, stomach tonics and pellets only relieve a little and give satisfactory relief because they take away or no effect on the stomach acids that have the United Church, Napanee. The cause of sour stomach and practically all indigestion. There is absolutely pure anti-acid or neutralizing agent that may be used after meals to neutralize this acidity and make it harmless, and that wonderfully nothing could be better than Magnesia. Simply take a teaspoonful or tablet after meals in a little water and you will feel fine. Be sure you get genuine Bisurated Magnesia. It comes in tablet form and is sold by druggists in 25c packages. Its use is not a cure-all, but it is the most effective way to correct sour stomach and indigestion.

BREAD PROCLAIMED MOST PERFECT FOOD

No food which is singly capable of thoroughly satisfying the body's needs of sustenance exists, but good bread, made of whole grain, probably comes the nearest of all food articles to providing a balanced food diet of satisfactory bulk.

It is a common fallacy in many minds that there exists somewhere in the world an ideal food—some one material that will satisfy all the needs of the body and that could this material be found we would be able to save much of the thought and expense of arranging our meals and be freed from the danger of eating the wrong kind of food.

Careful studies of food substances and their effects upon the human body, however, have taught us that there are few substances that contain the proteins of protein and fuel foods necessary to meet our needs. A study of the composition of various foods soon discloses a number of important facts bearing upon this pursuit of the ideal food.

It, for instance, you eat enough beef to satisfy the protein needs of the body and get nothing else, you will have an insufficient supply of fuel. If you eat enough beef to supply the fuel needs of the body you will take in too much protein. On the other hand, if you try to live on fruit, you will have to eat a quantity of 35 pounds of apples to supply the necessary protein whereas 9 pounds would supply sufficient energy, but there would be a shortage of protein. Baked potatoes, boiled corn, almonds and bread approach a balanced diet, but even these fall far short. Potatoes and corn alone would have to be consumed in large quantities to meet the needs.

Taken by itself, good bread comes closest to furnishing a balanced food diet of satisfactory bulk. With it is included a variety of flour preparations such as macaroni, biscuits, Wemac rolls and crackers, but to live and live on these alone would be manifestly absurd.

To meet the dietary requirements of the body it is necessary to combine high protein foods with low protein foods in such proportions as will furnish bulk, the proper nutritive ratio and will, at the same time, suit the taste. Protein foods are mostly of animal origin and fuels, fats and starches are mostly of vegetable origin. A balanced diet is one that contains both proteins, fats, starches, salts and bulk. Bread, therefore, is to contain materials of both animal and vegetable origin.

CANADIAN NATIONAL HIGH SPOTS AT C.N.E.

IMAGINE a glorious portion of the Canadian Rockies! Imagine a part of the heaven of Mother Earth, and of a great mountain reaching down into one of the Canadian National Exhibition's West Indies' fleet and standing a group of fourteen calpies, then you have an idea of this year's exhibit of the Canadian National Railways at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Jasper National Park is one of the two features of the exhibit. In a 50-foot long panorama of the mountains, a mother bear and her cubs go frolicking in the forest, deer are made to scamper through the brush and the mighty Athabasca river sings a rippling song of contentment.

Marvellous effects are obtained by the use of colored lights. Beginning with the faint light of dawn, the sky changes to the beautiful hues of sunrise and slowly dusk comes and moving clouds are painted with reds and blues to give an excellent idea of the sunsets for which the mountains are noted.

In another part of the railways' building, visitors walk the gang plank and over the side into the "Lady Nelson", flagship of the West Indies fleet. Inside the white hull, is a portion of the main lobby and, directly opposite, the purser's office. A uniformed officer is ready behind the grille and he has an efficient staff of six stewards waiting to initiate the visitor into the ship's mysteries. Leading off the lobby are rooms, exact replicas of those on board the "Lady" ships, all showing the various types of accommodation.

CANADIAN LEGENDS AND SONGS GATHERED

It has been said by poets, writers and artists that Canada cannot be written or painted as the Dominion has neither atmosphere nor background. Those points are undoubtedly refuted by Miss Helen Creighton, of Halifax, who this week addressed the meeting of the Ottawa Women's Press Club and told a few of her experiences in gathering legends and folk-lore songs in the Maritime provinces.

Miss Creighton said that when she first thought of the work which she had undertaken she was dismayed. It seemed almost impossible to obtain folk songs which had been brought over by the Scotch and the Irish in this day, when no record had been kept at all. The success which she has achieved is remarkable, for at the present time she has unearthed the words and music for over one hundred songs and has not nearly exhausted her contributors. Some of the old songs are 50 or 60 verses long and she spoke in admiring terms of the retentive memory which some of the fishers folk possess. Some of her gems were obtained on Devil's Island which is situated at the mouth of the Halifax Harbor, and she related a few of the legends concerning witches and ghosts which prevail in that locality.

BRITISH MIGRATION TO CANADA LARGER

There was a substantial increase in the migration from Great Britain and Northern Ireland to Canada last year, according to a statement compiled by the Oversea Settlement Committee of Great Britain.

The Committee ascribes the growth to the beneficial effect of the special ocean rate to Canada, for British migrants, which was introduced at the beginning of 1928. Last year 44,558 British migrants came to Canada, as contrasted with 46,709 in 1929, a gain of 43 per cent.

The scheme for the settlement of 3,000 families of migrants on farms in Canada, which came into operation in 1926 was completed during 1929. Of the 2,226 families who sailed under the scheme, there were 2,706 families on farms at the end of 1929. Of the 561 families who have withdrawn from the scheme, 183 are still in agricultural employment and 264 are engaged in other work.

It is claimed that this scheme has been, without doubt, the most successful large-scale enterprise as yet arranged under the empire settling act.

150 HISTORIC SITES MARKED IN CANADA BY FEDERAL ORGANIZATION

The Department of the Interior announces that since the year 1919, when the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada was instituted, the Department of the Interior through its National Parks Service has marked, by the erection of suitable memorials, 150 sites appertaining to the history of the Dominion. From time to time, among the various sites acquired, are those of Fort Wellington at Prescott, Ontario; Fort Chambly at Chambly, P.Q., and Fort Lennox, near St. John's, P. Q., on which are situated interesting structures erected by the French and English for defensive purposes along the Richelieu and St. Lawrence rivers. Considerable restoration and improvement work has been carried out at these sites and today they are visited by streams of tourists. It is the intention of the Department of the Interior ultimately to mark throughout Canada all those sites that have a distinct bearing on the history of the Dominion.

During the last year, among the number of monuments unveiled was one erected on the site of Fort Pork, near Peace River, Alberta, from which Sir Alexander Mackenzie set out on May 9th, 1793, on his quest for the western sea, which resulted in the first crossing of the continent of North America.

The following are among the most outstanding sites or events selected at the annual meeting for preservation and commemoration:—

St. Peter's Canal, N. S. — This canal connects St. Peter's Bay with Bras d'Or Lake, thereby shortening the distance to the eastern coast of Cape Breton. It was first surveyed in 1825, and completed in 1869.

At Bridgeton, N.S. — Site of the engagement at Bloody Creek in 1757, during the Seven Years' War.

Temiscouata Portage, at Cabano, P. Q. — Here is terminal of the Lake Temiscouata and most difficult portage in the overland route between Acadia and Quebec. Over it the New Brunswick Regiment made its famous march in the winter of 1813, to aid in the defence of the Canadas.

Southwold Earthworks, near St. Thomas, Ont. — This is a typical example of a double-walled aboriginal fort. Its antiquity and origin remain unknown.

New Brantford, Ont. — A tablet to commemorate the loyal services of the six Mohawk Indians to the British Empire in the Seven Years War, the War of the American Revolution, and in the defence of Upper Canada in 1812-14.

Fort Mississauga, Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont. — A tablet will be placed on this fort which was built as a military labour in 1814 for the defence of the Niagara frontier. It was used as a military post until 1845.

Starting Point of the First Dominion Lands Survey, near Winnipeg. — To mark the site of the first survey monument erected in 1871 in connection with the establishment of the survey of Dominion Lands.

Churchill, Manitoba. — To mark the site of the fort built in 1689, then the most northerly post of the Hudson's Bay Company, and the starting point of numerous Arctic explorations organized by the company.

Fort Chipewyan, Alberta. — To commemorate the voyage of Sir Alexander Mackenzie in 1788, from Fort Chipewyan on Lake Athabasca, westward to the Arctic Ocean, and the discovery of the Mackenzie River.

Yukon Gold Discovery, Dawson City. —To perpetuate the memory of the indomitable prospectors who paved the way to the discovery in 1896 of the rich gold fields of the Yukon.

Old Gent:- Now, can you give me a good reason why I should give you a nickel?

Small Boy: I sure can. If I was an old gentleman with a nice new pipe hat on and there was a lot of nice black mud handy, and a kid asked me for a nickel, I wouldn't start no argument.

NOW THISTLE EXPERIMENTS GIVE INTERESTING RESULTS

As a result of experiments with Sow Thistle, carried on by the Department of Agriculture on the farm of W. D. Hyslop, Bath, July 1, plowing at once through some good cultivation seems to be the most practical method of controlling Sow Thistle. Late sown Barley and a double crop of Buckwheat are also giving satisfactory results when the growing season is suitable.

The experiments were conducted in a field so badly infested with Sow Thistle that the 1929 crop of mixed grain was a failure, yielding only 15 bushels per acre.

Plot 1 was plowed October 26th, 1929 and sown to Barley June 1st, 1930. This crop came along very nicely and gave evidence of a very satisfactory yield.

Plot 2 was disked in August and plowed in October, and was sown to Buckwheat on May 8th. This crop was plowed down the middle of June and resown to Buckwheat the first week of June.

Plot 3 was disked in August of last year, plowed in October and sown to mixed grain and seeded down on May 8th.

Plot 4 was plowed in July, allowed to dry out, three weeks and worked the remainder of the Fall. Mixed grain was sown on May 8th.

One acre in each plot was fertilized with a 2-12-6 mixture tat the rate of 375 pounds per acre.

Results

The fertilized areas showed a marked increase in stand over unfertilized areas. Fertilized plots would appear to yield from 5 to 10 bushels per acre more than the unfertilized portions.

Sow Thistle is still present in all four plots but very little of it in plots 1, 3 and 4 developed sufficiently to bloom.

Plot 4 will yield a heavy crop of at least 40 bushels per acre, with very little of the Thistle getting above the grain. Plot 3 yielded only a fair crop of perhaps 35 bushels per acre with a considerable amount of Sow Thistle blooms.

Plot 2 with the late sown Buckwheat by actual count had the smallest number of Sow Thistle plants to the square yard of any of the four plots.

Plot 1, sown late, will yield a good crop of barley, providing weather conditions are favourable.

An enthusiastic evening meeting of some 60 farmers was held on Mr. Hyslop's farm, on Friday, August 8th. Mr. C. D. Graham, Agricultural Representative for Perth County, acted as chairman. Mr. J. A. Carroll, Director of the Crops and Markets Branch, Toronto, outlined the experiments and pointed out the results that had been obtained. Dr. D. E. Stone, of the Botany Department, O. A. C., Guelph, discussed general principals in killing weeds. In answer to enquiries with regard to Chemical Weed Killers, Dr. Stone outlined several experiments that had been conducted He summarized up the results by saying that Chemical Weed Killers would play an important part in Ontario Agriculture, but up to the present, with certain weather conditions, there appeared to be a toxic after effect with some of the chemicals. This is injurious to the succeeding crop. Mr. H. G. Bell, of the Chemistry Department, O. A. C., Guelph, outlined the use of fertilizer on farm crops and pointed out how fertilizers assisted in weed control, by giving the grain crop a quick start in the Spring and thereby enabling it to keep ahead of the weeds.

Mr. Hyslop states that every day all through the growing season, people interested in the progress of the experiments have stopped to inspect the field

These experiments have been carried on through the co-operation of the Crops Co-operation and Markets Branch, Toronto, the Agricultural Representative at Perth, and the Department of Botany and Chemistry at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

WAS RUN DOWN AND VERY WEAK

Too Little Blood the Trouble

Mrs. Jas. A. Haughn, Bridgewater, N. S., writes: "I was badly run down and very weak. So much so I could scarcely do my housework. My nerves were affected; my digestion poor; I had continual headaches and could not get a restful night's sleep. Different remedies failed to be of benefit and I was growing discouraged. One day, however, I saw an advertisement of a special medicine in mine which had been relieved by Dr. William's Pink Pills, so I decided to try them. A few weeks' use of the Pills fully restored my health and now my household duties are a pleasure instead of a torment."

Mrs. Haughn's whole trouble was that the blood was too thin. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were of aid to her because they renewed and purified her blood. Any good blood action promoted good health, for where good blood abounds disease cannot exist.

You can get Pink Pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Bushes Sometimes Only Makes Growth on Islands.

The only native growth on the islands of Bermuda is the juniper Bermudiana, often mistaken and usually referred out to visitors as cedar trees. All other trees has been imported from the tropics, Australia, and other countries.

Each season of the year presents a gorgeous pageant of floral beauty. The brilliant flaming scarlet of the poinsettia intrigues the northerner at Christmas time, with the tiny pressed red and yellow flowers, surrounded by a whirl of large leaf-like flaming scarlet bracts (which the novice invariably calls the petals of the flower) from ten to sixteen inches in length. Double poinsettias, seldom seen elsewhere, bloom prolifically as well on these coral islands.

Glorious hibiscus rivals the poinsettia for favor. Less passionate 'tis true, but equally deserving of homage. Dense hedges line foot paths, the throaty, luscious, individual blooms measure from four to six inches in diameter. Their meeting beauty lasts but for a day. The cycle of life — birth, maturity and decay manifests almost unceasingly throughout the entire year, hence a continuity of bloom is assured.

Seductive oleanders, faintly perfumed, make a very rapid growth often attaining a height of twenty feet, hedge off farm lands. Happy, harmonious colorings of rose, white and reds, flaunt their waxy beauty in spring time.

Azalyphs, commonly known as "match-me-if-you-can," fascinate the transient, by its provocative teasing peculiarities. Dense hedges, yet no two leafs are alike. Green to be sure they are, but each leaf is a different shape and each bears on its outer edge a tracing of deep rose, which in the distance tends to metamorphose in autumal coloring the landscape.

Driving through the various parishes one is prone to stop and revel in some flower decked vista. Rivaling the blue of the sea, the humble northern convolulus catches the eye. Ever scampering, clinging up and over trees, spilling over stone walls, peering out of crannied crevices with a sophisticated nonchalance utterly disconcerting. To enumerate individually or collectively, the other flowers that bloom on shrubs, trees, gardens and wayside, would mean another story.

Masterpieces blue birds are legion on the islands. The saucy scarlet cardinals of lilting song, flash from their hiding places and your forth symphonies of love at mating time. Ornithologists tell of over one hundred species of bird life. True, many are migratory, but enough remain to arouse the interest of all lovers of the feathered kingdom.

DEER AND WILD PIGS.

New Zealand Government Sends Out Hunters to Thin Them Out.

Deer and wild pigs, introduced in New Zealand to provide sport for hunters, have proved a countryside pest. In no part of the world is there much thrilling deer-stalking as in New Zealand, but there are not enough sportsmen. The animals, secure in their forest fastnesses, have multiplied so rapidly that the Government has sent out official hunting parties to thin the herds.

One party spent three months in the Lilburn Valley, shooting a magnificent red deer, the hides of which were exported at a dollar apiece.

In another region — Canterbury — where, in some of the finest sheep country in the world, the depredations of the fallow deer were so serious that the government took active measures, and within three weeks an official party had bagged 500. It is pig-sticking were a popular sport here—which it is not—the scope would be unlimited. So destructive are the wild pigs that the Government pays 25 cents for every snout that is delivered to its depots.

Museum of Antiques.

I heard of an amusing side-show held at a garden fete recently, writes Looker-on in the London Daily Chronicle. It was called a Museum of Antiques, but the nature of the exhibits may be guessed from the following specimens: A gigantic safety-pin, four inches long, which in the '90's held blouse and skirt from parting company; dangerous-looking dancers, over a foot long, labelled 1840; gits of 1909; a length of braid one edge of which appeared frayed, but case similar to mine which had been relieved by Dr. William's Pink Pills, so I decided to try them. A few weeks' use of the Pills fully restored my health and now my household duties are a pleasure instead of a torment."

Mrs. Haughn's whole trouble was that the blood was too thin. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were of aid to her because they renewed and purified her blood. Any good blood action promoted good health, for where good blood abounds disease cannot exist.

You can get Pink Pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HEAVY DECLINE IN CONSTRUCTION WORK IN 1930

The aggregate value of building permits issued by 61 cities in Canada, during the first half of the present year, was approximately 33 per cent less than the value registered for the corresponding period of 1929. The statement of the Department of Commerce follows:

Aggregate value of building permits was lower for the first half of the present year by $41,396,242 than in 1929. The total for the first six months of 1930, however, was more than 7 per cent. above the six month's average of, $77,467,883 recorded in the 10 years, 1920-1930.

Moreover the average index number of wholesale prices of building materials has been lower this year than in most of the years since 1920. All provinces, except Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick reported smaller aggregates of building permits issued under the period under review than in the first six months of last year. The New Brunswick total for the elapsed months of 1930 was the highest in the 11 years' record.

"Of the declines elsewhere indicated, that of $17,276,172 or 53 per cent, in the cities of the province of Quebec was the most pronounced. The total value of permits issued during the first six months of the present year by the four largest cities, i.e. Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver, amounted to $60,894,981. This was more than 46 per cent lower than in the same months of last year and about 17 per cent less than in 1929. With these two exceptions, however, the building authorized considerably exceeded the aggregate for any other year of the record, in most of which the building material cost was higher.

Our Tacte Critic— The trouble with love at first sight very often is second sight.—(Lindsay Post.)

"Little Alice had a very bad cold. Holding up a rose to her mother's nose, she asked:

"Does it smell sweet, Mummy?"

"Yes, dear," said Mummy, sadly.

"Can't you smell it yourself?"

Alice shook her head solemnly.

"No, she said, "my nose is dead."

NAIL DAY

(By Roger Dataller)

There was no escaping such a pair of hands as Luther Witherby owned, particularly in the line of outstretched fingers that confronted one on "nail days" in the underground office of Bullock No. 2 Colliery. Here, for rough roadway purpose, thick, squat nails were handed out—a fistful a man and not a nail more. That was the reason, limited, undevisting. And for little less than an hour one stood beside the bag, dispensing the clinking treasure more conscious of the hungry faces than of the hands. Hands wavering nervously, hands maltreated with grim insistence, hands of dark conquistadors, hands bony, hands fleshy, scarred with blue incidence, circled by the forlorn gold of wedding rings and fingers incomplete —some merely minus the tip, others dummy appendages. The fingers closed upon their portion of nails and fell away, making place for other fingers.

Yet, even in so varied an assembly the hands of Luther Witherby were sufficiently notable. Slim and almighty with a delicate tapering of fingers that would have appealed frail and delicate had not a deep bronze colouring—surely that of health?—lent comfort. And the first encounter I glanced up with some surprise into his finely lean, clean-drawn face set off with dull black eyes and a long nose almost encroaching upon his full, red lips. What was the purpose of this fellow in the dusty underground chambers of Bullock No. 2? He at turned my inquiry with a look that was secret, ironical, and slid the nails very carefully into the inside pocket of his jacket. As he passed through the doorway I could see that the grace of his fingers was not sufficiently peculiar to the rest of his figure. He strode gawkily with one shoulder higher than the other. Who was he?

I received my answer two days later when he appeared wazen pale, leaning heavily upon the shoulder of a little collier. "Slit thee down 'ere," said the man easing him to the form. " 'E's slipped over a rail an' knocked 'is knee fer one thing an' cracked 'is head for another. Tek a report, will ye?"

The injured one glanced at me darkly enough. I inquired his name. He pressed his lips together in attitude of refusal. At last the information came between his closely clenched teeth. Age? Again he closed his lips. Pain apart, his eyes flashed resentment. "Twenty-nine," he conceded. Married? "No, thank God!" he burst out vehemently, adding that this was the second time in the year that calamity had overtaken him. "It's like a curse on me," he vociferated. "What else can there be to it? Look at this," and he held his right arm to the light. "I broke this nine months ago— the old lad knows how. Slipped down in the street—last as I did this morning. That's why I'm working down a coalpit—I used to play the violin, you see.....for money." He smiled ironically. "And now this.... "He rose to his feet swaying slightly. "No-no-no-no-no," as the collier approached him, "get away, man. I'll go on myself. I'll manage all right.... " "It's a bitter one?" remarked the collier when he returned. "'Ez from London. Used to work i' the pit afore 'e went up there."

So that was it. The graceful fingers had drooped above the bowstrings, and with accomplishment had lifted in a tumult of applause? Then the broken arm — and a scene more dimly illuminated, a succession of mental jobbery galling and confounding.

One day, perhaps a month later, chance led me into his lodging-house. It was a tiny farmstead of sorts, the haunt of a poverty-stricken small-holder. As I sauntered beside the unkempt hawthorn of the garden edge I found myself greeted by a succession of extremely discordant notes, evidently proceeding from the gloomy hollow of the tumbledown barn. Soon one was playing a violin, and playing badly at that. As the harsh notes neared and squeaked across the forsaken farmyard a great collie leapt to the full length of its chain, barking furiously. Immediately the music ceased and Luther Witherby appeared, as the crazy half-door of the barn with a vigorous, "Be quiet, sir! Do you hear?" A violin was tucked beneath his chin, and with the bow he was making threatening cuts towards the animal. When he saw me he drew back instanter, and as I passed on in the silence of that barren environment, I could feel that he was watching me from some point of vantage in his tumbledown fastness. It was not until I reached the end of the lane that the whole significance of this little happening flashed across my mind. And I realised what I should have recognised immediately — that Luther Witherby was relearning to play his instrument, for the bow had certainly been brandished like a fiddle bow in his left hand.

Yet afterwards, as week by week he took his place within the nail queue, a hard defensive light flashed in his eyes. Why? Of what was he afraid? Of some important inquiry? Or had I heard and seen too much? Whatever his purpose, his lips were sealed. He did not — a fellow had seen it in the paper, he said, and the news had drifted to the — Yes, Luther was to play in the church and the light grew clearer as I called to mind his figure by the half-door of the barn. When that day came he would away the shift, and steadied off to his appointment by an early train. What happened at the concert we did not know. There was a chance, said some, that this would prove the turning-point in Luther's striving. He would be meeting influential musicians — we should see.

Next day was "nail day," a line of questing hands and a clutching of nails to dark grey bosoms. The slim hand of Luther were noticeably absent. Was this to be an off day also? At last his long fingers were thrust into view, and there he stood, gazing enigmatically at the glittering contents of the bag. "What luck yesterday?" I asked.

"In the playing?" he countered. "Yes, in the playing," said I.

"Fair," he said, "fair—I think."

As I dropped the nails into his palm he shifted his hand slightly and half a dozen jingled to the floor. He kicked them lightly with his foot. "Never mind," I said, thrusting my hand into the bag again.

He smiled as he turned. "I'm not minding," he replied, and without waiting further he raised his fingers in what might have been an ironical token of blessing. And as I watched him go I knew that Luther Witherby had made his final gesture in the "nail days" of Bullock No. 2.

OBITUARY

ALEXANDRINA A. SEALS

In the death at Napanee, on the 14th of July last, the church and community lost one of its most faithful members, a severe loss. Connected with the church for something like 60 years, she was ever a most loyal, faithful and devoted member, and could be counted on for her attendance at Divine worship. For a period of thirty years she was a member of the choir. In the work of the Women's Auxiliary, she took a keen interest and an active part. The large gathering at her funeral, and the beautiful floral offerings that rested on the casket, bore silent testimony to the affection and esteem in which she was universally held.

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord; yea saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labours; and their works do follow them."

OBITUARY

MRS. CHARLES M. CHAMBERS

There passed away at Anderson on August 19th, 1930, aged 86 years, 4 months and 20 days, one of North Fredericksburgh's most highly respected citizens in the person of Mrs. Chas. M. Chambers, who before her marriage was Huldah Parks. Her husband predeceased her thirty years ago.

While in failing health for many months, and in spite of the best of loving care and medical treatment, the end came with suddenness.

The late Mrs. Chambers was a lovable and cheerful character, having gained many friends. She was a faithful member of the Anderson Church for many years, and though hard of hearing she enjoyed going to church. She was especially fond of reading her Bible. The funeral was held at Anderson Church on Wednesday afternoon, August 20th, the services being conducted by her pastor, the Rev. Mr. Beckel, after which the remains were laid to rest in the Riverside Cemetery beside her husband.

She leaves to mourn her loss, one daughter, Mrs. Eva A. Burgess, of Florida and one son, Philip H., in California; her son, George S. pre-deceased her nearly twelve years ago. A brother, Draper, and a daughter, Mrs. Leatham, died many years ago. She also leaves her daughter-in-law, Mrs. George S. Chambers, who so tenderly cared for her so many years in her old age, and her four grandchildren, with whom she lived: Fred M., Herbert D., and Laura M. Chambers, R.N.; also Mrs. W. A. Hough, of Belleville, deceased besides a number of brothers and sisters and great grand-children and great great grand-children.

REFRIGERATION PLAYS BIG PART IN BUILDING UP FISHING INDUSTRY

The fishing industry is meeting the problem of hot weather by increasing the use of refrigerating apparatus, both on the fishing vessels and at the landing wharves. Fish freezing on the Atlantic coast has not reached the advanced stage that it has on the Pacific Coast, but is being gradually improved. There is not as large fishing company that does not enjoy freezing methods now since competition is spreading and the only method of keeping the large quantities of fish that are landed is to freeze them. This is necessary for preservation. With the proper methods applied, fish frozen for a period of from six to eight months, are still edible.

The method of freezing, known as quick freezing, is much preferable to the slow freezing method for the latter takes more of the taste of the fish away by the length of time taken.

Modern vessels and companies are said to be adopting the system whereby the fish are kept at a temperature of 32 degrees which does not detract from the taste.

A set of rules has been outlined for use in selecting fish, and if these suggestions are followed there is very little chance that any bad fish will be bought. Do not buy fish whose eyes are cloudy and have lost their lustre. The eyes of fresh fish are bright and shining. Do not buy fish whose skins are wrinkled. Do not buy fish whose scales are dry and can be loosened easily with the fingers. Do not buy fish when the blubber shows. Do not buy fish whose gills are a pale red. Fresh fish have bright, red gills. Be sure, also in this respect, that the gills of fresh fish have not been painted with chemicals to prevent the paling of this brilliant red coloration. Do not buy soft fish. If after pressing a fish, the prints of your finger remain, refuse absolutely to buy that fish.

News and Information For the Farmer

Farmers who wish to obtain selected seed for co-operative experiments with varieties of corn, winter wheat, soya bean and other autumn-sown crops may obtain this material, free of charge, by writing the Department of Field Husbandry, Ontario Agricultural College.

Royal Party For Girls

In recognition of the splendid work being done by girls throughout Ontario in the study of housing, clothing and nutrition problems, the department is offering free trips to the Royal Winter Fair next November to five farm girls from each of the counties which have taken advantage of the instruction conducted in household science judging by the Women's Institute branch. On their arrival in Toronto the girls will be chaperoned in groups by staff instructors. A splendid programme including visits to some of the industrial plants and business women are particular interest to girls from the country, is now in course of preparation by the department which is also providing transportation for the party. The plan is supplemental to the "Royal 500" Party for farm boys which has been conducted so successfully during the past few years.

Autumn Sown Crops

As a foreword to a review of experiments with autumn sown crops at O. A. C., W. J. Squirrell, professor of field husbandry, says: "Extremely dry weather during the latter part of August and the month of September was responsible for considerable decrease in the area of winter wheat sown in Ontario in 1929. While fall plowing, although uneven in some districts, seems to have been about average for the province. Growing conditions since early spring have been excellent, and winter crops were harvested under exceptionally good conditions. Very light damage was caused this year by other factors than drought. Hardly more than usual, however, was occasioned by the presence of barren spikelets in the heads of winter wheat. Yield and quality of autumn sown crops in the experiments at the college, were very good in the crop harvested in 1930. Yields per acre in the variety tests of winter wheat were greater than for several years."

Buy Home-Grown Products

Announcement has been made by Premier Ferguson that the Government will launch an extensive educational campaign to encourage the buying and eating of Canadian products in Ontario. Radio broadcasting and newspapers will all figure in the programme. We are determined, said the Prime Minister, to do our best to people the real qualities of our products, to demonstrate the value of home markets and to prove to them the advantages of buying at home. In short, we want to establish a greater measure of co-operation between consumer and producer. In the campaign upon the projected campaign, one in which the large Ontario distributors of food will be asked to join, Mr. J. B. Spearn, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, said that most Canadians would be astonished at the amount of food now imported at the very time of year when Canadian are producing abundant foodstuffs. An extra slice of bread a day would help to take care of surplus Canadian wheat, he stated, and encouragement would be relieved considerably by Canadian promotion of the campaign in mind.

Changes in Representative

Several changes have recently been made in the agricultural representatives in Ontario. Fred Cook, who has been assistant in Middlesex County, will take the office at New Liskeard on September 1. The same month Stanley Crick, also to Mr. Cook, as he was a representative in the Kenora district for nine years.

J. A. Berry, former assistant in York County, succeeds Mr. Cook at Lindsay. He is a graduate of the O. A. C. coming originally from Dunrobin, Carleton County.

A. M. Barr, assistant agricultural representative for Lennox County, with office at Clinton, has been appointed representative for Grenville County, with office at Kemptville.

A. G. Kirstine has been appointed agricultural representative for Halton County, succeeding A. H. McFarnell, who resigned. Mr. Kirkstine graduated from the O. A. C. in 1925, after having animal husbandry option. After graduation he spent a year at an abattoir in Toronto, and later returned to his farm near Walkerton. During his stay on the farm he became one of the county leaders in community development.

The Crop Situation

Reports of crop conditions for the latter part of August indicate that the showers which fell in most sections of Southwestern Ontario were much needed, as pastures had been burnt up and corn and root crops were suffering severely for lack of moisture. Harvesting throughout the province has been completed under exceptionally fine weather. Alfalfa, alsike and clovers yielded very satisfactorily, as high as nine bushels per acre of red clover having been reported in Kenora district. Many drovers and cattlemen have reported heavy losses on their grass cattle, due to low prices and scarcity of pasture. Many are holding their cattle over for the Christmas trade. Some excellent crops of fodder corn, oats and mixed grains have been harvested this season. In Norfolk County one farmer secured a yield of 140 bushels of oats from a 15-acre field, or nearly 100 bushels per acre.

Valuable O.A.C. Exhibit

Taking as its keynote the crop production of Ontario, the exhibit of the O. A. C. Department of Chemistry exhibit at the C. N. E. has attracted great attention. It embodies a large map copia picturing the fertile soils of Ontario producing forth hundreds of thousands of bushels of wheat, oats and barley, and thousands of tons of potatoes, roots, corn, vegetables, hay and other products. A giant map of the province shows the location of the 1700 fertility test plots which the department is operating throughout Ontario. This year, with nearly every crop grown in Ontario on these plots, a wide variety of fertilizers have been applied on the farmers' own fields under their own conditions. Field representatives ensure accurate application of fertilizers and equally accurate harvesting of test areas. The records show interesting and valuable figures. Meadows fertilized with a high nitrogen fertilizer gave an increase of 45 per cent in yield over the alfalfa fertilized with high potash fertilizers gave an increase of 31½ tats per acre over the unfertilized area. In the fall wheat fertility tests, the average yield of all fertilized plots was 30 bushels per acre, weighing 60.4 lbs per bushel. The yield of spring wheat was 34 bushels, weighing 59.8 bushel.

The functions of the main plant-food elements were admirably shown by crops growing on plant solutions, and the pasture fertility work in connection with the college farm claimed considerable interest. Soil testing for acidity and general discussion of soil survey work provided much valuable information for callers.

UNIFORM LAWS FOR PROVINCES WILL BE SOUGHT

Renewed efforts to secure inter-provincial uniformity in laws are expected to follow the change in Government at Ottawa.

Some progress in this direction has been made during the past two years but the successes achieved cover a very minor fraction of the laws in which uniformity is considered desirable.

Property, company, insurance laws, motor laws, compensation acts and social legislation are all within the scope of statutes in which uniformity is as desirable, it is held, in the interests of the public as of parties immediately concerned.

With respect to civil law, Quebec, under the Code Napoleon, has always presented difficulties in securing uniformity. Law officers who have studied the subject, however, believe that a great deal more in that direction may be achieved. It is being suggested that when progress with Quebec has been exhausted the other provinces continue their efforts in the same direction.

Uniformity will, it is claimed, very materially reduce litigation, simplify the conduct of inter-provincial business and result in considerable savings in legal fees by the public.

EXCHANGE FISH EGGS

An agreement has been reached between Canada and the State of New Hampshire and they will exchange fish eggs for propagation purposes.

Under the agreement New Hampshire will receive 500,000 salmon eggs in exchange for an equal number of trout eggs. The eggs will be distributed under the direction of the Fish and Game Department and will be used for restocking purposes.

THE SQUIRREL

"Greys" Are Slowly Killing Off the "Reds" In the Old Camp.

A few leaves of late autumn were still clinging to the trees on the margin of the forest. The ground was covered with brown and gold, and it was on this carpet that I saw my red squirrel.

He was a lucky animal, for he was about the last of his race in this wood, the grey squirrel having overrun it and killed off all his companions, writes Oliver G. Pike, F.Z.S., in Tit-Bits. If he could have spoken he could have told of many a fight with the grey usurpers, for it was entirely owing to his pluck that he had survived.

His mate had been killed in the spring. She was attacked in her drey, but the one responsible for her death paid the penalty soon after. As he was tracked, and after a severe struggle was knocked off a high branch and crashed to the ground. He did not die there and then, but his wounds were too severe for him to crawl away.

Although many of his kind passed by and stopped to look at the wounded one, they sniffed and passed on, for in squirrel land there is no sympathy; you fight to live, and if you are the loser you make the best of your wounds and wait for death.

As I watched the red squirrel I saw he was very busy; he kept running in a certain spot, then back to his wounded companion. He was making his way towards this when he was arrested by the presence of one of the hated grey squirrels.

Some have given the latter the name of the tree rat. It certainly is a most objectionable little creature, and does a great deal of harm by robbing nests and taking young birds. When he saw his enemy he did not run; he stood his ground and with bristling back awaited the other's approach.

The grey was not long in attacking. He sprang like a small cat straight at the red squirrel, but the latter jumped aside, and as his enemy passed made a bite which missed. The grey squirrel turned and sprang again, and just as he expected to land on his opponent, the latter ducked through his enemy under the drey.

A bite from a squirrel is a thing to be remembered. Once one made its teeth meet through one of my fingers, and it is done so quickly that it is like a stab from a dagger. But on this occasion he did not let go, but held on tenaciously while the grey squirrel was fighting hard to get away. His teeth were well into his foe, and it was not long before the end.

The plucky little red squirrel had struck which had saved his life many times, but I doubt if he will survive, for he will probably be attacked while asleep in the treetop.

WORLD'S FIRST ALPHABET.

Most Extraordinary Discovery Made in Recent Years.

What is supposed to be the most ancient library in the world, consisting of documents written in the first alphabetic signs known to savants, has been discovered in Syria by a French archaeological expedition, it was reported to the Academie D'Inscription et de Belles Lettres.

Eighteen large and small tablets, engraved with letters that are neither hieroglyphics nor Assyrian cuneiform characters, but evidently parts of the first alphabet made of 26 to 27 signs, were found by a young Alsatian archaeologist on the Syrian coast of the Mediterranean, at a place called Ras-Shamra, near Latakieh (Laodikya). The expedition had discovered there a necropolis, the 4,000-year-old ruins of a Phoenician palace and town, and numerous ancient vases, bronze and statues of great archaeological and historical value.

The opinion was put forward by the Academie that these ruins represented traces of an Aegian colony that existed on the Phoenician coast 2,000 years before the present era, and whose civilization was of the Mycenian period. Salomon Reinach, the famous French historian, who was present when the report was presented, declared that the discovery was the most extraordinary one made within recent years, and that it would be of the greatest importance for the study of ancient history.

Expectant.

The vicar paid a visit to the parish school, and after addressing the boys upon various subjects, he asked them by way of encouragement to put any question to him, and promised that if he could not supply a satisfactory answer he would give the boy who asked it a sixpence, says the Edinburgh Scotsman. A smart youngster then jumped to his feet, and said: "Why am I like a dead horse, sir?"

The vicar promptly confessed his inability to give an answer, and asked the boy why he was like a dead horse.

"Because," the boy answered, "I am waiting for the tanner!"

NOT A LAKE.

Lake Stephanie Is Now Dry, Reports Abyssinian Explorer.

When not engaged in popping off choice reticulated giraffes, white dikdiks, striated-warts, pyrgos and other species of cross-word puzzle game in the wilds of Abyssinia, Kenya and beyond, Capt. Harold Whitehead, leader of the White-Coats expedition for the Field Museum, Chicago, declared time was geographical mercy that will cause map-makers to revise their patterns of Africa.

With Capt. White on the seven and a half months' trek through Eastern Africa were Major John Coats of Scotland, A. J. Albrecht of the museum, and George E. Carey of Baltimore.

The explorer, now quite a pal of Ras-Tafari, King of Abyssinia, because of three trips to that land, found that Lake Stephanie, a vast lake in the southern part of the country, is now nothing but a hollow in the hills and as dry as a convention of the Anti-Saloon League.

"The lake has not been visited by white men since 1900," said the captain, "and so is still on the maps. The natives were puzzled when we asked them about it; then a thought we were talking of some other lake. We lost twenty-five camels before we got there. The drying up of Stephanie can be partly attributed to the lack of rainfall. That is really a dry country."

Even the wells, thousands of feet deep, built by a tribe assisting the Borana, present inhabitants, are in a bad way, Capt. White reported. These wells, with a circumference large enough to accommodate a man, are operated by a system of which each member with a bucket. As many as 400 persons, usually women—work in the wells, passing the filled buckets from the water to the top by hand.

"We were invited by one tribe to go on a raid against another," he said. "They offered us half the spoils, but not merely largely of cattle. We want any slaves, but we had a task that our hands to talk ourselves out of it."

Although the expedition bagged plenty of game, the wild life there is rather scary, went on Capt. White. There is an old Spanish custom with the Abyssinians, he said, which insists that every youth before attaining full manhood must kill some beast or man. An elephant equals fifteen men; a buffalo, ten; a rhino, five, and a lion, three. The low rating given the lion, he said, is because lions are more plentiful than the others.

When he tried to get back to civilization Capt. White squeezed his 6 feet 4 inches into a Moth plane and flew to London in seven and a half days. The expedition covered about 15,000 miles.

OLD MATRIMONIAL ADVT.

Advt. Was Published In Swedish Newspaper In 1771.

The art of matrimonial advertising seems to be of old standing, judging from an insertion in the Swedish provincial newspaper, the Carlskrona Veckoblad, of 1771, recently unearthed and reproduced in a Stockholm daily. It is as follows:

The honorable public will not too adversely note the following matrimonial advertisement. As it sometimes happens that a pretty and well-to-do girl does not immediately find because of the fact that honorable suitors do not know her fortune, or have much bargain will bestow on her as a wedding gift, it is hereby announced that she, a handsome girl, 21 years of age, rather pretty, mannerly, a la mode and well-bred, who besides, understands cooking, washing, baking, etc., which, no doubt, will be further improved through her intelligence when she, through marrying, gets more practice in household things, possesses no property, real and movable, about 15,000 silver Daleres, besides which she expects in a legacy from her old grandmother. If some decent bachelor, preferably a noble, clergyman or otherwise somehow well-situated man, should speculate, a somewhat more precise address of the girl's guardian can be had at the printing office of this paper. But it is stipulated as a condition that none but gallant cavaliers, well-built and of good carriage, take the trouble of writing their names; in the opposite case no further particulars will be given."

ODD INSURANCE RISKS.

Expert on Perfumes Insures Her Nose for $50,000.

Noses, legs, hands, feet, cutaway coats, and happy trousers are among the items on the insurance policies of celebrated American golf champions, cinema stars, and musicians.

Perhaps the most unusual case is that of Mlle. Blanche Cavitt, of Oklahoma City, an expert on perfumes, who has insured her nose for $50,000. Mr. Horton Smith and Mr. Walter Hagen, the golfers, have insured their hands and feet, the former for $25,000 and the latter for $50,000.

A favorite policy among theatrical people, issued by Lloyd's, is known as the "scarred-face policy." It protects actors against the possibility of any facial feature which helps to maintain their popularity. Among the film stars thus insured are Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford, Gloria Swanson, and Constance Talmadge, Bebe Daniels, Ivan Petrovitch, Bert Barrymore, and Ronald Colman. Ben Turpin, the famous comedian, is said to have taken out a policy against the possibility of his famous "cockeyes" becoming normal.

"Obio go mai mashita!" the writer called softly in her best Oriental tone, as, rambling along the countryside, a half-opened door revealed a small girl grinding rice by hand. A soft shimmer of white had settled on all nearby objects, even fringing the long eyelashes of the child who seemed to be dreamily distant from her employment and only subconsciously turning the heavy stone. The grinding ceased as the little person most concerned in surprise the foreign woman greeting her in Japanese, writes Kate Kerby in the Christian Science Monitor.

"Mae! I come in!" An older sister with a rosy-cheeked baby strapped on her back and an English spelling book in her hand, appeared from a dark corner and smiled a pleasantly serious invitation to enter, as she drew forward the red guest stool. It developed later that she was attending a night class for girls about a mile distant and could understand slowly spoken simple English. The younger sister, the mother of the baby of five acres owned by this family. It was a large farm that neighborhood, most of them being only three acres in extent. The farms are divided by a narrow path of unirrigated land a foot or two in width. About half of the produce of these distant farmers goes to the owner for rent.

Then Iwasu, the girl with the baby, took her guest behind a screen and explained how the fine rice flour was used in the thin little cakes, and in the delicate "mochi" cake for birthdays and festivals. This child was evidently the housekeeper, for the mother and another sister worked in a silk factory, where she too would go as soon as the baby was a little older. Girls are more dexterous in this industry than boys, so are always in demand. Another and less pleasant reason for their popularity is that they are paid less.

Two other sisters were engaged in a paper mill where the beautiful rice paper, as soft as flannel, for the drying process requires very careful handling, it is made up into books and other things; all the bindery work being done by girls.

Many modern organisations are opening up other employments for work, such as stenography, typewriting, clerkships, and shop stores, but it is in the textile industries that the great majority of girls and women in Japan are employed. Silk reeling, cotton spinning and weaving, etc., even though in these industries wages are lower and hours longer than in clerical positions. But, as little Matsu explained, the hours per day will soon be reduced to 11 or 10, and in the factories are putting up fire escapes and installing fire drills, and meeting the expenses of employers who are injured. Also night work for boys under fifteen years is prohibited. In 1925 there were 181,032 men and boys employed in the textile industry, and 781,599 women and girls.

This preponderance of women and girls results in a great number of "recruiting agents." These men come out to the rural homes with presents of money and fine gifts to the parents, and show pictures of the fine factory buildings where the girls will work. To the girls they paint the joys of city life, as compared to the dull round on the farm and existence in the poor little cabins. Many factories have opened dormitories for their employes, where, in spite of the paternalism prevailing since feudal times, the owner supplies the food at less than cost. The food in these is rather strict, as, for instance, the girls are not allowed outside the company's compound oftener than once a week.

The conditions in these dormitories are being rapidly improved. The regulations call for only 16 girls in a large room, two in a bed. The bed, called a "futan," is filled with heavy quilts laid directly on the matted floor. The couch is rolled up in the morning and put away. The food, too, which formerly was of poor quality, is now of better grade and served in larger rations.

Since 500,000 women and girls in Japan live in factory dormitories, according to Harada's "Labor Conditions in Japan," these improvements are important. Particularly is this true as this small country, with its 60,000,000 inhabitants, increasing at the rate of approximately 900,000 a year, has a comparatively small amount of arable land and few mineral deposits and is therefore constantly turning to industrialization as a solution of its economic problems.

But better than all the commercial and industrial changes that have taken place in the last thirty years is the new spiritual outlook of the people. The old philosophy of fatalism and calm resignation to a life of hardship and toil is, under a more favorable environment, fast passing away as the possibilities of a brighter and happier mode of living appear. Little Matsu, as a typical girl, knew about the club at the night school and the new games and recreations out of doors on the week's holiday, and, too, of learning to cook and to sew at the night school, which she liked best of all.

The sun was creeping down behind the western hills as Iwasu showed a picture of a sweet girl with her baby brother standing in the low doorway of the little cabin. Her voice called, "Sayonara, Sayonara!"

Macaroni is said to have been brought from China and introduced into Europe by the Italians, of which source the Italians learned of the method of manufacturing it was considered to be a great secret at the time.

SAYS TEXT BOOKS NATIONAL DISGRACE

"A national disgrace and a colossal shame," was the term used by Dr. J. J. MacDougal, national president of the Native Sons of Canada, to describe the history books used by Canadian school children during the past fifteen years. True facts of the war were not recorded and children did not appreciate the wonderful achievements of Canada because they could not read them in their text books, he said.

Worms sap the strength and undermine the vitality of children. Strengthen them by using Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator to drive out the parasites.

A NEW MAN

"We have made strides," said the chaplain, picking words warily, because his audience included a number of sceptic as well as the usual credulous ladies. "Prisons are not what they were. Places of punishment they were and must remain. They are less detestable than once they were; hardly more pleasant."

"Much more sanitary, I believe?," said Mrs. Beale, his hostess, and poured him another cup of tea, rather stewed.

"More sanitary, yes," said the chaplain. "But the great change is like all great changes, spiritual. In the old days one might have written over every prison gate 'Abandon all hope, you who enter here.' Now we try to enhance the self-respect of the prisoners. Even Mr. Boocock will confess that laudable, I think."

"Why," said the sceptic. "It's well to ensure that one's fellow-citizens won't come out of prison worse men than they went in."

"Precisely," said the chaplain. "We have done a great real in that direction. The broad arrow is gone. A man must have lost a good deal of his self-respect before he falls into crime. We build it up again. We let him see that we still have faith in him. We allow some men to work unsupervised. We arrange lectures."

"Are these very uplifting?" inquired Mr. Boocock.

"They are most effective, indirectly. They are not, to me, very exhilarating. And I suspect that some of the lecturers find them intrinsically dull. But the thought that people—decent citizens, presumably — are taking the trouble to lecture, are genuinely interested in them, is of great encouragement to the prisoners. Then they ask themselves whether, after all, they are not worth their own consideration."

"I think it's wonderful work," said one of the ladies present. "I know a professor who used to lecture in prisons. He lectured on foreign travel."

"Hardly very tactful," suggested Mr. Boocock.

The chaplain pursued his argument. "The most remarkable results were obtained by a Mrs. Cowper. She was a frail little woman who could lecture on anything from botany to Christian economics. She always insisted that there should be no guards or attendants in the room to keep order. Twenty or thirty years ago that would have been unthinkable. Today it goes straight to the men's hearts.

"We had one man—a desperate cake. He's just now finishing his twenty-seventh sentence. He worked mainly on the racecourses, with occasional excursions into other departments. There are probably few lodges he hasn't tried in this time; and he always contrived skilfully to be engaged on something comparatively unimportant when arrested. He was in with a clever gang.

"This fellow nursed a kind of grievance against society. He could do nothing with him. We were surprised to hear one day that, after a lecture of Mrs. Cowper's, he had risen in his place to thank her and, as he put it, 'to express the gratitude of the men he'd drab to the lady in blue.' She insisted on visiting him in his cell. She prayed with him—with him, mind you, not for or at him. When he comes out, in a few days, he'll be a new man. He'll find it hard to go straight, but straight he will go."

"Why wouldn't he go straight?" said Mr. Boocock.

"Ah," said the chaplain. "That's the worst of it. Their most dangerous enemy is the honour which persists among thieves. While the man has been incarcerated, his wife will probably have been approached by other members of the gang. He will find himself under a specious moral obligation to rejoin the old association. His task would be much easier if all thieves were unmitigated blackguards. But we must do the best we can. We rely on Mrs. Cowper's influence."

Mr. Boocock and the ladies were impressed. Mr. Boocock, however, offered odds against the prisoner's going straight. The offer was taken up by the chaplain, on condition that the money went to a good cause.

When some days later, Jonathan Edge came out of gaol he walked home slowly, reflecting on Mrs. Cowper and feeling a new man. He hoped devoutly that he would not meet or be lulled to drink with any of his old gang, and that his wife would be at home when he came in, so that he might tell her as soon as possible that he was a new man and going straight, henceforth. He would start looking for a straight job that afternoon.

His wife was at home. She was in bed, and seriously ill with shingles and malnutrition. She greeted him with languid affection. She said that the doctor had been very good to her, that she needed more to eat, that the gang had been good to her and given her what they could, though they'd had little luck lately, what with him away and Tom Edwards run in last week. He told her that he had become a new man, that Mrs. Cowper had made a new man of him, that he was going to look for a straight job going that afternoon.

She said, "The gang's going down to the meeting at Bonnie's corner Wednesday. They say it should be worth sixty."

He reiterated Mrs. Cowper. He tried to explain that she, wasn't a fancy woman—that wasn't the way she influenced him at all. He was going straight.

She made no comment, only that the doctor said she needed more to eat.

Eddie Fogg knocked on the door and came in. He greeted Jonathan cordially, and produced a ten-shilling note for the wife. "We found we could spare it," he said. "You'll be coming with us to Poncett, Johnny?"

Johnny got up and walked out without speaking. He made toward the Labour Exchange, and felt that he had won the first round.

The wife said, "Don't mind him. He talks funny about a lady in blue and a straight job. Get me some milk out of that note, Eddie, if you've time."

For ten days Jonathan looked for a straight job and found it not. His wife weakened; but, seeing him determined, she dissuaded the gang from further attempts to recall him.

"Happen he'll go with you in time," she said. Fogg muttered, "Maybe not in time."

On the tenth day, seeing his wife very weak, Jonathan determined to apply to the prison chaplain for help in getting a job. It hurt his pride, but things were getting desperate. The chaplain seemed to think that something could be done. Jonathan explained to the wife his new hope of a straight job. She said only, "For Christ's sake be quick over it."

Three days later he was appointed sexton in a neighbouring parish, through the chaplain's intervention. His wife died of malnutrition two days later. Jonathan could hardly be consoled for her loss, and doubted the providence of the Lord. His sole comfort was that his position enabled him to give her a decent funeral.

It should be said that Mr. Boocock attended the funeral and paid up handsomely.

GIANT KAURI TREE

Splendid Trees in New Zealand Are Fast Vanishing—Are of Slow Growth.

Only two great privately owned kauri forests remain in the Dominion of New Zealand, it is said, in a despatch to the Christian Science Monitor from Auckland.

One of these is at Whangaroa, in the far north, where about five months ago a start was made in cutting about 15,000,000 feet. There is a mill now on the beautiful harbor of Whangaroa, once the centre of a great timber district, and the logs are towed down to Auckland, a few days' tow, and milled there.

The other forest is on the Great Barrier Island, at the entrance to the gulf on which Auckland is situated.

It has long been known that the days of the kauri as a commercial timber were numbered. It is one of the finest timber trees in the world. It is stated that a great kauri contains more millable timber than any other tree, and as a general utility soft timber the wood has few if any equals. A kauri forest containing really big trees, up to twelve feet through, is a wonderful sight. What is probably the largest kauri tree on record was 24 feet in diameter. The gray trunks rise from the twilight of the forest like great cathedral columns—60 to 80 feet clean up to the candelabra-like system of branches.

To fell these giants, cut them into lengths, and get them to the mills, is a work of much labor and skill. Sometimes the logs are rolled into a river bed above a dam, and at the right season the dam is "tripped" and the mass goes roaring down to the mill. The tree also produces a valuable gum, which used to be much in demand. This gum is found in the ground over great areas where there are now no trees. Forests once stood in these parts but were swept away by fire. The gumdigger can tell from a depression in the ground where a tree once stood.

From the earliest times kauri wood was prized; ships used to call at New Zealand ports, long before there was a British government there, to get kauri spars. After European settlement there was plenty of kauri timber at cheap rates, and consequently there was a good deal of waste. Now this splendid timber is a luxury. Estimates differ about the age of these trees, but it is known that the kauri is a comparatively slow grower, and the "old men" of the forest must be many centuries old. Indeed estimates run as high as 1,700 years and more.

Fortunately there will be kauris preserved to see as sights. In addition to small patches of kauri reserved here and there, two magnificent forests are preserved north of Auckland. One is the Waipoua State Forest, the largest remaining collection of kauri trees. This is of incalculable scenic value.

WORLD'S LARGEST BRIDGE

The largest bridge in the world is at present under construction in Sydney. The bridge stretches between the business centers over the channel to the width of 1,675 feet and its total length will be 3,810 feet. Even at high tide its headway will be 170 feet to allow the passage of large vessels underneath.

The bridge will carry a roadway 57 feet wide, four railway lines and two foot walks each 10 feet wide. The cost will be about six million pounds or approximately $29,220,000. It is expected the bridge will be open for traffic the latter part of this year.

IN THE "CROW'S-NEST"

Newspaper Man Visits the "Look-Out" of Atlantic Liner In "Thick" Weather.

High up on the foremast of a giant liner there is a big bulge, like a huge barrel round the mast. It is the eye of the ship, for in it, throughout a voyage, without a moment's break, two men stay whose sole work is that of watching sea and sky.

It is the liner's look-out, and only men who have exceptionally good eyesight are chosen for the work of staying aloft in the "look-out." One very life of the mammoth, carrying perhaps 5,000 people, depends on them.

The look-out men are like eagles in an eyrie, and they have need to be alert and of piercing vision when rushing across the North Atlantic at the rate of nearly thirty miles an hour. They are better placed than the officer on the bridge for seeing things ahead, and they are provided with a loud-speaking telephone so that they can communicate with the bridge, without their words being drowned in the howl of a gale or the roar of the sea. Powerful binoculars are given to them.

The crow's-nest is a source of fascination to passengers, some of whom make great efforts to be allowed to visit it; but the captain rarely gives permission. For one thing, the men must not be hampered in carrying out a very rigid duty, and for another it is not by any means everybody who is physically capable of reaching the nest, writes a Tit-Bits man.

How do you get to the coveted "barrel," and what is it really like? First you go down to the main-deck and enter a door in the huge steel funnel which forms the mast. Then you climb a seventy-foot steel ladder, an uncanny performance in the darkness, when the ship is pitching and rolling.

Having clambered up, you reach the platform of the mast, and find yourself in a circular cage which is protected by a canvas screen called the "dodger"—and that protection and as much more as you can get is needed when the liner is driving into anything like bad weather.

From the nest you get a wonderful view of the ship, and realise how essential it is for the look-out men to climb up inside the mast, to avoid the danger of being blown or washed overboard. Here is the telephone, and just above your head, within easy reach, is the ship's bell on which the look-out men repeat the time-bells, which are struck every half-hour by a quartermaster on the bridge.

A message from the nest—and it may be one of life and death; as, for instance, if an iceberg is suddenly sighted right ahead—is acted upon with the swiftness of thought. The eye—the look-out—sees; the brain—the bridge—acts, and helm and engine do the rest. It is all a marvellous example of human efficiency and discipline.

As a rule the look-out men work in three watches, with two hours on and four hours off duty. It is an undoubted advantage to have two men working together in this way in clear weather. In thick weather the look-out is strengthened.

In a giant liner eight men are responsible for the look-out when under-seeing, as completely as human intelligence can see, what is ahead and around the mammoth as she is racing across the vast ocean.

Two hours at a stretch do not seem much, but in that lofty metal box you are glad of plenty of thick clothing to protect you from the cold. Imagine what it is like in a winter gale! The liner has her own high speed plus the force of the gale to deal with. Show your face to that combination. With snow and icy sleet thrown in, and you may well wonder why your features are still left. To the intense cold and discomfort must be added the aggravated motion so high above the deck—it is as if human beings were pea in a giant rattle.

The noise is appalling. The roar of the wind, accompanied by thunder-like crashes of enormous seas breaking on board, is deafening. In such a swirl and smother of water it looks as if the mast must be snapped and the nest buried into the turmoil.

But the look-out does not worry. He knows that the nest is staunch and true, and that the mast will not give way even under the charges of those wandering terrors of seas known as the "Three Old Men of the Atlantic."

USING THE WIND.

Many Cases In Which it May Be Utilized With Advantage.

How much work can a lively breeze do? Although for any purpose requiring a more or less continuous supply of power the wind is wholly unsuitable energy there nevertheless are many cases in which it may be utilised with advantage, even if it has to be supplemented by such a steady as gi ell engine and worked in conjunction with a storage battery, which generally is an indispensable adjunct, where power may prove a source of economy.

The Danish Government reports that the velocities of the wind which are practicable lie between ten to fifty feet a second, and the motor must be so constructed as to adapt itself automatically to all conditions, including storms. It has been found that a motor with only four wings is the best. At one experimental station, with a petrol motor as standby and a storage battery, an installation of 450 incandescent lamps has been successfully run for two years at a fair profit.

Glimpsing the Moon.

By putting a penny in the slot of an automatic machine on the promenades and piers of many South Coast seaside resorts in England, it is possible to gaze at the mountains in the moon. The automatic telescope is the invention of a Londoner, and he is making astronomy one of the most popular hobbies on the South Coast.

THE ECONOMY OF SPEED

FUR FARMING ONE INDUS-TRY TO SHOW SOME DEVELOPMENT

Figures just assembled by the Government indicate a 22 per cent development in capital invested in fur farming in Canada during 1929.

No fewer than 4,226 fur farms representing an investment of $22,976,000 reported, with fur bearing animals.

Foxes were the 71 per cent. total value. Fur farming now stretches across every province and up into the Yukon, to the breeding of foxes has been added mink, raccoon, skunk, marten, fisher, coyote, rabbit, karakul, sheep, muskrat, beaver, badger and lynx.

Since the early days of the fur trade, it has been the practice in Canada for trappers to keep foxes caught in warm weather, alive until the fur was prime and from this custom has arisen the modern industry of fur farming. The earliest authentic record of the raising of foxes in captivity comes from Prince Edward Island where about the year 1878 a number of foxes were raised on a farm near Tignish. The beauty of the fur of the silver fox and the consequent high prices realized from the sale of the pelts, caused attention to be directed chiefly to this breed, a colour phase of the common red fox which has been established through experiments in breeding carried on by the pioneer fox farmers. After 1890 there came a period of rising prices for furs and the fox farming industry grew rapidly in Prince Edward Island.

In 1913 an enumeration by the Provincial Commissioner of Agriculture, showed 277 fox farms in that province, with a total of 3,130 foxes. While experiments were being carried on in Prince Edward Island, attempts at raising foxes in captivity were also being made in other provinces, the records showing that foxes were successfully bred in Quebec in 1896; in Ontario in 1905 and in Nova Scotia in 1906. In 1912 and 1913, the Commission of Conservation conducted an exhaustive inquiry into the history and possibilities of fur farming in Canada, and the resulting data, published in 1913, gave an impetus to the industry.

The Prince Edward Island Silver Fox Breeders' Association was formed in 1913, and the Canadian National Silver Fox Breeders' Association in 1920. Branch Associations of the Canadian Association have also been formed in several of the provinces. Fur farming is now carried on in all provinces of the Dominion and the number of farms is steadily increasing. The latest complete statistics available for the year 1928 show 3,631 fox farms in Canada with a total of 77,311 foxes of which 72, 631 are silver foxes.

Within the last two or three years considerable interest has been shown in the fox, which is a colour phase of the polar fox. For several years this fox had been successfully raised on the islands off the coast of Alaska and on the mainland.

Later attempts, chiefly in British Columbia, to domesticate the blue fox have met with success and as shown by a comparison of the statistics for the years 1920 and 1928. At the end of the year 1928 the number of blue foxes on farms in Canada was 12, all of which were in British Columbia, while at the end of 1928 the number was 1,331, British Columbia accounting for 73 per cent of the total. Litters of blue foxes were raised in each of the years 1926 to 1928, the number of pups recorded from the farms in the last year being 1,238, of which 64 per cent were for British Columbia.

ONE GOOD RECIPE MAKES A COOK FAMOUS

It went be long now until the bachelor finds that something hot served for a "snack" after the game or the bridge, is pleasing to her guests, especially to the male element and here is a dainty timbale, which, served on individual plates with lettuce and a bit of red pepper makes a appetizing supper.

Egg Timbales

1 Tablespoon butter, 1 Tablespoon flour, ½ cup milk, 3 eggs, ½ teaspoon baking powder, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, salt and pepper and a few grains of celery salt if you have them.

Make a sauce of butter, flour and milk. Beat yolk of eggs until thick, then add to sauce. Add parsley, salt, pepper and celery salt. TOBACCO EXPORTS TO BRITAIN GROW

Active efforts are being made by Canadian Trade Commissioners in Great Britain to promote the sale of Canadian grown tobacco to British manufacturers. If it is considered necessary the Dominion Government will appoint a special trade commissioner in Great Britain to devote his entire time to the interests of the Canadian Tobacco growers. It is understood that several large British importers of tobacco will visit Canada this summer to inspect this year's crop, which has an increased acreage of bright, flue cured tobacco. In May Canada exported 270,231 pounds of the bright flue cured type to Great Britain, and the present sale of Canadian tobacco to the mother country are said to be increasing.

AID FOR CHILDREN OF L. & A. WHO ARE CRIPPLED OR NEED OTHER CARE

In Ontario there is as yet no adequate provision made for crippled children, and for that reason the Rotary Clubs have taken up the work and are spending, not only large sums of money, but a great amount of time and personal attention to these cases. Our own local club in Napanee, during the past year have spent considerably over $3,000. Their activities are not by any means confined to Napanee but extend over the entire county. Any case that needs help and the parents are unable to bear the expense, they have taken the burden, and many cases have been permanently cured. If you are called upon to give your assistance, be sure and do so—knowing you are helping a worthy cause.

ACCIDENT ON HIGHWAY

On Friday afternoon, Mr. Damon Perry, who has been hawking hay for Mr. Bennett on the highway, just out of Napanee, was proceeding to his home. He had just left the Bennett house and was driving leisurely along the right side of the road when the waggon he was driving was struck a smashing blow from behind by a car which was travelling at speed. Mr. Perry was thrown from the waggon, the rear axle was cut asunder, and it was some time before the horses could be brought under control. Dr. Galbraith was summoned and took Mr. Perry to his office and after examination discovered no serious conditions. Mr. Perry, though badly shaken up and bruized, was not otherwise hurt. The car, which was in the accident, was driven by Miss Iveson, 203 Pretoria Avenue, Ottawa. The only other occupant in the car was her sister. Neither of these suffered any injury. The car which Miss Iveson was driving, the radiator being torn to pieces. Miss Iveson, who says it was the first time she has been in an accident, stated that she was driving behind the waggon at a low rate of speed and accidently put her foot on the accelerator instead of the brake. The traffic was held up for a short time but the traffic officer soon straightened out the tangle.

WEDDING BELLS

HAZELWOOD—OSBORNE

A charming early Fall wedding took place Monday afternoon at two-thirty o'clock at Bath United Church, when Edythe Mae, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Osborne, became the bride of Mr. Reginald D. Hazlewood, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Hazelwood, of Georgetown. The Rev. F. Holton, officiated. The church was beautifully decorated with ferns, begonias and cut flowers and as the guests assembled, Mrs. Ralph Sexsmith played the wedding music. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a robe of ivory satin, made in princess lines with long tight sleeves and full circular skirt, falling in graceful folds to the ground. Her veil of white French embroidered net, was arranged in cap effect and caught at the side with orange blossoms. She wore white crepe slippers and carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses, lily-of-the-valley and baby's breath. Her only ornament was a string of pearl—the gift of groom. The bride's attendant was her sister, Miss Dorothy Osborne, registered nurse of Olean, N.Y., as maid of honour, in a gown of green silk net made on long lines, embroidered in yellow and pink over green satin, a large and green mohair hat and green crepe shoes, carrying a bouquet of Columbia roses and baby's breath. Little Miss Phyllis Hazleton, as flower girl, was daintily dressed in pink crepe, trimmed with lace and ribbon and carried an old-fashioned nosegay. Mr. Arthur Hazlewood, brother of the groom, was the best man and the ushers were Mr. Clayton Bell and Mr. Sheldon Calver, cousin of the bride.—During the signing of the register, Mrs. Homer Collins sang "Bells." The groom's gift to the bride was a rose pearl-tone on amber beads and filigree pin, to the bride's maid, an engraved vanity case, to the flower girl a bracelet and to the ushers, leather wallets. Following the ceremony a reception and buffet luncheon was held on the lawn of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Calver, where the profusion of summer blooms in the herbaceous border made a perfect setting for the occasion. Receiving with the bridal party were the bride's mother, in a green crepe, in cocoa shade, with hat and shoes to match, with a corsage bouquet of Columbia roses and the groom's mother, in Madonna blue crepe, with hat and shoes to match, with a corsage bouquet of Columbia roses. Amid showers of confetti and good wishes, Mr. and Mrs. Hazlewood left for a motor trip to Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec, the bride travelling in an Autumn brown travel tweed dress, green tweed travel coat with large beaver collar and hat, brown and beige to match shades of Autumn brown. On their return, they will reside at 303 Meagher Ave., Toronto, where they will be at home to their friends after September 20th. Among those present included Mr. and Mrs. J. Hazelwood, Mr. Arthur Hazelwood, of Georgetown; Mr. and Mrs. A. Hazelwood, of Galt; Mrs. R. Warren, Mrs. J. Lynch and Miss Mabel Lynch, of Bay of Quinte; Miss Dorothy Osborne, Olean, N.Y., Mr. and Mrs. B. Stevenson, of Napanee; Miss Mae Stevenson, Bay of Quinte; Miss Ivy Holloway; Miss Helen Riendeau and Mr. Charles Calver, of Campbellford.

FREE SHOTS ON Local Sport

There's is no use talking, Deseronto sure is an ideal place to hold a regatta as far as the boating itself is concerned.

* * *

But it is not so good for the spectators who are not fortunate enough to have a boat or to be invited; to view the sports from some friend's craft.

* * *

The meet which was held on Monday, drew a large crowd and practically every boat on the bay was there.

* * *

And every type of boat was represented, sailing, dinghies, cruisers, fish boats, runabouts, sea-feals, punts, canoes and even a large steam tug.

* * *

The course was very poorly laid out, a six point circle. It took the contestants almost out of sight of the crowd and in several cases the drivers missed and lost considerable time getting back onthe course.

* * *

If it could be worked out so that Napanee could put on the regattas with Deseronto, and held them in the Bay, it would not be long until boats would be coming in from all over, to race.

* * *

The local nine lost their third game to Adolphustown last Wednesday, 8-4.

* * *

Ted Bentley was on the mound for the locals and turned in a nice game, the first one he has ever pitched. But he got very poor support, which, combined with weak hitting, accounted for poor showing.

* * *

Everything is not settled yet as regards the play-offs, but they should be held soon, while the weather is sure to be warm. The dates will likely be fixed within the next two or three days.

CENTREVILLE FAIR

The Addington Agricultural Exhibition, held at Centreville on Saturday last, was attended by over thirty-five hundred people and was a huge success in every respect. The exhibits were the largest and the best in the history of the society, and reflects great credit on the Addington farmers and their wives. Addington truly carries out the original idea and purpose of a Fall Fair and is not just a midway, but does much to improve farming and the raising of better stock.

The new grandstand that was built this year, adds greatly to the appearance of the grounds and to the comfort of those who attend. Mr. C. E. Breault, one of the veteran officers of the society, was in charge of the palace, and again performed his duties in a very capable manner, as he has for the past twenty years. Mr. George A. THEY USE IT

Canadians make approximately 240 telephone calls a year per person. Canada is becoming distinctly "telephone conscious."

$20,960,000 Value OF RADIO PRODUCTS

Production of complete radio sets, parts and batteries in Canada during 1929 reached a value of $20,960,137, or 65 per cent above the total of $12,698,-024 reported for 1928, according to a preliminary statement issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa.

The data for this report were assembled from the annual returns to the industrial census, in 1929 an output of radio sets or parts was reported by 47 different firms, of which 40 were in the electrical supplies industry, 5 in the musical instruments industry, 1 in the chemical industry and 1 in the furniture industry. This survey, however, does not include the great number of small custom workers who assemble or build to order; only those classed as manufacturers have been included.

Complete receiving sets manufactured, numbered 142,988, valued at $14,-986,172, as compared with, a corresponding total of 81,052 sets worth $7,466,127 in 1928. Tubes numbering 2,394,270 worth $3,100,146 were turned out, and batteries, storage and dry cells said to be manufactured for radio purposes, amounting to $1,791,830 were produced in 1929 as against $2,456,148 in 1928.

A FAMILY REUNION

Four generations of the family of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Baker assembled at their home at Ernestown Station, over the week end, in honor of their aged parents, and to enjoy a pleasant reunion. Coming from various parts of Ontario, the assemblage consisted of the ten children, their husbands and wives; twenty-five grandchildren, one great-grandchild; and the there brothers of Mr. Baker. Young and old enjoyed every minute of the three days and all went away wishing many more years of good health to Mr. and Mrs. Baker and many more such reunions.

Mr. and Mrs. Baker were both born on Amherst Island but have lived for 30 years at Ernestown. Mr. Baker being a pensioner of the C. N. R. Railways with which he spent the greater part of his life having retired some five years ago.

Of the ten children all but two are still connected with the Canadian National Railways.

VIOLET-SWITZERVILLE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The regular meeting of Violet-Switzerville Women's Institute was held at the home of Mesdames K. and J. Wilson, Switzerville, with a large attendance of members and guests.

The roll call "Old Time Customs" brought to light many reminiscences of other days, and five new names were added to our roll. We are increasing in numbers and our afternoons together are certainly very pleasant and profitable.

The quaint costumes, relics, photos, old fashioned night gowns, brass, china, and other antiques showen were all worthy of special mention. A number of snapshots were taken and the prize for the oldest grandmother present was awarded to Mrs. Peter Miller while Mrs. James Frink received the souvenir for the youngest grandmother present. The prize for the quaintest costume was given by the judges, Mrs. Haycock, Misses Miller and Wilson, to Mrs. Rea Brown; this was a quaint little milk jug.

A splendid reading was given by Mrs. N. Wilson and an old time solo was rendered by Mrs. Wright.

The next meeting, which will be an evening meeting, will be held at the home of Mrs. Andrew Moore, Thursday, October 2nd and will be in the form of a Hallowe'en party. A short play "Hengeck Holler Gossip" will be put on by the members.

SHOOLS ARE IN FULL SWING

The adaptability of the human being is brought to one's notice these days, as one sees the groups of children, old and young, along with the teachers, wending their way to the various institutions of learning. A few days ago they were all scattered through the length and breadth of the country, enjoying the freedom from study or engaged in some gainful occupation. Then the thrill of the first day at school. And now the routine proceeds as though it were the most natural thing in the world.

All over the county the schools report an increased attendance. There are those who are attending for the first time, and who are leaving the shelter of the home to spend five hours of five days in the week under the care and influence of a stranger. It would be a rather risky business were it not for the fact that speaking generally the teachers of our country are of such a high moral character. Men and women who take a keen interest not only in the academic work of their charges but of the character of the boys and girls who come under their control.

Then there are those who are older, who know that school is more than a time for play and recreation. They, too, know the meaning and the purpose of the discipline which the schools bring. Some favoured few have passed out of the Collegiate and the High Schools and have gone on to the higher grades of learning. Altogether, they make an exceeding great army, all being trained to-day to become the leaders of this country.

We are happy-in having, in this country, such a splendid system of education. It may seem cruel, at this stage of the term, to mention exams. They may not be the best form of testing a child's knowledge. But until a better test is found, they are here. And every well-informed teacher knows that they are framed, not for the child of brilliant intelligence, but for the child of average ability, who will concentrate and apply himself.

There is a false notion among many students that study is a disgrace. They boast of the little they do, and of their ability to get work up at the last minute. This, however, is a serious fallacy. Few there are, if any, who can "cram" or "plug" for exams at the last minute. Consistent application to the daily tasks is what insures success in life, as in all other branches of life's activities, so a little work tonight and every night until the term draws to a close, will ensure a good pass. Delay is dangerous.

2,900,000 BARRELS CANADIAN APPLES

Canada's commercial apple crop for this season has been estimated at 2,900,000 barrels by the Department of Agriculture. This expectation is 73.4 per cent of the 1929 crop and 81.6 per cent of the past five year's average. Pears, peaches and plums are also said to be expected to surpass figures for 1929. The estimated increase ranges from 11 per cent for pears to 31 per cent for plums.

PROPOSE WAR-TIME SCHEME TO MARKET CANADIAN WHEAT

Advices from London indicate that the Labor Government is devoting itself to development of the Thomas plan for the bulk purchasing of Canadian grain and wool, meat and dairy products from this and other sections of the Empire.

The British Government intends to have the proposal worked out for submission to the Economic Conference which meets in London next month.

British comment evidences a growing recognition of the fact that the Dominions insist upon mutuality of preferences within the Empire. The Macdonald Government, and particularly Chancellor Snowden, stand firm uncompromisingly against taxes on food in Britain and the Thomas plan is conceived as an alternative which may give the Dominions the advantage sought in return for preferences on all manufactured goods entering the Dominions.

Details, of course, will not be forthcoming until they are presented to the conference, though advance reports suggest that the proposal will be largely based upon the methods of purchase and distribution in operation in Britain during the war

NEW AIR SERVICES ON PACIFIC COAST

A Victoria - Vancouver - Seattle air service will be established by one company, while a second operator of an air line between these points and Alaska has announced the purchase of two new 17-passenger sea planes.

The new Victoria-Seattle line will build a permanent seaplane base and landing wharf, with accommodation for planes and passengers at Vancouver. The initial investment has been reported between $200,000 and $250,000.

A stwo-storey structure with hangar space on the ground floor with a machine shop and office accomodations on the second floor, is planned. This structure will have a frontage of 100 feet on the water and facilities will include a float for the despatching of the planes. Plans call for the use of 11-passenger amphibians on a daily schedule.

Two new 17-passenger planes will be added by the Alaska-Washington Airways and one of the new planes will be used on the Victoria route.

CANADIAN PUBLIC SUPPORTS AVIATION

A tribute of public support in the development of aeronautics is contained in the 1929 report of the civil aviation branch of the Dominion Department of National Defence, and in a large measure the report states the extreme development of the activity is due to this support. Cities and towns all over the Dominion, and contributing materially by the construction of airports and airdromes.

The report reviews the progress of aviation since the war up to 1929, and points with some pride to the fact that in three years' operation of the mail service not a single life has been lost. During the year it is shown that the activity of aviation is greater than in any previous year since the war. Forest protection and aerial survey work has gone ahead materially and in greater degree than ever before. Flying in the north has been extended, air mail service now spans more than half of the Dominion, with trunk lines in the East and daily services in the Prairie Provinces and the future of aviation is extremely bright.

The report contains considerable information relating to flying activities in Canada, including a review of the work of the larger commercial companies and the work done by the department in the civil aviation branch itself.

BUILD ROADS FOR RELIEF

An additional $500,000 will be spent by the Department of Highways immediately as an unemployment relief measure. This decision was reached this week, following a meeting of the provincial cabinet.

For Baby's Bath

More than that of any other member of the family, baby's tender, delicate skin needs the greatest care and attention. The soft soothing oils in Baby's Own Soap make it specially suitable for babies, and its clinging fragrance reminds one of the roses of France which help to inspire it.

Toujours la Politesse — An angler, who had been trying to hook something for the last six hours, was sliding gicontly at his task, when a mother and her small son came along.

"Oh" said the youngster, "do let me see you catch a fish !"

Addressing the angler, the mother said severely, "now don't you catch a fish for him until he says "please." — Tit-Bits.

VARICOSE VEINS RAPIDLY REDUCED

Simple Home Treatment That is Giving Amazing Results

If you have varicose veins or bunches you can start to-day to bring them back to normal size and if you are wise you will do so.

Just get an original bottle of Moone's Emeral Oil (full strength) at any drug store and apply it night and morning to the enlarged veins. It is very powerful and penetrating, and only a little is required.

After a few days' treatment the veins will begin to grow smaller and by regular use will soon reduce to normal.

Moone's Emeral Oil is also a marvelous healing agent. One application at once stops the itching of eczema, and a few applications causes the eruptions to dry up scale off, and completely disappear. It is equally as effective in barber's itch, salt rheum, redness, and inflammatory skin trouble.

People who want to reduce varicose veins, or get rid of eczema, ulcers, or piles in a few days should not hesitate to get a bottle at once. It is so powerful that a small bottle lasts a long time. Wallace's Drug Store and leading drug stores sell lots of it.

SILLSVILLE-CONWAY W.M.S.

The Sillsville and Conway W. M. S. met at Sillsville United Church on September 4th with a fair attendance. Opening hymn 140, "Far and Near the Fields are Teaming. Mrs. Bruce Robertson took charge of the devotional part. Mrs. George Phippin read the Scripture lesson, the 2nd Chapter of Ruth from the 17th to the 23rd verses, after which Mrs. Harold Hoagh gave a reading on "Seed Time." Hymn 220, "Our God is in the Sunshine." Mrs. Bruce Robertson gave a reading, "Memories' Garden."

The minutes were read and approved. Miss Van Dyke and Mrs. Sanders were appointed delegates to attend the Women's Missionary Society Convention, to be held at Deseronto. Mrs. George Phippin, Mrs. R. Merritt and Mrs. H. White were appointed collectors for the "Special Object."

Moved by Mrs. George Phippin and seconded by Mrs. A. Thompson that, we have our mission service four weeks from Sunday coming and invite Conway choir, to join Sillsville choir for the service. Mrs. A. Thompson gave a reading, 'Don't Fret," and then Mrs. Sanders favored us with a solo, "Africa Dark Africa." Roll call answered to by passages from the Scriptures. The Heralds, Miss VanDyke, Christian Stewardship; and Mrs. H. Hoagh, Sabbath Observance.

The meeting was closed by singing hymn 94, "Jesus Shall Reign."

This paper was prepared by Miss Harvest Edna Addison, Adolphustown W. M. S. and read by her sister, Mrs. H. M. Hoagh, at Sillsville Women's Missionary Society:— "Believers in the Lord's Ideals or Sabbath Day Observance." If we, as a nation, are to be a Christian people, how are we to begin? Should we not make a fresh start on the first day of the week? If we go back to the early Scriptural days, in the dark days of the Crucifixion, we remember the devoted women who went upon the first day of the week, very early in the morning into the sepulchre. Was not that indeed a fitting way to observe the Sabbath?

Now, if we are to be a Christian people, we must be a Sabbath observing people, for where the Gospel goes, there goes the Sabbath Day. What kind of Sunday do we spend if we to not attend Divine service? If we do not know that church bells are ringing in our lands. Contrast the lands where the Christian Sabbath exists with those where the Sabbath is the same as any week day.

In this day of modern thinking and living, how are we to preserve the sacredness of this one day in seven? We are given the command from God, in Ex. 20, ch. verse 8, "Remember the Sabbath Day and Keep it Holy. Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work. But the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord, thy God; in it thou shalt not do any work; thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, nor thy manservant, nor thy maidservant, nor thy cattle, nor the stranger that is within thy gates. For in six days the Lord made the heavens and earth, the sea, and all that is in them is and rested the seventh day; wherefore the Lord blessed the Sabbath Day and hallowed it. Only a godless and selfish people that have been given six days for themselves, would not devote their time and themselves to the keeping of the sanctity of the Lord's Day. Should we not, as women, train our children in Sabbath keeping, for in the home we learn our principles. In the old dispensation we are told: "Ye shall keep the Sabbath therefore, for it is holy unto you; everyone that defileth it shall surely be put to death."

The Sabbath day was given unto us as a day of rest. Ought it not to be observed as such, rather than a day of pleasure? To thinking observers, the Sabbath day is slipping. All sorts of worldliness and carelessness are undermining this basic Christian institution; commercialism, then sheets, motorcycles and many other modern forces against it. We must fight against a secular Sabbath. If it is only used as a play day, the efficiency of the next week is impaired, for, aside from the religious view of the matter, the human strength could not stand the strain without this day of rest. In the homes, where the Christian Sabbath is kept in its real significance, there are no separations or divorces. Childhood memories should centre around this one day in seven as a day set apart as holy unto God.

If the light and refinement of spirituality are to retained in life, the Sabbath must be observed as a day of worship. If the Sabbath was made for man, for his highest spiritualities and qualities, it should not be perverted to our own uses and ends. Man is entitled to this gift of God which recognizes him as an immortal spirit. If the Sabbath goes, something fine inevitably departs from life. Already, comparatively few people are ignorant of our grand old hymns and the great Bible stories and are unacquainted with prayer. The use of the Sabbath for such purposes as the huge league baseball schedules for Sundays, is a saddening thing. I am sure a good Christian people felt it a disgrace when a few years ago our Canadian cruiser the Canada was put in the Olympic games and that day of the week. Wide apart from the world.

The task of proper observance of the Sabbath has, in a measure, been taken from the women. It has been given to the men to keep them from the saloons during the evening hours. Surely from small beginnings until it has become a condition that threatens our Christian nationality. It seems a long call from Sunday golf, card games, to the large public games, plays and excursions and it has come about before we are aware.

Shall we not earnestly and prayerfully strive to keep the Sabbath in reverence and purity and sanctity unto the Lord? Isaiah declares God promises to the godly and to the Sabbath keepers, in chapter 56 verses 6 and 14: If thou turn away thy foot from the Sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on my holy day and call the Sabbath a delight, the holy of the Lord honorable, and shalt honor him, not doing thine own ways, nor finding thine own pleasures, nor speaking thine own words, then shalt thou delight thyself in the Lord and I will cause thee to ride upon the high places of the earth and feed thee with the heritage of Jacob, thy father."

"AUNT LUCIA"

STAGED BY 100 LOCAL PEOPLE

Famous Collegiate Comedy To Be Played On September 11 and 12.

On Thursday and Friday nights, the famous Collegiate Comedy will be staged at the Town Hall, under the auspices of the Y. P. S. of Trinity Church. It promises to be one of the biggest home talent shows ever staged in this community and includes a cast of over 100 local people. It is a burlesque comedy of college life and has a number of hilarious comedy spots.

The play proper, deals with the story of the home coming of Bula Bula College. The setting of the show is a fraternity drawing room. The whole story revolves around the school, anxiously awaiting the arrival of an old maid aunt, Lucia Wakefield, who is worth fifty million dollars, and who plans to give the college a large sum of money. She is to be the honored guest at the home-coming of Bula Bula College and is an aunt of one of the girls, Betsy. Jerry Watson, played by Limbert Grahams, one of the college boys, with the help of his two roommates, George and Dick, played by Fred Knapp and Gordon Metzger dresses himself as an old lady for the entertainment of his fellow fraternity brothers. While dressed in this outfit, he was mistaken by Prof. Geddis, played by, C. Hogarth, and Dean Howard, played by Lloyd Stalker, as the real Lucia Wakefield, from Florida, and they immediately introduce him to the College Presidents, and everyone as such. Once in this dilemma, it was impossible for Jerry to disclose that Lucia Wakefield, when in reality he is only Jerry Watson.

Amongst this character, playing the part of the fake Aunt Lucia, all the fun and excitement centers. Dean Howard, Prof. Geddis and Mr. Collins, played by Joe Tompkins, and the leading lady, Miss Theresa Lowe, all fall in love with this fake Lucia Wakefield and try to marry her. Their proposals to Miss Theresa Lowe, are very funny. Instantly Jerry finds himself in the midst of the love affairs, and makes love to the other boys' girls, unless the parents of the boys, are present. Jerry, to the parents of the girls, poses himself, the old maid aunt, Lucia Wakefield. Prof. Geddis, the old bachelor, who hates women, but secretly loves the lady of the house, Mrs. Bentley, (who is played by Miss Dorothy Lowe) and Mrs. Bentley, finds that Lucia Wakefield was only a man. In the end, the real Lucia Wakefield, in Florida, wires the necessary amount of money for building of the college stadium, and Jerry, who has been the fake aunt, wins back his girl, who had stepped out with the college rivals. Besides these characters, there are two college girls, friends of George and Dick, Betsy and Molly, played by Miss McKim and Ruth Orchard. Jerry's girl, Hinkyn, is Helen Alexander. Also there is the College Janitor, Pompeii Jones, played by Lodes Stewart, and Mrs. Bentley's maid, Miss Rita R. Hinckley, who all add to the dignity of the cast. The two freshmen, Molly Bolts, played by Dot Bentley and Sherry Bolts, by Dot Bentley.

Besides the play proper, there are a number of specialties between the acts, the College Glee Club, part way by 20 boys and girls, open the show and play in the intermission.

The opening of the show is featured by a curtain raiser, the big Baby Pageant, with over 30 children between the ages of five and seven. The specialty dramatic reader, Harriet Milling, gives the readings and the children furnish a very effective background. The Baby Pageant is something new in entertainment and exceptionally good. Another feature of the show is 20 girls in costume dances, and special song numbers. All in all "Aunt Lucia" is a great standard amateur production.

A full list of all the characters will be found in an ad. in the issue of this paper. Look them over!

This promises to be one of the biggest productions ever staged and is going to be well worth the price of admission. Tickets for reserved seats will be on sale at Reynolds' Book Store on September 10th.

A special Canteen luncheon will be served in the afternoons, at 4:30 p.m. Admission 35c.

ONE GOOD RECIPE MAKES A COOK FAMOUS

We all know how children and grown ups equally have a desire to make a raid on the cookie jar and it is a pleasant feeling to have it always filled. Here is a recipe that is easy to make and can be varied by changing the filling between the two delicate cookies.

Two cupsful brown sugar, one whole egg, one cupful butter or lard, five and a half cupfuls flour, one cupful sour milk, one teaspoonful of salt, one level teaspoonful soda.

Cream the sugar and butter, or lard, add egg well beaten, add sour milk mixed with soda and salt. Then add enough flour to make a soft dough. Roll dough to one-eighth inch thickness, shape with cookie cutter, and spread with whatever filling is preferred, such as apple jam, strawberry jam, or date filling, and then cover with cookie of an equal size. Sprinkle with white sugar and bake in moderate oven.

GIVE CONFIDENCE TO YOUNG MOTHERS

A simple and safe remedy for the common ills of babyhood and childhood should be kept in every home where there is either a baby or a young child. Often it is necessary to give the little ones something to break up a cold, allay fever, correct sour stomach, and banish the irritability that accompanies the cutting of teeth.

Experienced mothers always keep Baby's Own Tablets in the home as a safeguard against the troubles that beset their little ones so suddenly and the young mother can feel reasonably safe with a box of these Tablets at hand and ready for emergencies.

Baby's Own Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative that act without griping and they are absolutely guaranteed free from opiates or other harmful drugs. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A MODERN HABIT

Toronto and Montreal have more telephones than the combined number in six of the other provinces. Telephones—everywhere a necessity — are accepted as an integral part of big-city life. And the habit of calling friends and loved ones at a distance is growing apace.

PREMIER KING IS ENJOYING A REST

One man who has enjoyed perfect relaxation since August 28th is Premier King.

Nearly nine years of premiership carry with them more than the honor of office. Probably no Prime Minister was a more indefatigable worker than Mr. King. A corps of half a dozen secretaries were among the hardest-laborers of the capital during his regime. His energy seemed inexhaustible.

When the campaign ended he journeyed to his estate at Kingsmere and there, except for clearing up his desk, has been enjoying a respite from the responsibilities of office.

COVER THE CANES

Much of the annual winter loss to raspberry plants can be avoided by proper care in protecting them from frost. Horticultural experts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture advise bending the canes over and covering them with sufficient earth to hold them down. As a two man job this is easily and quickly done at little labour cost. While one gathers the canes and bends them gently to the ground with a fork, the other applies sufficient earth to hold them firmly to the ground. Experience has been results are obtained when the canes are entirely covered with soil most easily by doing the work before frost. by horse labour—hence the desirability of having rows about eight feet apart.

SKIM-MILK VS. BEEF SCRAP FOR WINTER EGGS

Importance of Animal Feeds

Animal feeds are often the limiting factor for high-egg yield, and production would often be materially increased if greater attention were given to this part of the ration. Among animal feeds, the ones most generally used at present are skim-milk and beef scrap.

Experiment at Cap Rouge

During five seasons, from November to February inclusive, an average of twenty-five Barred Rocks for each pen were fed practically the same quantities of grain, meal, grit, shell, and vegetable feeds, but one lot received skim-milk and the other beef scrap. The object was to compare these two animal feeds for winter egg production.

Results of Experiment

The lot receiving skim-milk laid more eggs and gained more weight than the one getting beef scrap. On the basis of the experiment, beef scrap is worth nine times more than skim-milk, weight for weight, so that at the usual valuation of skim-milk at 20 cents per 100 pounds, beef scrap would only be worth $36.00 per ton.

Suggestions

So that skim-milk may furnish all the protein required, 100 layers should get from 12 to 14 quarts per day. If this can be spared for the poultry, care should be taken that it be given always sweet or always sour, to prevent digestive troubles, and that it does not freeze. If it cannot be spared, beef scrap should be given to make the deficiency.

Miller's Worm Powders act so thoroughly that stomachic and intestinal worms pass from the child without being noticed and without inconvenience to the sufferer. They are painless and perfect in action, and at all times will be found a healthy medicine, strengthening the infantile stomach and maintaining it in vigorous operation, so that besides being an effective vermifuge, they are tonical and health-giving in their effects. 37

How excited — and how happy — she was the first time she heard her son's voice come over the telephone from a distant city. Talking with him was as easy as though he were in the same room. It was something to remember and to cherish for days afterwards.

And how much happier she has become, because Fred comes home by telephone now every week. He calls her every Sunday evening at eight-thirty. It is an hour she waits for and looks forward to all week long. It brightens days that had become a bit empty and lonely with the family scattered.

Fred is happier, too. For the price of a movie he gets something no money can measure — his mother's voice — a touch of home. It's a fine way to start a new week's work.

MODERN WAYS DEMAND STEEL AND RIVETED CONSTRUCTION

RIVETED

Torrid Zone steel furnaces are the only riveted and caulked-gas-tight boiler plate furnaces in Canada. When installed according to the Standard Code, as designed by research engineers for the National Warm Air Heating Association, they will recirculate warm, fresh air evenly throughout every room in your house. Guesswork has surrendered to science in Torrid Zone heating.

THE TORRID ZONE furnace is the most durable furnace that is made today, because it is made of STEEL—heavy plates of steel, caulked and riveted, gas-tight and dust-tight. The average life of Torrid Zone furnaces has been twenty-one years. The Torrid Zone furnace is GUARANTEED for ten years.

Cupolas in which iron is melted are made of steel, lined with fire brick, just as Torrid Zone steel furnaces are made of heavy boiler plates and are lined with fire brick.

Steel heats quicker than iron. Torrid Zone furnaces will heat with less fuel because their extra large heating surfaces radiate heat from the fire quickly. Soot will not accumulate on smooth steel walls to retard radiation of heat as it does on iron-walled furnaces.

Because they are made of steel—riveted, gas-tight, like a boiler—Torrid Zone furnaces not only heat quicker and more powerfully, and with less fuel than ordinary furnaces, but they always deliver CLEAN heat. No dust, no gas, no smoke or soot.

BUOYANT OPTIMISM PREVALENT IN WEST

"There is a buoyancy throughout the west, with the new crop coming on, that you can't get away from and the general outlook is optimistic," declared Col. J. G. Rattray, chairman of the Soldier Settlement Board, upon returning to Ottawa after a month's official trip to the Pacific Coast. "Manitoba has the promise of the best crop in its history; British Columbia agriculturally is in splendid shape and Saskatchewan and Alberta are likely to have average crops. I estimate a crop of between 350 and 400 millions bushels this years."

Col. Rattray stated that one of the causes of crop failure in certain districts of the west this year has been due to wind drift, which spoiled the early spring growth. Investigations showed that this has occurred in districts where the combines were used and the long stubble burned off and the ordinary fibre of the top soil was spoiled. However, new methods are rapidly being followed by the farmers to offset this disadvantage of the combine, which has greatly cheapened labor costs in the harvesting.

Business conditions as a whole, retail and wholesale, are from 10 to 12 per cent below normal in the west but there is a hopeful spirit due to the prospects of a new crop, according to Col. Rattray.

DO YOU VALUE YOUR HEALTH

If your health is poor; if you are pale, nervous and easily tired; if you suffer from headaches and backaches; if your digestion is bad you may depend upon it that these symptoms come from an impoverished state of the blood. That unless this condition is remedied a complete breakdown may follow. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a perfect medicine for any one in this condition. They enrich and purify the blood and thus promote health and strength.

Mrs. G. M. Andrews, Halifax, N. S., writes:—"I always keep Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the house. When I was a young, anaemic girl they completely restored my health. After marriage my health broke down and once more these pills brought me back to health. My friends all tell me how well I look and for this Dr. Williams' Pink Pills deserve all credit."

You can get these pills at all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

LARGE PAYMENTS PAID BY BRITAIN TO VETERANS HERE

Few people in Canada realize the large amount of money which Great Britain spends each year in payments to Imperial War pensioners in this country, according to Sir. Gerald Cheyseal, K.C.B., who was in Ottawa this week visiting the Canadian headquarters of the British Ministry of Pensions.

Sir George stated that a sum between five and six million dollars was paid out each year by the home government to Imperial pensioners and their dependents resident in the Dominion. Canada is the only part of the Empire which has a headquarters for payment and this was rendered necessary by the large number of pensioners.

Some idea of the colossal burden the Motherland is bearing in connection with the post-war care of its veterans can be gaged by the fact that the sum of more than 4,500,000,000 has been spent in war pensions alone since the Armistice. This sum exceeds the whole pre-war national debt of Great Britain. The present expenditure is approximately fifty-three million pounds a year or slightly over a million pounds a week.

There are in Canada and the United States about 1,200 war pensioners who are paid from Ottawa while the total number in receipt of pensions in England and abroad, including dependents, is in excess of 1,250,000. The annual bill for pensions had dropped from $550,000,000 in 1923 to $225,000,000 at the present time. The cost of operations for the Pensions Ministry is only two per cent of the total expenditure.

One of the big phases of the work in the Motherland is the care of disabled and sick veterans in the great hospitals owned by the ministry and its general hospitals. Every class of injury and affliction was handled and wonderful results had been obtained in orthopedic surgery and in the treatment of mental cases. Hundreds of plastic surgery cases which entailed horrible disfigurement had been successfully treated and men who before had never dared to go abroad were now gainfully employed in congenial occupations.

THE SERVICE ARMY

More than 16,000 per sons carry on the telephone work of the Bell System in Ontario and Quebec, operators — linemen — installers — commercial workers — all co-operate to maintain "the talking wires" for a busy population. Talks to distant friends are becoming a weekly habit with thousands of users.

Cause of Asthma. No one can say with certainty exactly what causes the establishing of asthmatic conditions. Dust from the street, from flowers, from grain and various other irritants may set up a trouble impossible to irradicate except through a sure preparation such as Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. Uncretainty may exist as to cause, but there can be no uncertainty regarding a remedy which has freed a generation of asthmatic victims from this scourge of the bronchial tubes. It is sold everywhere. 37

GREETS POSTAL SERVICE

A message has been sent to all the postmasters in the Dominion by the new Postmaster General, Hon. Arthur Sauve, in which he says: "It is my privilege to be in charge of the Public Department which, perhaps more than any other, reaches so deeply into the lives of the Canadian people The office of the Postmaster General of Canada brings with it great responsibilities and a splendid opportunity for public service. With the loyal help of that great body of workers who make up Canada's Postal Service, I hope to make our Department a still greater force in the advancement of Canada."

WAKEFUL NIGHTS FROM INDIGESSTION

Nothing wears you out more quickly than a period of wakeful, restless nights or fitful slumber marred by unpleasant dreams. The cause is often digestive disturbance and the remedy is a little "Bisurated" Magnesia after the last meal or before going to bed. This calms the stomach, neutralizes excess acid, banishes the fermenting unrest and induces healthy, restful slumber by the sensible means of producing peaceful normal digestion. "Bisurated" Magnesia is obtainable at any good drug store in either powder or tablet form and a simple trial will prove its value beyond question.

FASCINATING LINKS IN CANADA'S HISTORY

In striking contrast to the travelling facilities of today with our fast express and modern bus lines, is the stage coach of only a hundred years ago, when it took a whole day to make a journey which we now make in a couple of hours. With the advent of air travelling these journeys are being shortened day by day so that in time ours now up-to-date time tables may be items of great historic interest.

In the Dominion Archives at Ottawa, is a greatly valued poster with the heading: "Mail Stages Leaving Sweetsburg" in large letters. Sweetsburg is today a thriving little town in the Eastern Townships, about sixty miles from Montreal on the Boundary highway, and only one mile from Cowansville, a busy industrial town. According to the poster, Mr. A. Pickle, was the proprietor and Mr. George Beals was the owner of the St. Albans Line. The descendants of these enterprising gentlemen are still living in the district. The poster was printed by the Democratic Print of St. Albans, Vermont, on May 16th, 1826 and announces that stages leave Sweetsburg daily, except Sunday, for West Farnham, Knowlton, St. Albans and Richford, and on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays for Waterloo and on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays for Granby.

The coaches al Ileft between the hours of two and six in the morning and returned the same evenings, often probably only in time to start out on the next day's trip. The condition of the roads in those days will leave a good deal to the imagination, while the roads through that same district today are splendid and but travelling it quite often, quite of the opinion that they are all very winding and have many ups and downs

ACCIDENT ON KINGSTON HIGHWAY

A car driven by John Gambora, travelling along the Kingston Highway on Monday, collided with one owned by Henry Lewis. The Gamboro car was going east and on the wrong side of the road. In order to avoid an accident the Lewis car, travelling west, swung south. Both cars sideswiped. The four occupants received serious scalp wounds and the cars were badly damaged. The accident took place just beside the Parrot farm, ten miles East of Napanee.

"MOTHER" WHITTEMORE COMING!

This district is to be favoured in having a visit from one of the most successful down-town city workers on the continent, in the person of Mrs. Emma M. Whittemore, of New York City. She will be in Selby United Church, Friday this week, September 12th for special services at 2:30 p.m. and 8:00 p.m. "Mother" Whittemore left a social circle of wealth and pleasure to carry the Gospel to the slums of the great city. She has been wonderfully successful and has an amazing story to tell, of the triumphs of the Gospel to reclaim the fallen. She was the founder of the "Door of Hope" movement and it still its president.

BISHOP TSEN AT ROTARY

Bishop Tsen, of Honan, China, was the guest of honor at the Rotary meeting on Tuesday. He is a man of keen intellect, deep sympathies and international outlook.

In the choicest of English, he described the present situation in China. China is in a state of change and movement. The movement is not of one of the one sort; it is intellectual, social, economic and political. The Civil War in China is not a war between political parties for the contending major factions are both Nationalists. The weakness in China is that these sections of the one party have not learned to co-operate with each other instead of trying to settle their differences by debate, they are doing it by force of arms.

Communism, the speaker said, has no part in the present conflict. The communists are a comparatively small group.

After the speech the speaker was generously thanked by the Rotary for his illuminating address.

TRAGIC ACCIDENT ON HIGHWAY

One of the most serious accidents in this vicinity, occurred yesterday on the Provincial Highway, between Bellenonville and Belleville. A large Packard car, belonging to a medical doctor from Indiana, was driving West. In the front seat was the chauffeur and the owner of the car. Coming in the opposite direction was a car, said to be owned in Cobourg. It were three men. It is said that the Indiana car swung over to avoid a crash. At the same moment the Cobourg car swung to the right side. The result; fas a head on collision.

The owner of the Packard and the driver of the Cobourg car were both instantly killed. The impact was terrific. The Packard was practically demolished while the smaller car was sent hurtling through the air. The skid marks on the road have been painted and photographed. An investigation will be held to determine the responsibility.

FREE SHOTS ON Local Sport

Last week, the officials of the Odessa and Gilbbard Baseball Clubs got together and chose the play-off dates as September 10th and 13th; the first game to be at Odessa and the second at Napanee.

* * *

If a third game is necessary, it will be played on September 20th, at Odessa.

* * *

The village team have skinned their diamond and the grounds are in fine shape generally.

* * *

However it is hardly likely that a third game will be necessary, in fact, I am of the opinion that whichever team wins the first game, will cop the second. But I am not going to venture an opinion as to which team will be the victor on the first day.

* * *

Odessa have been playing good ball all season, and have made a few changes in their line-up, which will strengthen them defensively. It will be real hitting and smart fielding on the part of the locals to hold this outfit.

* * *

Walter Gerow, coach of the Belleville Nationals, who lost out in the finals to Bell Telephone, has been trying to remedy some of the weak spots in the local squad. They have been playing good ball, off and on, all season.

* * *

The only trouble is that they are liable to be off just when they need a game in the worst way. However, they are improving under the veteran's tutoring and will give the league leaders a run for their money.

* * *

It must be remembered that the two games which Odessa took from the locals, were only won by a very narrow margin: there was very little to choose between the teams.

* * *

At their worst, the play-off battles will produce mighty fast, close exhibitions and likely both teams will be well supported.

* * *

The suggestion made in this column last week that Deseronto and Napanee have a joint Aquatic Club, has been taken seriously by a number of the local supporters, and many are in favor of it.

* * *

Neither town, at the present time, is strong enough to support a real live club, and then, if in a few years' time the clubs wish to split, it would be alright.

MOTOR CAR TAKES A NOSE DIVE

On Tuesday, a motor car owned by Mrs. Gilbride was parked, by her, on the sloping ground in front of her residence. She neglected to put on the emergency and as soon as she left the car began to amble down the slope on its own. With uncanny accuracy it avoided the obstacles which could have easily impeded its progress, and quietly and surely it slipped into the drink up to the rear axel. There it hung until, by means of ropes, pulleys and man power, it was recovered. Now it is working as usual and seems none the worse for its dip.

SAD ACCIDENT TO FORMER NAPANEEAN

MRS. GLEESON INSTANTLY KILLED ON TUESDAY

Dr. Harry Gleason, of Lindsay, formerly of Napanee, had made a hurried trip from his home in Lindsay, to Toronto in order to bring back his mother who had been on a visit there. On his way back home, the two were in the car together when suddenly they crashed into a truck which was parked on the roadside with a punctured tire. Mrs. Gleeson was struck on the head and her skull was fractured. She probably died instantly. The doctor was badly shaken up but did not suffer serious injury. The exact cause of the accident, which took place near Port Perry, has not as yet been ascertained.

The body was brought to Napanee on Friday and was buried from the home of Mr. P. Gleeson, on East Street, on Friday morning.

The sympathy of the community goes out to Dr. Gleeson, who is so well known here. The wife of Dr. Gleeson was prevented from attending the funeral here as she is laid up with a broken ankle.

SELBY

Silo-filling is the order of the day and everyone reports a good crop this year.—There was a fine attendance at the meetings on Sunday, this community on Sunday morning, between 3:00 and 4.00 p.m. Mr. Walter Huffman's barn and drying sheds were levelled to the ground, destroying all his hay, straw, and grain, as well as the tractor and other machinery. Mr. Adam Parks' house was struck, doing much damage to the radio and telephone. Mr. Ben Hupek lost two valuable cows. But the most unique experience was that of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Miller and family. They were sitting in the kitchen when a bolt came in at the window, shattering the setting the curtains beside the telephone on the receiving the room, tearing up some of the floor, then into another room, lifting again some of the hardwood flooring and then going on through two windows breaking the glass. None of the family were hurt. The heavy rain was much needed. Someone has to pay the price of all good things in life.—A very happy time was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Clarke, Bethany, on Thursday, September 11th, when about 100 relatives and neighbors and friends met together to celebrate with them the 50th anniversary of their wedding day. On September 11th, 1880, the happy couple were united in marriage by Rev. Mr. Hansford, the pastor of one of the Methodist Churches in Napanee. Their family consisted of four children, Frank, on the homestead; Mrs. James Keech and Mrs. Edward Bartley, of Bethany; and the late Mrs. William Joyce, who died about nineteen years ago. This honored couple very always active in every good work. Mr. Clarke was for years superintendent of the Bethany Sunday School, and in all ways took an active interest in the work of the church. Mrs. Clarke taught in the Sunday School and was one of the first presidents of the Ladies' Aid. About seventy guests assembled for the dinner, which was served at high noon. After the sumptuous repast, toasts were proposed by the pastor of the circuit, Rev. J. E. Beckel. The toast to the bride was replied to by Mr. James Clarke; the toast to the children, by Mr. Frank Clarke; the toast to the grandchildren, by Mrs. James Keech; and the toast to the great grandchildren by Mr. William Joyce. Addresses were given by Mr. Harry Foote, of Peterborough; Mr. William Goodman, Mrs. Bigelow Stinson and Mrs. Norman. The out of town guests were from Jackson, Michigan; Napanee, Tyendinaga and Shannonville. September 30th — "Hay Day Ladies' Aid are holding their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Alexander Mrs. L. T. Parks, on Thursday afternoon, September 18th at 2.30 p.m.—The Ladies of the Bay West Women's Missionary Society met at Mrs. James Robertson's home on Wednesday afternoon last. The President took charge and presented a very helpful programme. Mrs. Ira Parks spoke on the importance of cultivating the home life. Mrs. Robertson and Mrs. Lott also presented a musical selection; different members gave readings. Mrs. Robertson served lunch and the social half hour was very helpful. — Two of the Rally Day services were held on Sunday last. At Hay Bay the orchestra added greatly to the interest of the service, while at Anderson at night, the choir, under the leadership of Mr. A. Baldwin rendered excellent service. Two more Rally Services are being held this Sunday at Sand Hill at 10:30 a.m. and Greenly at 7:30 p.m.

The Bay East Women's Missionary Society held their monthly meeting at Mrs. Allan Baldwin's on Thursday afternoon. The attendance was a little below the average. Arrangements were made to have a fowl supper in Greenly Church the latter part of October, to help raise their assessment. Mrs. Baldwin acted as hostess and all enjoyed the homelike spirit of the gathering. Mrs. Jeffrey sang "Just Over the Hill." Mrs. Mellow's, Gretna.—A number of the members of the Bay Methodist Church attended the special memorial service in Selby United Church on Sunday afternoon.

Napanee Filtering Plant Soon Ready

EXPECTED TO BE IN OPERATION EARLY IN NOVEMBER

The largest consumer of water in Napanee is the condensary. This year, the management has been making all its facilities for handling milk and shipping out into new fields of manufacture. One of the plans of the dairy called for a modern, up-to-date condensary for the production of butter. In order to make butter, the water used must be medically pure. Up till this year the Napanee did not have running water which was medically pure. But the action of the condensary forced the Public Utilities Commission to investigate its feasibility. After thorough investigation, it was discovered that a modern, up-to-date filtration plant could be built out of the surplus fund of the Public Utilities Commission, without any extra burden on the tax payer.

Tenders were called and the work started. The MacGregor Construction Company, Limited, got the contract for the building for $17,500. The Equipment Company Supply Co., of Otisville, received the contract for the filter equipment at $10,500. When the plant is completed early in November, Napanee will have a thoroughly modern filtering plant capable of supplying 1200 gallons of pure water a minute to the citizens of the town, and without any increase in rates.

How It Works

The system consists of three parts, the mixing chamber, the basins and the filters. The water is taken from the canal into the mixing chamber, a large concrete structure — and as it flows through this a certain amount of alum is added to it; the amount used is automatically determined by the quantity of water which is being drawn off. From thence, the water flows into the basins. These are large concrete structures with numerous partitions crossing the interior, which act as baffle plates to keep the water flowing in and around in a circuitous fashion. During this part of the journey, the alum gets in its work and precipitates all foreign matter from the water. The journey of the water through this sectional stage, takes from two to four hours, depending on the amount which is being drawn off. From the basins, the water flows by gravity to the filters. These are filled with a sufficient amount of chlorine to render it free from bacteria. It is then pumped to the filters. There are three of them, huge boiler-like steel tanks. They are filled with gravel at three graduated sizes, over of which is a deep layer of a very fine ocean sand. The water is forced through this and when it emerges, it is fit for human consumption.

The taking over of the waterworks of the town was one of the best investments the Napanee Corporation ever made and now that this modern and scientific system is about to be put in, Napanee will be able to boast of a water supply second to none, for a town of its size, in Canada.

ODESSA W. I.

The September meeting of the Odessa Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Dr. Maybee. The meeting was opened by all singing the Institute ode and repeating the Lord's Prayer, led by Mrs. S. Sproule, president. The roll call, "ways of preparing food for winter use," brought forth many new and practical recipes. The minutes of the last two meetings were read and approved and the usual business dealt with. Several letters of thanks were read. these showing that our Institute does not forget the sick and sorrowful.

Moscow Women's Institute, who had been invited to this meeting, then took charge of the programme. Mrs. Percy Asselstine, president, acted as chairwoman and the following interesting programme was given: Instrumental duet, Mrs. Everett Evans and Miss Evelyn Potter; a reading, "Tortures of week-end visiting," Mrs. A. A. Asselstine; a vocal duet, Mrs. LaVerne Huffman and Mrs. Wilmot Shagnaw; a paper, "Courtesy and good manners in the home," Mrs. Tyrell Milsap. This excellent paper contained thoughts that we could all take home with us and put in practice. A contest, prepared by Mrs. M. I. Huffman, was enjoyed and the prize, a box of dainty handkerchiefs, was awarded to Mrs. Kennedy, of Kingston.

Mrs. Sproule again took charge of the meeting, introducing Miss Goring, president of Kingston's Local Council of Women. She gave a very instructive talk on the National Council of Women of Canada, telling of its origin in 1904 and of its growth and good work since that time. Mrs. McDonald, of Kingston, spoke for a few moments about the Home and School Club, a branch of Institute work which aims to more closely unite the mothers and teachers in their common task. Mrs. Kennedy, librarian of Kingston Public Library, spoke of the influence books have on children. She said good books were an essential to the growing child as good food and good health. The child's mind must be fed and cared for as well as the child's body. She urged the Institute to support our Public Library and trust therein the children of their mental food.

The Secretary then moved a vote of thanks to the Kingston Ladies for their kindness in coming and helping with the programme. Mrs. Mayhee enjoyed the motion include the Moscow ladies, who had given such excellent numbers.

The meeting closed by singing God Save the King. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess and committee in charge and a social half hour spent.

Mother (admonishing small boy): And don't forget that I'm your mother.

Small Boy: Yes, but I do wish you'd quit bragging about it.

FRED NEWMAN, PICTON, AND JOHN ELLIOT, BELLEVILLE, TAKE ACTIVE PART IN EMPIRE TRADE DEBATE

The printed reports of the Federation of Boards of Trade, which met in London in May, of this year, have just reached Canada. The report shows that Canada was worthily represented by Mr. Fred Newman, Picton, who seconded the following resolution, which was one of the most important motions passed at this Conference:

"The Congress is of the opinion that greater attention could be paid by industrialists throughout the Empire to the openings in the respective Empire markets for the establishment of branch industries and warehouses, and urges the desirability of laying before its members information concerning such openings."

"The Congress would direct the attention of the Federation to the open doors which exist in the Dominion and Colonies for a greater flow of capital into investment in plant and equipment for industrial and commercially purposes, and would recommend that after competent advice has been secured, greater cognisance be taken of these openings by the business men of the Empire."

"Recognizing that the British consular and commercial diplomatic services in foreign countries, and the British Trade Commissioner services in the Dominions are constantly collecting a very considerable amount of commercial intelligence data, which is of practical interest, not only to the exporters of Great Britain but also to the exporters of the Dominions and Colonies, the Congress recommends to the British Government that ways and means be explored as to (1) whether it is feasible to pool this commercial intelligence data for the benefit of the entire Empire, and (2) whether there is room for greater co-ordination of the British Consular and diplomatic commercial services, and the Trade Commissioner services of the Empire units."

"The Congress would urge upon the Federation that under its direction a British Empire map of the world and of globe be designed, and, after preparation, made available to Empire schools, showing graphically the trade routes, resources, principal imports and exports, etc, and indicating in an interesting and intelligable way, the economic geography of the Empire units, and that consideration might well be given, in conjunction with the Royal Empire Society, to the preparation of a text-book in connection therewith."

"The Congress is of the opinion that in the desirable work of educating consumers throughout the Empire units in the use of Empire goods, the Federation might well lay emphasis on the advantages to be derived from making greater use of displays of Empire products at the different fairs and exhibitions throughout the Empire."

THE LATE SIDNEY J. SPROULE

The funeral of Mr. Sidney J. Sproule, who passed away last Tuesday night, was held from his late residence in Odessa, Friday afternoon and was one of the largest in this vicinity, for many years. The large home was crowded with relatives and friends and many were obliged to remain on the verandah and lawn.

The lovely casket was banked with beautiful floral offerings from Caroline Hat, Toronto, Rochester, Kingston and Odessa. Among the out of town relatives and friends, who attended were Mr. and Mrs. T. Carter, Mr. and Mrs. T. Connolly and Mr. Charley Pethick, Toronto; Mr. Joseph Hamilton, Millbrook and Mr. Malcolm Denyes, Milton.

The service was in charge of the Masonic order and Rev. George McQuade, in his eloquent sermon, used many expressions of sympathy for the bereaved family and their friends. Mr. H. J. Smith and Mrs. W. C. Fielding sang very sweetly, "Some Day We Shall Know."

Interment took place in the family plot in Cataraqui Cemetery, by the side of his son, Bert, and daughter, Miss Pearl, who predeased him about the thirteen years ago. The pall-bearers were Mr. Arch Hepadorn, Mr. W. S. Holmes, Mr. Elgin Parrott, Mr. Percy Wright, Mr. Smith and Mr. William Dougherty. The funeral was in charge of our local undertaker, Mr. William Jokes.

WEDDING BELLS

FOX — McCONNELL

A quiet, but wedding took place on August 23rd, at seven o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, when Marian Nellie, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William John McConnell, became the bride of Mr. Lewis Wilson Fox, of Centreville. The strains of the wedding march played by Mr. A. Roy Kendall (L.R.A.M.; A.A.G.O.), of Kingston, the bride was escorted by her father to a beautifully decorated arch. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. E. Oliver, of Roblin. The bride wore a wedding gown of white French georgette. Her veil was of net, and caught with orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of roses. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Marguerite McConnell, who wore a gown of pale green georgette. The groom was supported by Mr. Claude Winter, of Selby.

Immediately after the ceremony, a wedding dinner was served to about thirty of the nearest relatives while Miss Madeline Coburn, of Enterprise, and Miss Thelma Hall, of Campbellford poured tea. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome wrist watch; to the bridesmaid, a crystal set; and to the best man and pianist, gold cuff links.

On Monday morning, Mr. and Mrs. Fox left on moor trip, to the coast, and from there to Los Angeles, California, and will return by way of the Central States; the bride travelling in a navy blue crepe ensemble.

Mr. and Mrs. Fox will be at home after November the first.

TRINITY CHURCH W. M. S.

The September meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Trinity Church was held on Monday afternoon Sept. 8th, at 3 p.m. The President, Mrs. J. Daly, was in the chair. After the opening hymn, the Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Ashley. The minutes of the June meeting were read by the Secretary, Mrs. H. Van Luven. This was followed by the reading of the Devotional Leaflet, by Miss Baughn.

Miss Shorey then gave a very timely reading, relating the experience of two humble souls, in their efforts to tithe from a small income the difficulties and obstacles that stood in their way, and their final triumph and peace of mind when they had definitely decided to set aside their tenth for the work of the Lord. Miss Shorey has a genius for finding this sort of reading and it seemed so very appropriate just now, when the time is drawing near for us to once again render an account of our year's work as loyal members of the Women's Missionary Society.

Mrs. D. B. Wilson announced the W. M. S. District Rally to be held in Newburgh United Church on Friday, October 3rd. The delegates appointed for this convention were Mrs. Asselstine and Miss Dunbar.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by Miss Dora Casey and her committee. An unusually delightful half hour followed, while the members once more renewed associations, broken by the holiday season.

THIN THEM OUT

Sowing from 6 to 9 pounds per acre of the best grade mangel seed and thinning the plants out to nine inches apart gives the highest yield per acre according to Field Husbandry specialist of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. These deductions were arrived at after a series of studies in sowing and thinning carried out over a period of five years.

A NATIONAL MARK

The use of a national mark in identifying the quality of meats and farm products in Great Britain is proving very satisfactory, says the current report of the British Ministry of Agriculture. The Red and Blue brands on beef are the national marks of quality in Canada. The Live Stock Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture establishes the quality of meat carrying the official brand for the protection and convenience of the consumer. Purchasing beef with the Red Brand means Choice or Grade and when the Blue brand mark—Medium. Try to enjoy eating Graded Beef.

WOMEN WHO SUFFER FROM INDIGESTION
HERE IS QUICKEST, SAFEST RELIEF KNOWN

Thousands of women — especially those in their middle forties — begin to notice unmistakable signs of some acid trouble.

Soreness, Gas and Bloating (also nearly every most) and shortness of breath, faintness, dizziness and a feeling of oppression or pressure around the heart are first of many distressing symptoms. This may be due to functional disorders, nervousness or overeating — but sometimes out of ten the real cause of the trouble may be traced to Acid Stomach!

The stomach needs an alkaline — something to neutralize the excess acid that is causing the trouble. There is nothing better for this purpose than "Bisurated Magnesia" (commonly available in sealed packages of powder or tablets from any druggist). Just a little "Bisurated" Magnesia taken in water, after meals will quickly do away with the sour, bloating and pressure by neutralizing the excess acid. It brings almost instant relief from soreness and distress. Agricultural, Industrial Progress in Canada

Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island.—The Prince Edward Island Exhibition was opened August 18th by Premier Walter M. Lea and Mayor Lawrence of Charlottetown and Lafotone of Summerside, with a record number of entries—horses, cattle, sheep, etc.—as well as a good showing in the various branches of industry and art.

Halifax, Nova Scotia.— The Royal Commission studying the fruit industry in Nova Scotia recommends the creation of an organization to bring under one control all the various co-operative undertaking the marketing of Annapolis Valley fruit. The name suggested for the central body is "The Consolidated Fruit Company of Nova Scotia." The Commission also recommends that there be complete and compulsory inspection of all fruit from the Valley, either for Canadian consumption or for export.

Halifax, Nova Scotia.—Local shipping authorities express the belief that with the opening of the winter season the Port of Halifax will be a clearing point for cattle shipments to England, which were destined to revive on an ample scale.

Kentville, Nova Scotia.—The Annapolis Valley apple crop for the present season will amount to about 1,750,000 barrels, according to an estimate of the Dominion Atlantic Railway. It is pointed out by Arthur T. Smith, general freight and passenger agent of the line, that, "this crop, although smaller than last season's, will be better than the 1924 to 1929 average and shipments have begun a week to ten days earlier than last year."

Fredericton, New Brunswick.— Specialists of the University of New Brunswick are making a survey of the mineral outcroppings on the holdings of the Lake George Mines Limited at the antimony deposit in York County, N. B. Bodies of ore are being taken out of the mines and shipped to Europe for tests.

Fredericton, New Brunswick.— The soils and crop division of the New Brunswick Department of Agriculture estimates this years' oat yield at 219,000 bushels as compared with 216,530 last year; buckwheat is rated at 45,000 bushels, or about 1,000 more than last year, and hay is expected to equal that of last year at 359,000 tons. Potatoes, at an estimated yield of 47,000 bushels, show a gain of some 2,000 bushels over 1929 and the mixed grain crop is about on a par with last year.

Montreal, Que.—The Produced-in-Canada Association (Quebec), with a view to demonstrating that Canadian-made goods are in many cases superior to those imported and that a larger patronage of the former would go far towards building up Canadian industry and manufactures, is preparing for the second annual National Produced-in-Canada Exhibition, to be held at the Stadium, Montreal, from November 3rd to 8th inclusive. Canadian-made goods will be on display.

Montreal, Que.—With one exception—that of 1929—the production of newsprint in Canada for the seven months ended July 31st has made a record out at 1,500,341 tons as compared with 1,540,343 tons in 1929.

Ottawa.— Production of iron and steel and their manufactures in Canada was valued at $232,960,000 in 1929 according to the Bureau of Statistics. This total was 29 per cent above the corresponding figure of $609,632,909 for 1928 and exceeded in value the output for any previous year excepting 1918. Reports were received from 1,169 operating establishments. Capital employed was given at $752,286,626; the number of employees was 130,762; salaries and wages totalled $183,342,062 and the cost of materials was $383,217,106.

Ottawa.—A new market for Canadian apples in Hong Kong has been reported to the Department of Trade and Commerce by Paul Sykes, Canadian Trade Commissioner. The bulk of this trade is controlled by the United States, but last year apples from Canada were received into the market favorably, a preference being shown to British Columbia fruit.

Toronto, Ontario.—Rose growing as a business is rapidly developing throughout Canada into a trade of considerable magnitude, according to the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Although the great majority of growers are found in Ontario, nurserymen and florists are cultivating roses in every province of the Dominion.

Winnipeg, Manitoba.—The Government of Manitoba will maintain the three fish hatcheries taken over from the Dominion Government and increase the output of the Lake Manitoba hatchery by 25 per cent, according to C. H. Attwood, Deputy Minister of Mines and Natural Resources, addressing a general meeting of the Canadian Fisheries Association.

Regina, Saskatchewan.—The creamery butter production in the Province of Saskatchewan for the month of July was 2,469,332 pounds, being an increase of 12 per cent over June when the output was 2,202,835 pounds, though ten per cent below the July, 1929, figure of 2,744,860. For the seven months the total is just a little below that of the corresponding period of 1929, being 8,390,646 pounds compared with 8,872,904 pounds.

Edmonton, Alberta.—A decisive step towards the formation of an Industrial Development Board of Alberta will be taken some time in September at a meeting to be held, probably, in Edmonton between Provincial Government representatives and leaders of commerce and industry, at which all angles of the project will be discussed, according to Howart Stutchbury, Provincial Trade Commissioner. Preliminary meetings have been held in various cities including Calgary, Lethbridge and Medicine Hat, at which general plans have been discussed and steps taken to appoint representatives to the September meeting.

Calgary, Alberta.— More than 2,500 head of feeder cattle have been applied for under the Red Label Beef Club plan as compared with 800 applied for last year when it was started. Manager W. G. McKenzie told the Southern Alberta Co-operative Association the other day.

Vancouver, British Columbia.— During the 1929-30 crop year which closed July 31, a total of 465 ships loaded 49,672,282 bushels of grain at the Port of Vancouver for world ports — or, roughly, nine ships a week, according to the Port of Vancouver News.

Victoria, British Columbia.—Following a successful trial shipment of British Columbia fresh milk to the Orient, comes word of a special order for prime dairy butter to Hong Kong, the shipment to be arranged through the Department of Agriculture. On September 4th the first test shipment of butter within the knowledge of the department will cross the Pacific for the Far East.

TO BACON CYCLE

"The production of hogs in Canada at the present time is at the low point in the production cycle," state the Live Stock Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. Current supplies and supplies in prospect are not more than sufficient to meet the active home demand. It is noted, however, that there has been very little falling off in hog production, but rather that supplies have failed to keep pace with a growing domestic consumption. There are signs at the present time that the coming year may show a substantial increase in hogs production while at the same time the re-adjustment of prices may result in the resumption of bacon exports.

CURING PORK

Temperature is an important factor in the home curing of pork observe experts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. The meat ceases to take salt when the temperature falls below 36 degrees Fahrenheit. Therefore, dry curing to be successful must be done in a room in which the temperature does not long remain below this point. In brine curing care must be taken to avoid fermentation which occurs when the temperature rises above 45 degrees Fahrenheit, and also to see the temperature of the room does not drop below 35 degrees Fahrenheit. It is also well to freshen brine frequently as this tends to prevent fermentation. Detailed instructions in the home curing of pork and its products is available free of charge on application to the Department at Ottawa.

PALE FACES JADED NERVES

Due To Weak, Watery Blood.

Anaemia — impoverished blood — comes so stealthily that it is often well advanced before recognized. Fatigue and discomfort, the earliest manifestations of the trouble, are seldom taken seriously. Soon the face becomes pale; the nerves jaded; the heart palpitates violently after the slightest exertion; the appetite becomes fickle and before you realize it you are in a terrible plight.

At such time, by enriching and purifying the blood, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will build up the nerve cells and correct the run-down condition. Concerning them Miss Margaret Torrey, Toronto, Ont., says: — "I suffered a complete breakdown. My heart would palpitate on the least exertion. Nothing I ate agreed with me. I started taking Dr. Dilliams Pink Pills and by the time I had taken several boxes I was ready for any thing; I had gained in weight and every distressing symptom had left me."

You can get these Pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

POSTAL SURVEYOR FORECASTS REVOLT OF UNITED STATES

In 1773 Hugh Finlay, surveyor of the Posts, made a journey from Quebec to Savannah, Ga., and visited all the principal post offices of that day. His superbly detailed diary has just been found and has been presented to the post office department.

At the time of Mr. Finlay's journey the Postal Service was being tossed to the eddies of the approaching Revolutionary War; the colonists were fighting every feature of its control by England; but even in the confusion of the period the fine traditions of the service were crystallized.

The story runs as follows: Turning back the meter of time 157 years, as the morning mists rise from the St. Lawrence River, below the heights of Quebec, a party of three white men and eight Indians embarked for a journey in five flimsy birch bark canoes. Their object was to blaze a post route through the wilds of Maine to Boston town in the "Province of Massachusetts." That there is no road worthy of the name along the route even to this day, is a tribute to the pioneer spirit of these early adventurers.

This tribute must go to the Postal Service, for the leader was Hugh Finlay, Deputy Postmaster General of Canada, soon to be named successor to Benjamin Franklin, one of the deputy postmasters general of the Colonies. Finlay, on the morning of September 13th, 1773, was setting out on a most interesting journey. Besides prospecting a new trail he was under orders to make a survey of the post routes and post offices of the 13 American colonies. His route lay along the only real highway in the American colonies. After reaching the first settlements in Maine he made his way to Falmouth, on to Boston and New York, arriving in Philadelphia on December 9th. Shipping to Charleston, S. C. he rode to Savannah, Ga., and then made his way over boggy trails northward to Norfolk, Va.

"We unloaded our canoes" says the writer in speaking of his journey from Maine to Chaleo Bay; "lifted them out of the water and carried them and our provisions above the fall, made a slow fire and set the canoes to dry at a distance from it; then we made a wigwam or hut of branches, open in front; the floor of our wigwam we laid with tender sprigs of the aromatic spruce tree which makes a soft comfortable bed. After supper each man wraps himself in his blanket, lays himself down on his spruce bed with his feet to the fire and passes the night in sound and refreshing sleep. We rise with the sun, pitch our canoes, load them and leave the encampment. We found trout, ducks and partridges everywhere."

Arriving in the colonies, the surveyor found the seeds of revolt sprouting everywhere. Anything that represented the English Government, the Colonies were ready to resist. His Majesty's post, much to the concern of His Majesty's trusted servant, was one of these. "They are, they say, to be governed by laws of their own framing and not other," he wrote. There is the revolution in a sentence. It was the particular delight of the Colonists to give their letters and payment for transmittal to the riders appointed by the representative Majesty George III claimed for the post. Drivers on the stages would take the letters and it was declared by Finlay to be "next to impossible to stop this practice in the present universal opposition to everything connected with Great Britain."

To have the children sound and healthy is the first aim of a mother. They cannot be healthy if troubled with worms. Use Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator.

BETTER QUALITY

While present indications point to a lighter apple and fruit yield than last year, a crop of much better quality is also indicated. The latest forecast by the Dominion Department of Agriculture estimates a yield of some 2,990,109 barrels, or 6.1 per cent below the five-year average production prospects in Eastern Canada are lighter than last year, while British Columbia expects a heavier pack than in 1929. The general prospect, however, is that while yield may be lighter, fruit will be of good size and well coloured. Extremely dry weather in Ontario and British Columbia has reduced estimates of production for plums, prunes, peaches and grapes, although yields are expected to exceed the 1929 figures.

BEEF EXPORT RESUMES

The current Live Stock Market Report of the Dominion Department of Agriculture carries an indication of more than ordinary interest relating to the resumption of the export cattle trade with Great Britain after a lapse of more than a year. The Manchester Commerce took the first overseas shipments of 128 head. These cattle were purchased in the Toronto yards and were of the type known as "light Manchester feeders," averaging around 1,100 pounds in weight. Another shipment of some 200 head is reported as being on its way to seaboard from Alberta for direct steamship transport. "This enterprise on the part of the producer, trade and steamship companies should invite a great deal of confidence in the market, and indeed is already having a good moral effect," observes the report.

COMPARATIVELY LITLE

In these days when fertilizer is rabidly growing in importance as a plant food in Canada one is inclined to thing of Canadian consumption of fertilizer as fairly considerable. Canada is fortunate in that the quality of fertilizers marketed is assured under the provisions of the Fertilizer Act, administered by the Dominion Department of Agriculture. However a comparison of fertilizer consumption on a world-wide basis places Canada twenty-sixth in volume in a list of forty-two fertilizer-using countries with a net annual consumption of 31,000 net tons. Germany using 1,834,000 net tons is the heaviest single consumer, while the United States with 1,488,000 net tons comes second. Great Britain uses 794,000 net tons, while Cuba, at the bottom of the list, uses only 3,500 net tons.

It was just a year ago to-day

Hard was the blow that compelled us to part,
From one whom we loved and so dear to our hearts.
Sadly missed by Mamma and Daddy.

AN IMPORTANT CROP

The rapid increase in its use for human food and medicinal purposes makes the barley crop one of growing economic importance. Cereallists of the Dominion Department of Agriculture state that barley to the extent of upwards of 140,000,000 pounds is used annually as food or in medicines. As food it takes the forms of barley flour, cream of barley, pearl or pot barley as well as being used in its natural state. It is particularly valuable in some form of malt in proprietary medicines because of its faculty for turning the starches of foods into maltose, a form of sugar, making them fore readily assimilable.

OBITUARY

BOY STEWART

A gloom was cast over Camden East late Saturday afternoon, when it was made known that Roy Stewart, only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Stewart, had passed away in Toronto, as the result of an operation for appendicitis a few days before. His death came as a great shock to his many relatives and friends. Mr. Stewart was well known in this community having lived at Desmond during his childhood and later moved to this village with his parents, where he spent several years. Deceased was about forty-five years of age and was twice married, His first wife (nee Miss Myrtle Galbraith) predeceased him in 1918, and later he was united in marriage to Miss Skinner, of Orillia, who is left to mourn. He is also survived by three daughters and seven sons; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Stewart; also three sisters, Mrs. W. H. Henderson, Napanee, Mrs. George Scott, Ernestown and Miss Eva Stewart, Camden East.

The remains were brought to Napanee by rail on Monday, and conveyed to his parents' home where the funeral service was conducted at 2:30 o'clock, by the Rev. T. H. P. Anderson, of Newburgh. The remains were laid to rest beside those of his son, Alex, who was drowned here a few years ago, in St. Luke's Cemetery. The pall-bearers were all former friends of the deceased. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. The sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved family.

A REAL HEARTY LAUGH

"Aunt Lucia" a Mirth Provoker

There is so much of a serious nature in our modern life that anything which will produce a real hearty laugh is of inestimable value. If that is applied to a play then "Aunt Lucia" was a real success. From start to finish, it was a scream. And in addition, the musical stunts were bright and interesting, the combination making a well rounded out evening of fun and frolic.

The infant charms, with which the evening opened, was a novelty in Napanee. May the little tots exercised great self restraint, and performed remarkably well. They made just enough slight errors to make their share natural and realistic.

The central figure, of course, in the play, was that taken by Timbert Grisham who, parading as a feminist, provoked rounds of laughter time and again, as he found himself in embarrassing situations. Gordon MacGregor and Fred Knapp, two friends of the camouflaged Jerry Watson, deserve credit for the serious manner in which they acted humorous roles.

Dean Howard, played by Lois Stalker, and Prof. Geddis, played by Mr. Hogarth, added just enough romance to the play to make it more than a farce. While Tom, Scott and R. Skitch acted the part of the college freshmen, as if they had just been initiated.

A duet by Mr. Caldwell and Mr. Wiseman, whose voices blend so well, and also a solo by Miss Olive MacMillan, were worthy additions to a really worth while evening.

CAMDEN EAST W. I.

Early in August the Women's Institute, of Camden East met at the home of Mrs. Will Hinch, with a goodly attendance of members and visitors. The grandmothers of this community were the guests of honor.

The meeting opened in the usual way Mrs. A. Robinson, president, presiding. The roll call was answered to by "old time recipes." Reports were read from the Flower and Fruit Committees and several letters of appreciation for the same.

A splendid report on the Annual Convention, which was held in Camden East was given by Mrs. Robert Lewis. Plans were made for the exhibits to be shown at Centreville Fair. An address of welcome to the grandmothers by Mrs. George Black; a contest "What our grandmothers knew," by Mrs. Ed. Hamilton; current events, by Mrs. Joe Lewis; demonstration on wool carding by Mrs. Ed. Hamilton; flower arranged by Mrs. Arthur Parrott for the grandmother coming the greatest distance; Mrs. L. D. Williams, for having the most great grand-children; Mrs. Sherlock and Mrs. Curran, for the grandmothers with the quaintest costumes; Mrs. R. Lewis for the grandmother casting on stitches for socks. Judges for this were Mrs. Clarence Craig and Mrs. Ed. Hamilton. Each grandmother was presented with a lovely bouquet of flowers, and flowers were sent to the grandmothers who, through illness, were unable to attend. A dainty lunch was served by the committee and the meeting closed by singing the National Anthem.

The regular meeting for September was held at the home of Mrs. Percy Wilson on September 3rd. The roll call was answered by "Results of Tests." Reports from different committees were read. Demonstration, "Canning Tomatoes," by Mrs. Percy Wilson and Mrs. H. Huff; current events by Mrs. A. Robinson; paper on "Diphtheria" by Mrs. H. Robinson; music was given by the kitchen band, which was much appreciated. A splendid demonstration, "Disinfecting a Wound," Taking a Patient's Temperature," "Invalid's Tray," was given by Miss Jean O'Hara.

It was decided that the Women's Institute have a canteen on the school grounds at the School Fair, to be held September 24th, at Camden East. They will have for sale, ice-cream, soft drinks, peanuts, gum, cigars, home-made candy, hot dogs, cakes and pies.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Alva Emburley, Friday evening, October 3rd. This institute captured second prize on their exhibits at Centreville Fair. Lunch was served and the meeting closed by singing the National Anthem.

DOUGLAS — BROWN

The Rev. Archdeacon Coleman, of Kingston, and the Rev. R. J. Dunville, of Napanee, officiated. The chancel of the church was beautifully decorated with pink and white gladioli and asters and baby's breath.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a gown of ivory panne velvet, fashioned on princess lines; her veil of tulle was embroidered tulle and formerly worn by the mother of Miss Mabel Cartwright, principal of St. Hilda's College, Toronto, was held in place by a coronet of orange blossoms; her bouquet was a shower of butterfly roses and lilies of the valley.

The matron of honor, Mrs. John A. M. Bell, of Oakville, was gowned in beige crepe and lace, and wore a large brown velvet hat and brown shoes and carried bronze chrysanthemums. Mr. George B. Daly attended the groom and the ushers were Mr. Roy Armstrong and Mr. Reginald Douglas. The wedding music was played by Mr. Ross, organist of the church, and during the signing of the register, Miss Margaret Findley, of Ottawa, sang "O Promise Me."

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where a buffet luncheon was served.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas left by motor for a trip through New England States, the bride travelling in a smart suit of English tweed in blue effect and a blue velvet beret. On their return they will reside in Napanee.

FRIGA — BOWIE

An exceedingly pretty Autumn wedding took place September 6th, at 2:00 o'clock, when the Rev. W. A. Hallick united Shirley Alleene, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Howie to Michael James Friga, youngest son of the widow, Mrs. Anna G. Friga, of Bochester, N. Y.

The bride looked a picture of youthful loveliness in an ivory satin gown, made in princess style, with satin length skirt and puff sleeves. Her veil of tulle and Persian lace, was held in place with a chin strap of tulle and trimmed with clusters of orange blossoms. The lace cap was trimmed with seed pearls and rhinestones and the veil of tulle caught with lilies of the valley. Her ivory satin slippers and lace mitts completed her outfit. Her only ornament was a rope of pearls. She carried a bridal bouquet of white sea roses, lilies of the valley and baby's breath tied with white satin ribbon.

Miss Eleanor Howie, only sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, gowned in rosebud pink satin and wearing a wreath of silver leaves and rhinestones on her hair. Her pink satin slippers and lace mitts completed her outfit. She carried a bouquet of pink tea roses, larkspur, baby's breath and lilies of the valley, tied with pink satin ribbon. Mr. Lyle Bates acted as best man.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride, where many beautiful and costly gifts were received.

The bride's mother was gowned in black chiffon, trimmed with transparent velvet, with hat and shoes to match and wore a corsage bouquet of pink rose buds and snapdragon. The bride-groom's mother wore a gown of black silk crepe with a corsage bouquet of Sunset roses.

The happy couple left by motor, amid showers of rice, confetti and good wishes for New York, Boston and Montreal, the bride travelling in a silk crepe ensemble, embroidered in gold, with hat, shoes and bag to match and wearing a black silver fox fur, the gift of the groom. The gift to the bridesmaid was a topaz finger ring and to the best man a cameo ring. Miss Eleanor Howie caught the bride's bouquet which she threw before leaving.

After their return trip, Mr. and Mrs. Friga will be at home at 209 Clay Ave., Rochester, N.Y., after September 20th.

News and Information For the Farmer

Given Provincial Award

Joseph E. Brethour, Burford farmer, the last week presented with the first provincial $1000 award by Premier Ferguson in recognition of his contributions to agriculture, particularly respecting the improvement in bacon hogs which raised the standard in the whole bacon industry in the province. Premier Ferguson, in making the presentation explained that it was just as a recognition, not as an inducement, to indicate to the farmers of Ontario that the people as a whole were vitally interested in their progress.

Bean Growers Hit

Despite an increase of approximately 20 per cent. in the acreage of beans in Elgin County over last year, the yield will show a decided drop because of the long drought which lasted in that district for over six weeks. F. S. Thomas, district representative, states that the crop will only be fair, while others interested in the growing of beans for commercial purposes are still more pessimistic. The effect of the lack of rain is clearly evident in many fields where the shrunken bean, the poorly filled pod and the vines that are only partially podded. Elgin has between 8,000 and 10,000 acres in beans this year. It is unlikely that the yield per acre will be much over 12 bushels, whereas yields of 25 bushels to the acre have not been uncommon in that district in the past.

Sow Thistle Conference

With more than fifty in attendance including farmers from three counties, agricultural representatives and various officials of the department, a meeting in the interest of sow thistle control was held on the farm of W. D. Hyslop, near Stratford, where experiments with regard to the weed have been conducted on four plots. Last year the entire field was a grain crop yielding about fifteen bushels to the acre and much infested with sow thistle. On each of the four plots a portion was left unfertilized while another part received an application of 400 pounds per acre. In every case the fertilized had checked the sow thistle. Several other experiments which had been conducted were discussed at length by J. A. Carroll, director of the crops and markets branch, who explained the different methods carried on.

Fruit-Packing Plants Planned

An experimental fruit-packing plant will be established in the vicinity of Newcastle at an early date, according to a recent announcement by Mr. J. B. Fairbairn, Deputy Minister. "The idea we have in mind," he said, "is to get uniformity and tightness of our overseas fruit shipments. If the Newcastle plant proves successful we will establish other plants throughout Ontario. Arrangements are being made so that growers may have packing facilities located in their districts by applying to the Government." The Newcastle district was chosen chiefly because the apple industry there has been declining and because the department has been able to take over, refit and plant under proper supervision a warehouse owned by growers there. The growers will be charged for the actual cost of markings but not for supervision save for commission on overseas sales, which will be handled by Andrew Fulton, the Government's fruit marketing representative in Britain.

Current Crop Report

The first report from representatives for the month of September showed that crop conditions had improved considerably for late crops such as potatoes and ensilage corn, but the showers arrived too late in the season to be of much help to buckwheat, which is reported as being poorer or less a failure throughout Western Ontario. Decrease in milk flow was reported in practically all counties, especially in Western Ontario, due to shortage of pastures. Northern Ontario was enjoying good weather for harvesting and a keen demand for hay was noted.

Overseas Export Resumed

After a lapse of two years during which time price levels for cattle in Canada were above an export basis, the cattle trade with Great Britain has been resumed. Recently the Manchester Commerce sailed from Montreal with 128 head on order for Manchester. Some of the cattle were purchased in Toronto and these, according to the buyer, were known as light Manchester feeders. They averaged around 1100 pounds. In addition to the Manchester steer, the Ascher-Donaldson line is also offering space and the S.S. Castalian has all space taken except for 80 head. Another large shipment from a western province is also reported as moving. These new developments are resulting in renewed confidence in the export market as an outlet for Canadian products.

Fertilizer Field Meetings Popular

Fertilizer tests with potatoes, grain crops, canning crops and pasture, are being tried out in South Simcoe under the direction of the Chemistry Department, O. A. C., Guelph, and in co-operation with P. A. Vashley, agricultural representative. These experiments have shown up extremely well and very interesting results are expected.

Recently a fertilizer field meeting was held on E. C. Whitesides farm near Alliston, where an extensive test is being carried out on a field of 2 acres of potatoes. In spite of a busy time for farmers, 175 growers from Simcoe and adjoining counties turned out in the middle of the afternoon to hear addresses delivered by various fertilizer experts. Later the party made a tour of the Alliston potato district, stopping at T. H. Wilson and Sons, where demonstrations in grading and dusting were given. To add to the success of the programme the Wilson Bros. staged a display of modern potato machinery which they have in use on their own farm.

While potatoes are looked upon as a specialized crop around Alliston, the Collingwood district can boast of his production of tomatoes and other canning crops. Fertilizer tests on the Smart Bros. farm, near Collingwood, have so far shown amazing results.

Ferguson Moves To Promote Purchase Of Ontario Farm Products; Condemns Imports Which Curtail Home Markets

IMPORTED CANNED SOUPS AND PEACHES ARE HIT IN SPEECH

NAMES U. S. ARTICLES

American Flour, Australian Peaches in Competition With Home-Grown

In a direct, vigorous frontal attack upon United States canned goods and flour being imported and offered for sale here while there is a surplus of Canadian grown vegetables and wheat, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Premier of Ontario, speaking at the Exhibition directors' luncheon, of C. N. E. on Wednesday, sounded the prelude to his forthcoming campaign to promote the use of Ontario farm products.

Three outstanding trade-names of United States goods paralleling Ontario products were used by the Prime Minister to illustrate his text.

Campbell's soups, Del Monte canned fruits and Swansdown flour, came under his fire. Campbell's soups, "in every shop-window," he declared, were American products, made from American-grown vegetables. Del Monte products, such as canned peaches, were sold here while the market was hampered for the sale of Niagara grown peaches. Swansdown flour, he said, was made from American soft wheat and sold here, while in Canada there was a superabundance of the finest, hardest wheat in the world.

The premier also deprecated the use here of peaches imported from Australia by means of the aid of an Australian Government subsidy which gave the Australian grower a tremendous advantage unfair to the Canadian fruit-grower.

Mr. Ferguson announced that the Ontario Government planned an aggressive educational advertising campaign, from the platform, in the press and over the air, to promote the sale, use and consumption of Ontario farm products.

He was speaking to the Agricultural Day audience at the Exhibition directors' luncheon and voiced his recognition of government responsibility toward the farmer in times of depression, when surpluses exist in wheat, fruit, vegetables and dairy products, coupled with reduced markets.

Irritating Situation

The notable feature of that reduced market, he said, was that in spite of the depression just such goods as were in surplus here were being imported into the country from the United States and Australia. And the irritating part of it was that higher prices generally prevailed for the imported article than for the domestic commodity which was of as high or higher quality.

The government's educational campaign would be launched within a few weeks, likely in September, the premier stated.

The business men of Ontario could render a great service in this campaign, he said, by co-operating with the agricultural representatives. The department would draw the attention of the people to its produce, but the results would be inadequate if the merchants did not co-operate by purchasing the crops and preparing for the demand which would be created. The leading stores could help by devoting a part of their advertisements to the newspapers to directing the attention of their customers to Ontario-grown goods.

Recently, the Premier said, a shipment of 25 carloads of Campbell's soups was brought to Toronto, to the detriment of the Ontario producer.

"How do you suppose we can get Ontario farmer to raise vegetables which would make just as good soup as any imported variety, if we won't use them?" he asked and pointed out what had happened to the pea market for that very reason.

Last year in the eastern section of the province where peas are grown for soup, they sold on the market at $2.50 per bushel; this year they were going for $1.50 a bushel.

"We are largely responsible for this situation ourselves," the Premier asserted. "We are not helping ourselves and we are not helping each other."

This business of importing farm goods was also having the effect of dampening the Government's efforts to open up the great northern hinterland which was unsurpassed for the quantity and quality of its forests. Canning factories had been encouraged to open up there, yet American goods were being used instead.

Usurping Local Market

Swansdown Flour was another American product usurping a natural Canadian market, flour made from soft American wheat. "I've not objection if the United States makes itself sick living on soft wheat. But in Canada we have the finest hard wheat in the world, and right here in Ontario we produce 20 million bushels of it a year," he asserted. "In other words, the United States is selling us flour when our own elevators are jammed with wheat for which there is no market. I say again, it is a situation for which we are ourselves responsible, a situation which applied common sense could remedy."

Del Monte fruits and vegetables, canned and grown in California, too, were being sold in Canada when our own fruits and vegetables were going to waste. A demand could be created for Ontario goods by publicity directing the attention of the people to the part every individual could play in increasing the consumption and demand for Ontario goods.

Another example of importation which provided a different kind of problem was the arrival here within a few days of a whole shipload of peaches from Australia.

"Now, I have no objection to that, except that the Australian Government subsidizes this shipment to make the exportation possible," he said. "If something isn't done to oppose that, we can't expect Niagara peninsula fruit growers to prosper."

There was good reason to be proud of the province, where people were trained and educated to produce as fine if not better commodities in an intelligent and economical way, as any country in the world. "But if we are not going to co-operate with each other factory, agriculture, labor and commerce, we can't expect to build up prosperous provinces and a prosperous Dominion. Canada should be forced ahead, to assume her position as a strong member of the Empire," he declared.

To advance Ontario goods in the estimation of the people, the Chapin Co-operation and Markets Branch of Agriculture Department had been making a survey of the situation for the last six months and very shortly would announce a new policy in marketing that would have as its objective the improvement of quality in farm products and the more extensive use of grades and greater economy in marketing, the Premier said.

MRS. BUGLOSS AND MRS. BONES

I met Adlington on the hill, and told him that Mrs. Bugloss was dying. He said, "about time, too, the old cow." I took him to task.

"My dear John Richard," I said, "you mustn't talk like that about the dead—the dying, I mean. Henrietta Bugloss isn't an attractive woman, I admit. But she was, in a sense, a personality. She kept her end up with a certain grim fortitude. She always detested her, but now that she's dying one begins to pity her."

"No, you don't," said Adlington brutally. "You're only taking the conventional line about death. She's had plenty of flatterers and sycophants all her life, and now you join them because she's dying. The pretence is inadequate."

"But death does make a difference," I said. "There is something ennobling somewhere about it. I don't mind your abusing Mrs. Bugloss to me a bit more than that. You outrage the grandeur of death."

"Mrs. Bugloss outrages the grandeur of death," said Adlington. "If there is anything ridiculous about death, such people ought to be allowed to die. I don't understand death, so, like you I respect it. But I do understand people, and nothing in or out of the world can make me respect people I despise. It isn't even that you discover unexpected virtues in the woman. The only good I can say she's ever done is to die, and she wouldn't do that if she could help it. If you think death is a virtue in itself, you can't be sane."

"She isn't such a bad sort," I protested. "She is, let us admit, an extreme reactionary in politics. Her religious views are bigoted. She's undeniably snobbish. She hasn't the slightest interest in painting, music, or literature. Apart from that——"

"There is nothing apart from that," cried Adlington. "She was a rich old woman living alone in a big house. She never thought, she rarely felt, and she gave her servants hell. I know, because our cook was with her for six months. And she owns a street in Colbyhurst. All my life I've thought ill of her, and I'm not going to be bluffed into accepting her. Tell me a single reason for accepting her."

"Well, she has subscribed pretty heavily to local charities, you know."

"A single woman with £5,000 a year and no vices can't do anything else with her money," said Adlington.

"They don't think so in the village," I said. "There's some talk of putting up a memorial tablet to her. When she's decently buried, there'll be a parish meeting to consider it.

"God help us!" said Adlington, and went off looking very glum.

Mrs. Bugloss died all right, and a parish meeting was duly called. The night before the meeting I saw Adlington, and asked him if he intended to be there; because if so I was coming to see the fun, but not otherwise. "Oh all her life, said he, "I've been with them before. Did you know Mrs. Bones?"

"What Mrs. Bones?"

"Mrs. Clifton Bones," said he. "A very remarkable woman. I came across her in this same way. You know that they keep in the village lodging-house the files of the parish archives—cuttings from the Colbyhurst Herald and subscription lists and parish magazines and the like. Well, I was taking a look at the old subscription list at the bottom of every list I seemed to find the name of Eliza Bones, and always the same; she would give one time a shilling, another time half a crown; often extraordinary sums like one and sixpence halfpenny; as if she'd just put her hand into a pocket and drawn out a handful. . . . Now I learn from last week's 'Cheshire Herald' that an aged woman named Eliza Bones has passed away in the Leigh Lowton Poor Law Hospital and has been accorded a pauper funeral. It is a fact that on two and two together, and to assume that Mrs. Bones the pauper was also Mrs. Bones the generous—almost the reckless—subscriber to charity?"

"If you're talking about charity, "if they have the effrontery to propose a memorial tablet to their generous benefactress the late Mrs. Bugloss, I shall rise, set forth the facts unearthed by my colleagues, and call them the parish about the widow's mite, and move an amendment to insert the words . . . to be let into Mrs. Bones."

"Adlington," I said, "I won't guarantee to support you, but I'm coming to this meeting."

The meeting was held in the village institute. Colonel Cobb was in the chair; there was a good, full audience of gentlefolk and a sprinkling of tradespeople. Adlington was observed to be carrying a Testament. The resolution to put a memorial tablet to the late Mrs. Bugloss was moved by Harvey Hubble, Esq., and seconded by old Mrs. Morton, who was deaf. Adlington whispered to me, the only friend Mrs. Bugloss ever had, and another of the same sex. After a somewhat heated discussion, largely immaterial, on the shape, substance, and lettering of the tablet, Adlington then rose.

He was more anxious than he had the spirit of generosity and of charity should not go unrewarded or unrecognised. (Hear, hear.) The meeting proceeded.

He was sure, he said, that no one would be aware that the district had suffered a double loss. Not only had Mrs. Bugloss passed away; Mrs. Bones, too, was no longer with them. He had in his possession documents—to wit, the list of subscriptions to the Nurse Fund—which would show that, in proportion to her limited income, the generosity of Mrs. Bones rivalled that of Mrs. Bugloss herself. Mrs. Bugloss. He then opened the Testament and offered to read the parable of the widow's mite; but in deference to the late hour he was prepared to take the parable as read. He formally moved an amendment to add the words "and to the late Mrs. Bones."

In the pause which followed I found myself on my feet to second him.

The partisans of Mrs. Bugloss protested strongly against the amendment, which, they said, was designed only to belittle the whole memorial idea. If the amendment were carried they would abandon the project altogether. Mr. Gallagher, the grocer, also opposed, on the ground that Mrs. Bones was, at the time of her death, seventeen pounds in debt to himself. Colonel Cobb regretted that the meeting had not been unanimous, suggested that a vote be taken whether or not to proceed with the scheme at all.

Adlington promptly withdrew the amendment if the scheme was carried, he succeeded in this end that the one should be taken by ballot, not by show of hands. Even so, however, the scheme was defeated by the casting vote of the chairman. Adlington took the opportunity of anonymous extra subscriptions, and the offtake resolution was ratified enough by a bare half-dozen votes.

As we left the institute I congratulated him on a moral victory. He grinned darkly. "Let 'em wallow in it," said he. "Let 'em wallow in it."

"That's no good," I said. "You've recorded Mrs. Morton's vote, and if there were any financial difficulties she would pay for the whole thing herself."

Adlington crawled out of it deeply. "They hand together," he said, "for five years we shall be able to put up a tablet to our late benefactress Mrs. Morton, and citing this generous offer as a reason for it. We're all helping to subscribe for it. We're all helping before the power of truth is . . . ."

The Golden Harvest

Like the miner who watches his pan for the wondrous glint of gold, the farmer awaits the harvest to reveal his reward of golden grain. And like the miner whose deftness at "panning" saves the tiny grains of gold, the farmer needs the right equipment to win his full return.

Use "CATERPILLAR" Power for Threshing

The farmer who owns a "Caterpillar" track-type tractor and uses it in every operation cuts labor costs, fuel costs, and time losses. He needs no other power. With this modern farm power you can insure yourself against weather and bad field conditions as nearly as modern scientific science can do it.

You get your plowing done when you want it done. You conserve your moisture by killing a crop of weeds in quick, economical time . . . several times a year for the cost of once by the old way.

You get your seed in when the ground is right. You get your crop off when it's ready . . . with a small labor charge against it. You haul it to the warehouse over any sort of roads . . . or no roads at all.

. . . and the wheat that you weigh out at the warehouse can be sold at a profit . . . even with a low market price . . . because the profit has already been saved in the growing cost . . . not expected from a dreamed-of price.

INFECTED FRUIT

The following pack inspection service announced by the Fruit Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture is different from anything else to improve the quality and extend the market for fruits and vegetables, in both the domestic and export markets. Promotion as it does a neutral determination, the certificate of the federal inspection service is accepted everywhere as the criterion of quality. The service applies to the canned as well as the fresh products, and the housewife buying canned products in Canada knows that she gets what she buys when she buys by the quality mark—Choice, Fancy or Standard—which appears on the label. The quality determined by inspection at the packing factory goes into the can before the lids are on. The Federal Grade marked on the container is the consumer's safeguard and the assurance of quality.

EIGHTY DAINTY CHOCOLATES

Dearest Man,

"The most precious thing has happened—what I mean, it's positively ravishing—Lowney's have put out a new box of really dainty chocolates—they're the most scrumptious things, only one bite to a piece, and the unbelievable number of 80 pieces in a pound box. I simply must have a couple of boxes for my party tomorrow afternoon. I'm not going to have the girls spoiling their dresses and the table covers with big, soft creams or melted chocolate at my party—it's so ruinous to the cards, too. So, be a treasure, and bring me two boxes from the Lowney dealer when you come up tomorrow—they are called Eighty Dainty Chocolates—and only cost a dollar."

Tons of love,
BETTY.

MARKETING GEESE

The time to prepare geese for market is when the weather turns cold in the fall, state poultry experts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. They should then be taken off pasture and those selected for markets should be placed in small penned enclosures, provided with plenty of water and grit and kept clean. They should be fed liberally on whole corn, the best medium for the fattening of geese, and about two week's heavy feeding should fit them for market. Twenty-four hours before killing geese should be starved, but given plenty of water. Care should be used in plucking, the dry or steam methods being recommended, for the reason that the feathers are particularly valuable, bringing as much as 80 cents per pounds. The dressed bird should be rubbed over with a damp cloth and set aside to cool. The twelve-bird box makes a desirable market package.

THE WAY OUT

Mr. White used to say that if he depended on letter-writing to out-of-town friends, he'd be utterly friendless. "I can't get it over with a pen," he says. "I have to talk to people. So I make it a point to call my various friends by Long Distance: The right rates make it inexpensive, and it is so easy! I don't know anything that gives me more pleasure!"

THE MINISTER OF FISHERIES

Hon. Edgar N. Rhodes, who was sworn as Minister of Fisheries on August 12, has been in public life since 1908, when he was elected in the general Federal election to the House of Parliament for his native county of Cumberland, Nova Scotia.

From July 16, 1928, until he took office as Minister of Fisheries Hon. Mr. Rhodes was Premier of Nova Scotia.

Hon. Mr. Rhodes was born at Amherst, N.S., in 1877 and was educated at Amherst Academy, Horton Collegiate Academy, Acadia University, and Dalhousie University. At Acadia he graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Arts and at Dalhousie he obtained the degree of Bachelor of Laws. In his college days he was one of the outstanding football players of the Maritime Provinces. Following the completion of his college courses and his admission to the Bar of Nova Scotia he practiced at Amherst for a number of years, and in 1916 he was appointed a King's Counsel by the Government of Nova Scotia. He has also been associated with several important business and industrial enterprises as a director and officer.

Following his election to Parliament in 1908 Mr. Rhodes was re-elected in Cumberland County at the general election of 1911, and again in 1917. In 1916 he was elected Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons. In 1917 he was chosen Speaker of the House, and he was re-elected to the Speakership in 1918. Hon. Mr. Rhodes was not a candidate in the Federal election of 1921 but in 1925 he became the Leader of the Liberal-Conservative Party in Nova Scotia. He was victorious in the provincial election of June 1925, and a few days later he took office as Premier and Provincial Secretary.

The Minister is a member of the Board of Governors of Acadia University and an honorary vice-president and member of the Dominion Council of the St. John's Ambulance Association. He has been a member of both the Dominion and Nova Scotia executives of the Canadian Patriotic Fund since its inception. In 1916 he was one of the Canadian representatives at the Empire Parliamentary Association Conference in London.

Hon. Mr. Rhodes married Miss Grace Pipes, a daughter of the late Hon. W. T. Pipes, formerly Attorney-General of Nova Scotia, and has two children.

There is nothing repulsive in Miller's Worm Powders, and they are as pleasant to take as sugar, so that few children will refuse them. In some cases they cause vomiting through their action in an unsound stomach, but this is only a manifestation of their cleansing power, no indication that they are hurtful. They can be thoroughly depended upon to clear worms from the system.

This Great Healing Oil Must Banish Eczema and Skin Troubles

OR YOUR MONEY BACK

Make up your mind to-day that you are going to give your skin a real chance to get well. Never mind what caused it—you've probably been, like a lot of other people, convinced that the only thing to use was an ointment or salve (some of them are very good), but in the big majority of cases these stick? salves simply clog the pores, and the condition primarily remains the same.

Go to Wallace's Drug Store or any good drug store to-day and get an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil, (full strength).

The very first application will give you relief, and a few short treatments will thoroughly convince you that by sticking faithfully to it for a short while your skin troubles will be a thing of the past.

One bottle we know will show you beyond all question that you have at last discovered one sure way to restore your skin to perfect health.

Remember that Moone's Emerald Oil is a clean, powerful, penetrating, antiseptic oil that does not stain or leave a greasy residue, and that it must give complete satisfaction or your money cheerfully refunded.

FISH CLIMB 59-FOOT HEIGHT BY FISHWAY

Although many experts have declared fifty feet to be the maximum height which it is feasible to overcome by means of a natural fishway, the fish in the Mersey River, Nova Scotia, are successfully ascending a fishway recently constructed from plans prepared by the engineers of the Dominion Department of Fisheries, which overcomes a 59-foot height. In actual length the fishway is more than 850 feet.

Some big industrial works have been under construction on the Mersey in recent months and, in compliance with the fisheries laws, a fishway became necessary on what is known in the industrial program as Mersey Development No. 3 so that fish might be able to make their way up the river unhindered. The plans for the fishway were made by the Fisheries Department and the work of construction was carried out by the Nova Scotia Power Commission.

There were sceptics who doubted that fish would be able to climb such a great height as fifty-nine feet unless "elevators" such as are used in connection with some fishways were included in the plans. Recent reports from fisheries officers on the ground, however, have been to the effect that the natural fishway planned by the department engineers is working most successfully and fish are making the climb up river without difficulty. For instance in his regular district report of a week or two ago, Inspector J. P. Buchanan stated that salmon were getting safely passing up the fishway "in the quantities."

THE ESTABLISHMENT OF FARM ROTATIONS

(Experimental Farms Note)

In any new section of country it takes considerable time before the settlers are in a position to practice a definite system of rotation of crops. As the country develops, however, and larger areas are brought under cultivation, the need for such a system becomes more and more apparent.

Systematic crop rotations assist materially in building up and maintaining the fertility of the soil. This added fertility gives greater yields and automatically lowers the cost of production.

A fair representation of each of the various crops ordinarily grown on the average farm gives a more even distribution of labour throughout the growing season. Weeds are more easily kept under control and the damage resulting from insects and fungus diseases is often materially reduced by a proper alteration and sequence of the different crops grown.

The adoption and establishment of a suitable rotation involves no additional expense. It merely means the following out of a definite cropping plan which arranges that certain crops be grown after one another in suitable order, depending on certain circumstances such as, the kind of soil, the climate and the intended use of the various crops.

On certain farms it might be advisable to have two distinct rotations. In such cases a short rotation such as, hoed crops, grain and two years hay could be located near the buildings while a longer rotation such as oats, barley, three years hay and one year of pasture might serve best on the more distant fields.

Other things being equal large fields are preferable to small ones, for the reason that there is less fencing and less ground for weed infestation along the fences. Large fields also permit the use of wide machinery to better advantage.

At the Dominion Experimental Station, Kapuskasing, Ontario, quite a number of rotations have been established, including three-year, four-year, five-year, and six-year rotations. These include most of the more commonly grown farm crops, such as, wheat, oats, barley, sunflowers, O. P. V., potatoes, sweet clover and various mixtures of alfalfa, red clover, alsike clover and timothy.

For anyone contemplating the establishment of crop rotations on their own farm, a day spent looking over those in use at Kapuskasing should prove of value, or further information can be obtained by writing the Superintendent.

LOCOMOTIVE GRATES IN HOME FURNACE

Lennox Torrid Zone Has Many Features Besides Steel-riveted, Gas-tight Construction

The most durable type of grates in the world are used in the Torrid Zone Warm Air Furnace. They are of the special rocking design as used in locomotives and are controlled from the outside by a long-handled "lazy" shaker. Hardly more effort is required to shake them than is used in brushing the teeth. Any woman can do it—and she could do it in a party dress without fear of dust or dirt because of the unusually tight-fitting doors.

The Torrid Zone is the ideal furnace for the fine residence and is made in types and sizes for homes of every class and for schools, churches, stores and office buildings.

There are combination hot water and warm air types and others equipped with electric blowers for large coals operating. They are made for hard or soft coal, coke, lignite, wood, gas or oil—and they'll save money for you in the burning of any one of them. Made by the Lennox Furnace Company of Canada, Limited, Toronto, Ont. and Winnipeg, Man.

ACCIDENT AT MORVEN

On Monday afternoon as the Morven School was dismissed, one of the little girls, Rixey Hawley, seven years old, was hit by a passing car. The little girl bounded across the road and was struck by a Quebec car, driven by L. M. Delfrone, of Montreal. The car was not going fast and in order to avoid hitting Rixey directly, he swung over to the other side of the road and in doing so, struck another little girl, Eva Miller. The Hawley girl was badly bruised but not seriously while the Miller child was only slightly hurt.

SAFE BLOWN

Napanee, even in the matter of robberies must be up-to-date. On Wednesday last robbers entered the Robert Light establishment and attempted to blow the safe. They worked well and expertly, but not well enough. Perhaps it was their taste to get through with the job which caused its failure. At any rate, when the charge of nitro glycerine went off, it failed to penetrate the inner chamber. The door was blown, but the bolts held the inner vault secure. The result was the robbers made a hasty exit without the cash. The police believe they are on the trail of the culprits.

LITTLE GIRL LOST

Napanee Girl Wanders From Home

Helen Heerms, the niece of Henry Hearms, Mill Street, has been missing from home since Sunday. She was last seen walking along the highway. No reason can be given for her disappearance. It is supposed she merely wandered off in order to see other parts of the country. The police have been notified and are on the watch for her. She is a slight girl, aged fourteen, weighs 90 lbs and is five foot ten inches tall. When she left home she was wearing a green print dress and and colored sweater coat.

World Series

GIBSHARD'S TAKE SERIES IN TWO STRAIGHT

The Gibbard Athletics came up from second place to win the honors from the league leading Odessa outfit by taking Wednesday's game 16-2 and Saturday's 4-5.

The weather was ideal for both encounters and the grandstand and bleachers were filled on both days.

First Game

O'Neil started in the box for Odessa and in the first frame Sweet., Stewart and Fraser went down, swinging. Odessa did not tally in the first, either, although Cairns and Burley got on. Bentley and Kinkley both fanned, swinging, and it looked as though O'Neil was going to chalk up another victory over the Woodworkers. However Johnson singled and Miller advanced him to second, beating the throw to first. Gibbard smashed a liner to deep centre, but was caught going to third and Johnson and Miller scored.

In the last of the second, both Powley and Lake registered. This was the only scoring Odessa did and from then on it was a walk-away for the winners. They collected hit after hit and Killgannon's and O'Neil's offerings with comparative ease.

The Line-Ups

Gibbard's		Odessa
Short Stop		Killgannon
Stewart	Right Field	Powley
Sweet	Pitcher	O'Neil

FREE SHOTS ON Local Sport

Well, the County League has been played and won—and lost.

* * *

Delug. Fraser hurled both games for the locals and pitched superb ball.

* * *

A great deal of the locals' success this season has been due to Doug's work on the mound. Walt Gerow has been able to improve his delivery in one or two ways and says that Doug could pitch senior ball right now, given proper support.

* * *

The locals sure came through under Gerow's tutoring. If there is any argument, just look at a photograph of a certain scoreboard in Skitch's window.

* * *

Many a fan said that the team that faced Odessa on Wednesday was the best ever sent out of Napanee. Out of all fairness, it must be said that Odessa did not play their usual ball that day.

* * *

On the other hand, in Saturday's game, the locals' hitting was very weak while the Odessa boys seemed to excel themselves.

* * *

The outfielders on both teams had more than enough work to do in both games. They handled many difficult flies perfectly, and only the safest hits registered.

* * *

In the third frame of the second game, the only three Odessa men up were retired by the three local fielders, in order, the first man by Sweet, in right; second by Bentley, in centre; and the third by Gibbard, in left. You don't see that very often.

* * *

Both of the infields gave their pitchers sterling support. Errors were few and far between.

* * *

The locals used the same line-up both games and it was the strongest they have had all year.

* * *

There were many changes on the Odessa roster for the first game and it was changed again for the second.

* * *

The fans were sorry to see that Harry Lee did not line-up with his team. This "grand old man" of local ball has been the backbone of the Odessa squad for many years.

* * *

Let's see, didn't we say last week that the team that won the first game would take the second. But we didn't say who would take the first. Well anyway, we knew it would be the locals.

* * *

Many of the fans will remember that the last time Napanee and Odessa were in the play-offs, it turned out the same way. Except that Odessa fanned second and then beat Napanee out.

Aquatic Club Meet

New Swimming Place and Playground For Town Children

The local Aquatic Club met on Thursday evening, September 11th, and a considerable number of the members were present. The President, Mr. B. Saffrey, was in the chair. The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and confirmed.

The Secretary, Mr. H. Steacy, gave a report on the standing of the club, financially.

The Club were then presented with Mrs. Gilbride's offer of the southern section of her property, behind the coal sheds, which, the club thinks, can be made into an ideal spot for the young folks of Napanee. The offer was accepted with thanks and plans are under way to raise the cash and to see what work needs to be done, in order to make this a spot of which the club and town should be proud of.

It was moved by Mr. P. U. Laidley, that a committee be authorized to investigate the possibility of securing a private roadway, and fencing the lot. The motion was seconded by R. Plumley.

The committee were appointed as follows:—Mr. B. Laffman, chairman; Mr. T. Austin, Mr. M. Mills, Mr. J. Adams, Mr. George Paul, Mr. E. Ungar, and Mr. P. U. Laidley.

It was moved by Mr. George Paul, and Mrs. Gilbride as seconder, that honorary member, and this was seconded by H. Steacy. Carried unanimously.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To The Editor:—

Some time ago it was suggested to the writer that the present is an opportune time to lay the foundation for the establishment of what is called a "Cottage Hospital and Clinic", for the County, in the Town of Napanee. The necessity for such an institution to look after local and emergency cases, that are now sent elsewhere, was discussed, and while before complete arrangements can be made, there are a considerable number of questions to decide. There is no doubt, that there is a demand for such an institution. It was also suggested at the time that the Napanee Branch of the Canadian Legion, British Empire Service League, was the logical party to get behind the proposition, and have it erected as a Memorial to the citizens of this County who paid the supreme sacrifice in the Great War.

Since the suggestion was made, the writer has been getting the views of the citizens of the county and town, as to their idea of the advisability of going ahead, for the purpose of putting the suggestion intelligently before the next meeting of the Legion here. I am pleased to say, others are neutral, and a strong majority in favour of it, in fact I have the offer of the furnishing of two rooms in memory of deceased citizens of Lennox and Addington.

If it is decided to proceed with the erection of the Hospital, and it to be a success, "and under no other condition than that it will be a success will the plan be acceptable to the members of the Legion," it must be by a united effort of every organization in the County of Lennox and Addington: Churches, Fraternal Societies, Women's Institutes, Social Associations, etc.; Town and County Councils will all be required to put their shoulder to the wheel, and use every effort they can.

At the next meeting of the Napanee Branch of the Canadian Legion, B. E. S. L., a committee will be appointed to go further into the matter and in the meantime, I would suggest, that the matter be kept quiet, and privately and in the press.

I know that the members of the Legion would be very glad to have the views of those concerned, so that they may be given at their meetings.

I remain,

Yours Very Truly,
A. S. HUGHSON.

ADOLPHUSTOWN

The Maple Leafs challenged the Adolphustown ball team to a game of ball, and the first of the series was played on Wednesday afternoon, before a good crowd of spectators. The game at the end of the ninth innings was 21-4 in favour of Wilton. After five innings, Rollin, Davern and Pollard, followed each other to bat, all meeting with the best result of each making a home plate. The Prout brothers each made a run for Adolphustown, during the second. Allen, Dickson and Allen each scored for Maple Leafs. No other runs were scored by either team until the ninth, when A. Allen again made the final run. Adolphustown scored seven runs in the second inning, in the third, four in the fourth, fifth and sixth and one in the eighth. The total, Gallagher scored 3. J. Prout 2, Rombough 2, B. Prout 4, Lavock 3, Dickson 3, McCrudden 2, Campbell 1, and Loyst 1. In the fifth innings the Leafs changed pitchers with the result that Davern walked three men, with a few of the Leafs did hit Bill's fast balls they didn't seem to understand the ball doesn't come his way he goes after it with the result that Loyst on first always has the ball waiting for the runner. During the fifth innings when J. Prout was on first Dickson and Davern practiced up on catching with the wild idea that Jack was trying to make second. Davern also practiced three of four catches, George pitched the ball over home plate, and when he looked for Jack, he found him around at third. Some of the Maple Leafs sure go in for style and grove an added attraction to the team as well as to some of the girls. The Adolphustown team played one of the best games of ball that has been witnessed this summer. The Leafs were unable to put any balls over that the boys could not hit, and at times the diamond seemed to resemble a race track. Perry, an Allen, and Bill, in the box, played their usual steady game of ball. But the rest of the team gave excellent support and played both fast and good ball. The second game of this series will be played next Wednesday afternoon on the Maple Leaf's diamond.

The worms that infest children from their birth are of two kinds, those that find lodgment in the stomach and those that are found in the intestines. The latter are the most destructive, as they cling to the walls of the intestines and if not interfered with work havoc there. Miller's Worm Powders dislodge both kinds and while expelling them from the system serve to repair the damage they have caused.

SOME INCIDENTS OF RECENT CAMPAIGN

A Correspondent Forwards the Following Letter For Publication

Editor of The Gazette:—

May I submit the following information which may not be known to all interested Conservatives and which may be useful in drawing conclusions as to the causes of the various incidents which occurred during the recent campaign.

When the new riding of Prince Edward-Lennox was established it was necessary to re-organize the Liberal Conservative Association in its present form.

There was an unwritten agreement at the time that the Conservative candidate after two elections should be selected from Lennox. Previous to the dissolution of the last parliament, this was freely discussed and it was pretty well known that the nomination for the riding could have been obtained for a Lennox man. It turned out that there were two political factions in Napanee whose antagonism was greater than their local patriotism. This was capitalized by the candidates from Prince Edward County, two of whom succeeded in getting the support of the Lennox factions. The result was that Gen. Hepburn was selected at the Convention by the delegates.

There was turmoil and trouble when Mr. Hubbs decided to enter the field as a third candidate. Seeing the possibility of the Liberal candidate slipping in when there were two Conservative candidates running, it was finally arranged that both Messrs. Hubbs and Hepburn should withdraw and that a new candidate should be proposed by a committee which included three representatives of Mr. Hubbs and three of General Hepburn along with the President of the Liberal-Conservative Association and representatives of the Central organization. Gen. Hepburn's representatives were Messrs. A. E. Calnan and James Hepburn, of Picton, and Chas. Hambly, M.P.P., of Napanee, and those of Mr. Hubbs were Prof. Martin and Mr. J. Maher, of Picton, and Mr. W. S. Wilson, of Napanee.

At the meeting of this committee it was very strongly urged upon the representatives from Napanee that they should agree upon a candidate from Lennox but they said they had no name to propose. The result was that the nomination was offered to Mr. I. F. Fraser, of Picton, who was unable to accept it and then to Mr. J. A. Wess, who accepted. The result is well known.

The annual meeting of the Prince Edward-Lennox Liberal Conservative Association was the next episode. This was a postponed meeting. It was freely suggested before the meeting that there should be a new set of officers in order to remove any friction due to animosities existing among the members of the old executive. But the expressed determination of one faction to remove the old members and elect their friends kindled a flame and the fight was on. There was a very large turn-out at the meeting and a real hot time ensued. The result was the old executive was re-elected. However, according to an amendment to the constitution which was carried at this meeting, there have been added to the executive a lady from Lennox as a vice president and the presidents of all the municipal Conservative associations. This means that there are about 17 more members added to the executive. A motion to add to the executive the past-presidents for the preceding 10 years was decisively defeated.

WHITE GRUB OUTBREAK IN EASTERN ONTARIO

Serious Losses to Susceptible Crops Over Considerable Area

A serious white grub outbreak throughout a large section of Eastern Ontario, Southern and Central Quebec is reported by the Entomological Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. Corn crops, potatoes, oats, timothy and the finer grasses have been seriously affected, and losses will run into thousands of dollars.

The outbreak seems to be centralized largely in three major districts. In the eastern townships of Quebec it ranges from Hemingsford nearly to Sherbrooke. In Eastern Ontario from Chesterville to Alexandria, and north and east of the confluence of the Ottawa and St., Lawrence Rivers, in a wide area adjacent to Oka and St. Jerome. It apparently started in the Eastern Townships three years ago covered by flights of the June Beetle, parent of the White Grub, into Eastern Ontario last year, and this year moved into the Oka-St.Jerome district. The White Grub is also an appreciable menace in a rich farming area North of Toronto.

The actual damage done in the infested areas the corn crop has been reduced by 50 per cent. in yield; potato injury has amounted to losses ranging from 20 to 75 per cent; cut crops have been hit to the extent of about 60 per cent; and the loss of Timothy and the finer grasses has ranged from very serious to a total loss in many instances.

The serious extent of the outbreak is believed to be due to the lack of proper crop rotation to control the grub, to the continued planting of the more susceptible crops, and to the comparative absence of grub parasites, the crow, the star-nosed mole and the skunk, which are present in only small numbers this year in these areas.

The Department of Agriculture urges immediate plowing and adequate discing of infected fields in the districts effected. Fall plowing helps to break up the grub cells, and this is furthered by frequent discing as late as frost permits. Turning the grub cells up before the grubs strike down into the soil for the winter is the one effective way of eradicating them. The plowing and discing should be repeated in the spring as well.

Farmers are also urged to plant the more grub resistent crops in infected fields during the next year or two. These include Alfalfa and Sunflowers, which are entirely resistent, clovers, oats and grains in general as these crops sustain little damage during the spring feeding period of the grub, and pasture for harvesting before material damage can be done in the fall.

The field staff of the Dominion Entomological Branch are watching the outbreak closely and are carrying out scientific investigations. The most effective control measure which can be taken at the present time, however, lies in the form of fall plowing and discing.

MAPLE LEAF INSTITUTE

The regular meeting of the Maple Leaf Women's Institute was held on Friday, September 12th, at the home of Fredericksburgh Town Hall, at 2:30 p.m.

The meeting opened in the usual manner, the roll call being answered to by a "Hint and Time-Saving Idea."

The attendance was thirty-four.

After the business part of the meeting was concluded, the President, Mrs. Cummings, called on the Ernestown ladies, who were to give the program. Mrs. Harry Mott, President of the Ernestown Branch took the chair and in a few well chosen words, told of their pleasure of meeting with us.

Following is the programme, which al lof us appreciated very much: paper on "History of Cotton," by Mrs. Millon Thompson; duet, Mrs. Bert Smith and Mrs. Joel Kellar; current events, Mrs. Clarence Thompson; solo, Mrs. Claude Thompson; exhibit of rugs by Mrs. W. Kellar; exhibit of fancy work, by Miss Mildred Seeley; contest, seven of the world's greatest benefactors; Paper on "Above" by Mrs. Priest.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended the Ernestown ladies for their excellent programme. Mrs. Harry Mott was then asked to judge the exhibit of the best dining room bouquet. Mrs. Bert Freits was the winner of the prize.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem, after which six tables were laid for the guests and a dainty lunch of salad, sandwiches, cake and tea was served by the committee in charge.

SUPPLEMENTARY FEEDS FOR FALL PIGS

In a rather cold climate many farmers find it somewhat difficult to get satisfactory results from the feeding of fall pigs during the winter, even when the same ration that develops spring pigs successfully is supplied.

At the Dominion Experimental Station, Kapuskasing, Ontario, an experiment has been conducted over a period of two years in order to compare the results obtained from each of the following supplementary feeds :(1) skim-milk; (2) ten per cent tankage; (3) six per cent tankage plus 3 per cent chopped alfalfa; (4) six per cent tankage plus alfalfa had fed in racks; (5) six per cent tankage plus mangels; and (6) a four per cent increase in the oil meal plus four per cent chopped alfalfa, but no tankage or skim-milk. For this experiment, sixty pure-bred Yorkshire pigs ranging in age from eight to nine weeks were selected and weighed on November 18th. These were divided equally into six lots of 10 pigs each.

The basic meal ration for the first 60 days consisted of ground oats, 2 parts, and 1 part each of ground barley, shorts and middlings plus 3 per cent oil meal. After the first 60 days the meal ration was composed of 2 parts each of ground oats and barley, and 1 part of shorts plus 3 per cent oil meal.

In calculating the cost of producing pork in this experiment the skim-milk was charged at 50 cents per 100 pounds and the other feeds at average market prices.

The most outstanding results obtained in this experiment are in connection with lot 6, where the animal protein as furnished to the other lots in the form of skim-milk or tankage was entirely replaced with vegetable protein by increasing the oil meal from 3 to 7 per cent and also increasing the chopped alfalfa from 3 to 4 per cent, resulting in a marked reduction in gain.

Alfalfa fed in racks has given the largest gains and mangles the lowest feed-cost to produce 100 pounds of gain.

Tankage has given larger gains than skim-milk and at a lower feed-cost, which might be taken to indicate that skim-milk is not worth 50 cents per 100 pounds as compared with tankage at average market prices.

THE PRODUCTION OF CLEAN MILK

Farmers, like others, who offer articles for sale, wish to turn out the best product that they can, whether it be cattle, grain or milk. They recognize that the better the article the better the price it commands. The quality of milk is of more importance than the quality of any other farm product. To the consumer, milk or high quality—that is to say, milk which is clean and wholesome, is worth far more than milk that is carelessly produced and handled. When the public has greater confidence in the wholesomeness of the general milk supply, the nation will consume much more liquid milk, with the result that the producer will receive more money for his products. Any farmer who wants to produce clean milk can do so, for it is a question almost entirely of methods and not little of equipment.

Three things are required—healthy herds, cleanly methods, and keeping the milk cold until marketed.

MAKING PLATE-GLASS.

Ingredients are Silica, Soda, and Limestone.

Plate-glass making was once a secret art. The works were protected by heavy barriers and the penalty for anyone who broke in was seven years' deportation! Those days have passed, but even now not many could say how modern plate-glass is made. At one stage, writes a Tit-Bits man, there is a rhythmic dance on it by workmen.

The ingredients are silica, soda, and limestone, of exceptional purity, and after they have been mixed in huge mills the resultant grey powder is ready to go into crucibles for melting. The crucibles are of a special fire-clay, and have to be seasoned for nine months or a year before they are strong enough to stand the enormous heat of the furnaces — 2,000 degrees.

Only then their life is but three weeks. Each crucible, or pot, as the result of three filling of the powder sinks as it melts — ultimately holds a ton of molten glass, after 8 uproven hours in the furnace.

As the powder melts it first takes on a heavy, sticky consistency, full of bubbles, but later becomes clear and liquid. At that stage the heat is raised and, four hours and the molten glass is skimmed of impurities. It is then poured—a wonderful and spectacular sight—on to an enormous iron casting table, hollow and water-cooled, and with a great roller covering its width.

This roller moves slowly, just once across the molten glass, flattening it into a broad plate—24 by 14 feet. The thickness is adjusted by gauges. The rolled-out glass soon loses its beautiful white-hot glow and becomes greenish-white. Outside it looks coarse and rough, but inside it is crystal-clear.

The next step is to cool it gradually in annealing chambers, and often, after expert inspection of every inch, it is ready for further treatment. Cutters square it, and a heavy iron frame fitted with rubber suckers is lowered on to it by a crane. The "suckers" grip the plate of glass, which can then be moved for shipping."

A circular iron table, on trolleys, has its surface flooded with plaster of Paris and water, and on this paste the plate is lowered. Then comes workmen who stand on it and tramp it into the plaster with a curious kind of dance movement. This is called "swimming the plate."

Embedded, the glass then goes to machines which receive it at one end and turn it out at the other ground and polished. To a visitor it seems perfect, but further inspections and tests, with special lighting, follow before it is passed.

A manufacturer whose methods I have described, told me that every year over 150,000 tons of abrasives —sand, emery, and so on—are removed from the grinding sheds and carried to a dump. Enormous quantities of the best rouge, for the final brilliant polishing, is another cost! Rem.

AN ANGLE-WORM FARM.

Fishermen Are Supplied With Bait In a Large Way.

California is noted for its queer roadside stands, its unique cafes and its climate.

There are in California lion farms, monkey farms, alligator farms, ostrich farms, fox farms, and possibly several other farms that are not devoted to the raising of alfalfa, potatoes and other agricultural products.

It remains, however, for R. B. Bilkosky of Alhambra to have the most unusual farm in not only California but perhaps the world. Mr. Bilkosky is the prosperous proprietor of an angle-worm farm. It covers two and one-half acres. Bilkosky raises millions of these little animals (Bilkosky insists they are animals) yearly. Since he started operations four years ago Bilkosky has shipped more than 28,000 cans, each containing 50 worms, to fishermen all over the country. The season of operation is the spring and summer; as the worm lies dormant during the fall and winter months.

When spring arrives Bilkosky feeds ground bone and refined corn meal to the babies in the hatchery. The female worm, Bilkosky said, lays an egg every day for a period of eight months. An egg hatches in two weeks and each egg contains two worms.

Worms are not put on the market until they are two years old. Bilkosky said, and added, "I've known of worms that lived twenty years and grew to a length of twelve inches."

An All-Mechanical Mine.

There has been opened at St. Clairsville, O., the first mechanical mine, mechanical from the face of coal to the railroad car. Obviously, this mine has done away with a great deal of labor, consequently many miners, mine executives and others watching the operations, which, if successful will practically revolutionize mining in Ohio, if not steer. The new process first removes the coal, in which more or less labor has to be employed, and then the coal runs it through the tipple, and finally loads it on cars. What the saving in cost may be, after reckoning interest and cost of operation, remains to be seen.

A Menace to Health.

Invisible clouds of carbon monoxide given off by motors standing in traffic blocks are stated to be a growing danger in large towns. Experiments on a guinea pig in a traffic jam showed that gas intoxication took place within three minutes.

Tray, Tray, Tray Again.

In order to determine the wearing quality of a new type of tray, a firm employs a man to wash, scrub and dry twenty trays over and over again, hour after hour, day after day. He will keep this up until the trays wear out!

A SPLENDID OPPORTUNITY!

"Day Dream" face powder has for years been a great favourite. Just now, with a 50c box, we are giving a 60c bottle of "Day Dream" perfume — $1.10 value for 50c. Wallace's, Napanee's Leading Drug Store.
